On the Big Pacific.
Sunshine and Optimism.
A Movie Big Three.
Bridging the Golden Gate.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 26.

THE USUAL, perfect weather here, and cheerfulness that comes with bright sunshine and winter warmth.

There is depression in the East, the North, the South, and depression here in the West too, business feels it, the people feel it, but they do not allow it to discourage them, or to change in any way their belief in the wonderful future of this marvelous state, California.

AND THEY are right.

Nothing will prevent the steady growth and increase in prosperity, population and importance in this great section of the United States that fronts fifteen hundred miles on the Pacific Ocean, with the vast empire of Alaska off to the northwest. No imagination can exaggerate the future of this western shore.

THE PEOPLE of Los Angeles know that population and permanent income will travel in this direction, steadily, no matter what happens elsewhere. The splitting up of giant overgrown industries, in other parts of the country will establish new plants here, accelerating the constant increase in Los Angeles' industrial production, which had gained 300 per cent within a few years.

The state of California, much bigger than England or Italy, could easily feed and employ the combined populations of both England and Italy.

THE BIGGEST industry of these parts, moving pictures, has had its depression like other industries. And like others, in due time, it will come out of that depression, stronger and more profitable than ever, thanks to lessons learned.

The most successful organization, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, continuing to thrive in spite of everything, earned eight millions last year. It justifies the concise statement of its head, Nicholas M. Schenck:

LOUIS B. MAYER, who manages the multiple Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios and their business, presents a picture of cheerfulness, refreshing in such times, as he sits at luncheon with his family on a marble terrace at the edge of the Pacific, out of doors, guests wearing dark glasses to counteract the brilliant sun.

Just beyond the terrace is an artificial swimming pool, and beyond that the waves of the Pacific. In the rear is the residence with entrance fronting on the "ocean front" drive, along which are scattered houses of the few managers, directors and stars that have reached the top. Says Louis B. Mayer:

"With a little place like this you can get along well without anything in Europe."

FROM THE moving picture industry you learn that it is possible even in these mechanized, technocracy days, for the individual to be important.

The stockholders of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer have in their service a triumvirate made up of Schenck, Mayer and Thalberg, easily worth one hundred million dollars in actual cash and able to earn good dividends on that amount.

Irving Thalberg is the director and producer. Every moving picture man and woman will admit that he leads all others in the work of making actors and pictures tell their story.

It is said that he is paid a fortune every year, if so, he earns it. He has produced and directed among scores of other films, "Big Parade", "Ben Hur", "Smilin' Through", "Broadway Melody", "The Big House". No one approaches his record.

MR. THALBERG and his wife, Norma Shearer, leave for Europe tonight, going through the Panama Canal, stopping a week in New York.

Those that try to make good pictures in Europe and wonder why the United States monopolizes the industry, even in foreign countries, may learn something to their advantage by consulting Mr. Thalberg, while he is abroad.

THERE IS in Los Angeles, one street, Wilshire boulevard, that with all respect for New York's Fifth avenue, State street and Michigan avenue in Chicago, may one day be the greatest street in the world

It runs, twenty miles from the heart of Los Angeles, out to the edge of the Pacific Ocean.

Off to the left is Los Angeles Harbor, destined to draw more and more of the Pacific trade. What that Wilshire boulevard will be in years to come, nobody can imagine. Los Angeles within its large borders will have ten millions of population, before this century ends.

WHILE WAITING for that crowded day, it is interesting to study the signs of Wilshire avenue, indicating that people have come from all parts of the world here, bringing their problems.

One "institute" will cure anything that is the matter with you, merely by thinking about it.

Another, whose first name is Irene, advertises "exclusive guidance to youthful charm and gaiety at any age."

Three thousand miles is not too far to come, if you can get back youthful charm, say at seventy-five or eighty-five.

IN THIS land of sunshine and optimism, it is hard to realize that important things are going on elsewhere. But the world

MRS. CHARLES BOETTCHER II

WIFE AWAITS BOETTCHER

DENVER, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—The comely wife of Charles Boettcher, 2nd, strove today to remain calm as police planned a thorough search of Denver and its environs for the 31-year-old wealthy broker and his kidnapers.

So certain was she her husband would be released by midnight Saturday, the deadline set for payment of $60,000 ransom by Claude K. Boettcher, multimillionaire father of the victim, she ordered her cook to prepare her husband's favorite food—porterhouse steaks. She waited at her home Saturday evening with her daughter, 5-year-old Anna Lou, while a policeman paced the hallway outside the room.

She said, when physicians ordered her to bed:

"I'm not going to break down. I'm not going to give up hope."

She is an expectant mother.

From the home of the father came no announcement of the "definite steps" the elder Boettcher said he planned if his son, held captive more than two weeks, was not returned safely Saturday night.

Boettcher conferred last night with Walter Byron, private detective, who has been working on the case. On leaving the residence Byron declared:

"We are certain Charles Boettcher is alive."

Girl Slaying Case Now Before Jury

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—The case of Charles Arnwine, charged with the murder of Frances Rempfer, 15-year-old Newtown High School girl, was given to the jury today.

Attempt to Kill Frick Related

And now comes, in Hendrick's "Life of Andrew Carnegie," one of the most exciting incidents in the history of Pittsburgh—the attempt of Alexander Berkman, the anarchist, to assassinate H. C. Frick. Mr. Hendrick tells the story, vividly, and with a wealth of interesting detail, in today's installment of the biography, which will be found on the first page of the second section.

The attempt on Frick's life killed the strike of the Homestead steel workers, but the strike lived on, as a political issue, during the hot campaign of that autumn, and contributed to the defeat of the Republicans and the election of Grover Cleveland as President of the United States.

BRITAIN BANS ARMS TO WAR ZONE

Chinese Use Poison Gas to Halt Jap Advance

International News Service.

Great Britain today placed an embargo on all arms shipments to both Japan and China and expressed the hope that other nations would follow suit.

With unconfirmed rumors in Tokio that the Chinese defenders were resorting to poison gas, fighting was reported on all fronts in Jehol Province today.

Gov. Tung Yu-Lin, of Jehol, announced that 5,000 Manchukuo troops had deserted the Japanese and gone to the aid of the Jehol defenders.

Approximately 1,000 Chinese and 600 Japanese casualties occurred in a Japanese assault on Lingnan, the gateway to Lingyuan, which met with stiff resistance.

A major battle was under way south of Jehol City, where a Japanese detachment was halted in a narrow pass hedged in by tall cliffs.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—The British government today laid an embargo on all arms shipments to both Japan and China and expressed the hope that other leading nations would join the move as the most effective means of halting the war in Jehol Province.

The government's action was announced to the House of Commons by Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary, in the course of a general debate on the Far Eastern conflict.

The Labor opposition, headed by George Lansbury, demanded that the embargo be applied only against Japan as the aggressor in Manchuria, pointing out that Japan was well equipped to manufacture munitions and that action against both powers would only penalize China.

Sir John, while condemning Japan, said it was inadvisable for Great Britain, acting alone, to differentiate between the two combatants.

The Foreign Secretary regretted that the United States could not immediately take the same step. He pointed out that the American government lacked

Son Born to Magda, Vienna Report Says

LONDON, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—The Vienna correspondent of the London Daily Express today reported rumors that Mme. Magda Lupescu, favorite of King Carol, of Rumania, had given birth to a son three weeks ago.

The correspondent said he had called at Mme. Lupescu's villa near Bucharest and was told of the birth by members of the household, who said both mother and son were doing well.

3 Insulls Indicted in U. S. Court

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Samuel Insull, Jr., two members of his family and 16 other former officers and directors of the bankrupt Corporation Securities Company were indicted today on charges of using the mails in a scheme to defraud.

Each of the 25 counts in the indictment is subject to a maximum penalty of five years in prison and $10,000 fine, rendering the defendants punishable, if convicted, by a possible maximum of 125 years in federal penitentiary and $250,000 fine.

Heading the list of defendants were the former head of the vast Insull utilities and investment empire, now an exile in Greece; his son, Samuel, Jr., still a member of the executive staff of the operating utilities in Chicago, and his brother, Martin, who is in Canada fighting extradition to Chicago on state charges of larceny and embezzlement.

Stanley Field, nephew of the first Marshall Field and chairman of the Continental-Illinois National Bank and Trust Company, of Chicago, largest bank west of New York, also was named. He was a director of the once $150,000,000 investment house that was one of Insull's last great flings in the utilities investment field.

The indictments culminated a six-month perusal of Insull ledgers by the auditing corps of the United States Bureau of Investigation. The government alleged that Insull and his co-directors of the Corporation Securities Company were responsible for a system of bookkeeping that made profits apparent while the company actually earned nothing. Use of the United States mails to circularize investors was the basis for the mail fraud charge.

NICOLA SCORES IN TAX SUIT

Indicted on two counts charging federal income tax evasion, F. F. Nicola, real estate and land executive, today went on trial only on the first count, as government attorneys withdrew prosecution on the second charge.

Nicola is facing trial charged with evading approximately $27,000 allegedly due the government for income in 1928. The second count had charged evasion of an additional $5,000 on 1929 income.

Testimony began shortly after noon. The first witnesses included Robert H. Maquire, deputy tax collector, who identified the tax return, and Miss Laura Ganster, of Etna, a notary public, who identified the affidavit made with the return.

4 Cuban Soldiers Die In Rebels' Attack

HAVANA, Feb. 27. — (INS.) — Four Cuban soldiers and an unknown number of rebels were reported killed today when a band of insurrectionists attacked two army posts in Oriente Province.

The attacks climaxed a series of railway train derailments and other acts of sabotage which have caused the government of President Gerardo Machado grave alarm.

DAVIS TRIAL COMPANION GUILTY

Senator's Case Delayed Until Monday After Co-Defendant Pleads

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Trial of United States Senator James J. Davis on federal lottery charges was postponed until March 6 today as Bernard C. McGuire, one of his co-defendants withdrew his previous plea and confessed guilt in the case.

McGuire's new plea, entered before United States District Judge Alfred C. Coxe, was conditional upon the outcome of an appeal taken in his previous conviction in the lottery which he conducted for the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Judge Coxe sentenced him to a year and a day in Atlanta Penitentiary on each of nine counts in two indictments, the terms to run concurrent with the sentence he received on the Eagles conviction. He imposed no fines, since McQuire already was fined $12,000 on the other conviction.

THREE AWAIT TRIAL

The plea left only two others to be tried with Senator Davis. They are Theodore G. Miller and Raymond C. Walsh. The charges against them concern two alleged lotteries conducted for the Loyal Order of Moose, of which Davis is director general.

None of the defendants, excepting McGuire, was in court, since attorneys already had agreed upon the week's postponement to give Charles H. Tuttle, one of Davis' attorneys, opportunity to finish his work in another case.

McGuire was a professional promoter and as such was involved in three separate lottery cases, the Eagles lottery, and alleged lotteries conducted for the Moose and the Shrine. Convicted with him in the Eagles case were Conrad C. Mann and Frank E. Hering, Eagles officials. Walsh, his assistant, was acquitted in the Eagles case.

MOOSE OFFICIAL

Miller is head of the Moose propagation department, and is accused with the others of sending, and conspiring to send, lottery tickets across state lines.

In consenting to the conditional nature of McGuire's plea of guilty, Prosecutor Louis Mead Treadwell explained to the court that the questions of law involved in the Eagles case are the same in the Moose case, so that McGuire is, in effect, confessing that the charges against him are true, but challenging the government's contention that the acts constituted a crime.

Foiled Prison Break Ends With Suicide

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Martin Colson and Lloyd Sampsell, Folsom prisoners, took command of the prison administration building with home-made guns today, but failed in a plot to force Warden Court Smity and guards to escort them to liberty. Officials said Colson committed suicide, and Sampsell was disarmed.

Death Waits Near Boy, 2, Bleeding Four Days

Deniel Peer is 2 years old—and had been leading a rollicking life until four days ago. Then he fell, cut his mouth, and began to bleed.

For four days physicians have worked day and night to try to halt the slow but apparently certain fate of the boy. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Ivan Peer, of 556 Wood street, Pitcairn, expect the worst—unless some miracle of medicine, an unexpected remedy, perhaps, for hemophilia is discovered and applied.

Relatives of the child are hoping that some medical authority will present himself and save the boy's life. The father is a sheet metal worker in the Homewood shops of the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

'Blind Romeo' Trapped In Church as Swindler

BOSTON, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—John W. Brewer, blind "stock technician," alleged swindler of wealthy Cleveland women, and so-called "blind Romeo," was under arrest today while police sought posible Boston victims.

A charity case of the Salvation Army, Brewer was arrested in a West End hotel after August L. Burda, usher in a Back Bay church, spotted him as the alleged Cleveland swindler of three years ago. He had $67 when he was arrested.

Because he had the daily stock reports of the Boston and New York exchanges read to him by a bell boy, police believed he may have operated stock schemes here.

As the blind man was led into the church by a hotel employe, Burda recognized him as the one he had met at the home of Mrs. Caroline Gerber, widow of a walthy bridge builder, in Cleveland in 1930.

Mrs. Gerber lost $80,000 in oil stock dealings with Brewer, Burda told police. Reports from Cleveland revealed that several warrants were held there for Brewer, charging larceny. At least 19 women were alleged to have lost a total of $132,000, Cleveland police reported.

Coyne Associate Called Before Monaca Inquiry

LOUIS B. SCHWARTZ . . . WAITING IN GRAND JURY ANTEROOM

OWNER'S WIDOW NOT SUBPENAED

Mrs. Irene E. Bovard, widow of the mysterious John Bovard who last week was named owner of the Monaca Club, was not among the score or more witnesses called before the grand jury today. County detectives, it was explained, were unable to serve her with a subpena because she had left town.

The county detectives started searching for Mrs. Bovard Saturday, it was reported. A representative of the Sun-Telegraph talked with Mrs. Bovard on the telephone at her home, 1408 Woodbourne avenue, Friday.

The first two witnesses, both said to be doctors who had frequented the club, were called into the grand jury room by First Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt. Their identities were not revealed.

Louis B. Schwartz, vice president of the Oakland Real Estate company, was the next one called. The company, of which State Senator James J. Coyne is president, is listed as owner of the property which housed the Monaca club.

Consul Aids Wife Of Slain Clubman

BATAVIA, Java, Feb. 27.—(AP)—John J. MacDonald, United States vice consul, left for Surkarta today to look after the interests of Mrs. John R. Fell, whose husband died there last week from a stab wound in the chest.

A stab wound in the chest with a table knife caused the death of John R. Fell, New York and Philadelphia sportsman and clubman in a Surkarta, Java, hotel last week. Mr. Fell was on a world tour with his wife.

5 STATES ACT IN BANK PLIGHT

Associated Press.

Out of the banking holiday in Michigan there had come today the nucleus of two new Detroit banks backed by the millions of Henry Ford.

In Ohio 22 banks in four cities—Cleveland, Akron, Youngstown and Dayton—clamped down on withdrawals in anticipation of emergency banking laws to relieve a situation aggravated, according to Ohio bankers, by the emergency in Michigan.

Gov. Ritchie, of Maryland, where a bank holiday has been declared pending action by the Legislature to protect the interests of banks and public, sought today the advice of "representative citizens" concerning legislation to be enacted.

PNEUMONIA ALARMING DOCTORS

Mrs. Gill Also Has Relapse, Mayor 'Slipping'

BULLETIN.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—The pneumonia area in the lower lobe of Mayor Anton J. Cermak's right lung has practically doubled in size since it was discovered yesterday, Dr. Karl A. Meyer announced today.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 27.—(AP.) — Physicians became deeply concerned today over the condition of Mayor Anton Cermak, of Chicago, wounded by an assassin's bullet, because of the pneumonic condition of his right lung.

Mayor Cermak was shot February 15 when Giuseppe Zangara fired wildly into a reception committee for President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt at Bay Front Park here in an attempt on Mr. Roosevelt's life.

Dr. Karl Meyer, Chicago heart specialist, and one of five doctors attending the Mayor, said the hope of his physicians for recovery had been lessened by the appearance of pneumonia. Dr. Meyer added:

"We can not say just now whether it (pneumonia) has spread because a full examination has not been made.

"The pneumonic crisis is six or seven days. We see nothing in the immediate prospects that death is near."

MRS. GILL WORSE

Pessimistic news also came from the bedside of Mrs. Joe H. Gill, of Miami, also seriously shot during Zangara's firing.

Dr. T. W. Hutson, attending her, said Mrs. Gill's condition was not as favorable today as it has been on previous days since the Bay Front Park tragedy. He said:

"Her condition is by no means alarming, but she suffered a slight setback during the night."

Dr. Walter Hamburger, of Chicago, a heart specialist who joined in today's conference with the other five doctors with Mayor Cermak, said:

"It seems to me the patient has been slipping, slowly but progressively, since Saturday."

Dr. Hamburger said his constantly climbing respiratory rate is becoming a source of alarm. He added:

"The oxygen tent is not accomplishing the purpose for which it was decided upon."

TRANSFUSION DELAYED

The physicians announced that a second blood transfusion would not be made today. The first was made Saturday. They gave him another intravenous injection during the morning to supply nourishment.

Members of the Mayor's immediate family arrived at the hospital today shortly before 11 a. m. Dr. Frank Jirka, an attending physician and son-in-law of the Mayor, had kept them informed earlier by telephone.

Dr. Hamburger said:

"I have not completely abandoned hope that Mayor Cermak will recover, but every passing day, with no noticeable improvement, means that the chances that he will recover become less."

Girl Swallows Poison, Waits Death at Radio

After swallowing four poisonous tablets, according to police, Betty Barrett, 25, of the Geyer apartments, Perrysville avenue and Charles street, walked into the living room, turned on the radio and awaited death.

She collapsed soon after taking the draught and was sent to Allegheny General Hospital, where her condition was described as fair. Police quoted her as saying:

"I could die listening to Paul Gannon."

Gannon is a popular Pittsburgh radio tenor.

The girl declined to give a motive for her suicidal attempt. She has been living at the North Side address for three weeks. Her home address is 268 Robinson street, Oakland, according to police.

BOND RISKS CONCEALED FROM PUBLIC, SENATE TOLD

NATIONAL CITY EX-CHIEF ON STAND

Admits Company Kept Unfavorable Facts From Buyers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—The Senate Banking Committee was told today that a National City Company prospectus which offered $15,000,000 of Peruvian bonds to the public in 1927 made no mention of unfavorable reports on Peruvian conditions that were held in the files of the company.

The evidence was presented during the testimony of Hugh B. Baker, who resigned today as president of the company.

Replying to questions by Ferdinand Pecora, the committee counsel, Baker said his company handled $5,000,000 of the bonds. They were sold at $96.50 per $100 bond and now are around $7 for the same bond.

Questioned by Pecora, Baker said finally that he doubted whether the public would have invested if it had been given the facts that were known to the company.

MITCHELL WAITING

Charles E. Mitchell, who also has resigned as chairman of the National City Bank, was waiting to testify.

As Pecora cited a number of memorandum from representatives in Peru about 1923, advising against loans in that country, Baker said he did not remember specifically whether they were considered when the 1927 issue was approved. At one point Pecora said:

"If this memorandum was discussed, there was nothing to encourage the officers in floating a loan."

Baker replied:

"Certainly not."

Pecora read other communications. One dated July 12, 1923, was signed by the manager of the National City Company foreign company. It quoted a cablegram from London which said several issues of the Peruvian government were then in default.

HAZARDS CITED

Pecora asserted that the evidence he had presented showed that over a period of years the company's agents had "pointed out the hazards" of Peruvian loans. He then recalled a statement by Baker at the opening of the hearing that the "credit history" of a country was considered in studying foreign bond issues. Pecora asked:

"You have noticed your files showed Peru's credit history was bad?"

Baker replied, "Yes," and added that the reports were showing improvement.

RESIGNATIONS ACCEPTED

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Directors of the National City Bank, second largest in the world, today accepted the resignation of Charles E. Mitchell as its chairman and chose James H. Perkins to succeed him.

Perkins, who had headed the old, conservative Farmers Loan and Trust Company and continued as head of that institution after it was acquired by National City four years ago, and its name changed to City Bank Farmers Trust Company, had been a vice president of National City in the war years when its chief was Frank A. Vanderlip.

Mitchell, whose aggressive, outspoken manner had made him one of the most colorful of Wall Street's big bankers, had returned to Washington after making public his resignation as chairman of the National City Bank and its subsidiary companies last night, saying that he was taking the action out of loyalty to the bank following criticism directed at him "as a result of misunderstanding of testimony" given in the Senate's stock exchange investigation.

Directors of the National City Company accepted the resignations of Mitchell as chairman of that organization and of Hugh B. Baker as president.

Balance Domestic Budget, Says Kelly

HARRISBURG, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Representative M. Clyde Kelly, of Braddock, believes the federal budget cannot be balanced "as long as business keeps degenerating, with more and more pay cuts. Addressing a meeting yesterday of federal employes of the Harrisburg District, he said:

"Balance the budget of the average American home and the nation's budget will take care of itself."

executive authority to make such a move while Great Britain was able to act immediately.

WASHINGTON SURPRISED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—American State Department officials were surprised today at the news that the British government had decided to declare an embargo on the shipment of munitions to both China and Japan without the co-operation of other powers.

Great Britain's action came as such a surprise that officials at first doubted the dispatches and expressed the belief there must have been a misunderstanding of the announcement by Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary, that such action would be taken.

USE POISON GAS

TOKIO, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—Moving in a bow-shaped formation, Japanese forces advanced in the direction of Chihfeng today to battle 50,000 Chinese troops entrenched to defend the city.

According to unconfirmed rumors, Chinese troops have resorted to poison gas in an attempt to stem the enemy.

A report reached here that the Chinese had blown up a bridge south of Shanhaikwan, presumably to aid in construction of defenses against any possible attack on the Tientsin-Peiping area.

5,000 DESERT JAPS

JEHOL CITY, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—Five thousand Manchukuo troops under Gen. Yang Ying-Pu have deserted and gone over to the side of the Chinese defenders in Jehol, Gov. Tung Yu-Lin declared in an official statement today.

The deserters brought a quantity of valuable equipment and war supplies to the Chinese lines, the statement asserted.

HEAVY FIGHTING

PEIPING, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—With 1,000 Chinese and 600 Japanese casualties reported, heavy fighting was under way today in the interior of Jehol Province.

Apparently finding themselves balked by stiff Chinese resistance in their assault on Lingnan, the gateway to Lingyuan, the Japanese embarked upon more costly tactics and started to push toward Chien-Ping, an important stronghold along the Chinese second line of defense.

The bulk of the casualties occurred in the vicinity of Peishihtsumen, which the Japanese right flank attacked in an attempt to clear the way to Lingnan.

A major battle was raging south of Jehol City, where a Japanese detachment under Lieut. Gen. Hattori crossed the border.

everywhere is busy, even on Sunday.

Today in San Francisco, business and financial center of this coast, a great celebration accompanies the formal groundbreaking for the $35,000,000 Golden Gate bridge.

The magnificent structure soon to span the Golden Gate, entrance to the harbor of San Francisco, will be one more added to the world's collection of wonders.

UNDER THAT high bridge, boats will come in from all parts of the world, and over the bridge will pass the north and south traffic of the Pacific coast, the bridge connecting, at the Golden Gate, two sections of the fifteen-hundred-mile highway that follows the line of the Pacific from Mexico's border at San Diego, through California, Oregon, Washington to the Canadian line.

Wonderful foads are here, wonderful scenery, mountain, valleys and the huge Pacific. It is a fine country. You really should see it, and be more proud than ever of your nation.

man, of Greensburg, and B. O. Lichty, of Reading, were called.

The District Attorney's office said among today's witnesses were a number of visitors to the club.

Among others called were: R. T. Fullerton, W. W. Goldsboro, Wallace Hite, C. H. Alexander, H. P. Ambill, Henry B. Bassett, Robert J. Baer, Harry R. Badger, George W. Hogue, R. W. Byers and Gerald Bradley.

Schwartz was in the grand jury room about 20 minutes. The third witness, apparently not known to Langfitt by sight, was called by name, R. F. Holtz. He was not identified further.

County detectives were detailed to be on the lookout for possible intimidation and tampering with witnesses. Of the score or more summoned, a number were said to have been patrons, several on the "bad check" list, and clerks and operators of Oakland and Downtown establishments with whom the club dealt.

The 11 singing waiters, bartenders and gambling operators sentenced last week for their part in the operation of the club, were to be given another chance to "square" themselves. They were to be called from their cells in the county jail one at a time and taken into the grand jury room for questioning.

Langfitt, before he went into the grand jury room this morning, said the investigation would likely last until tomorrow.

HOOVER URGES CO-OPERATION BY G. O. P.

Warns Committee of Partisan Dangers In Crisis

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—President Hoover, in a letter designed to outline the future stand of the Republican party, today suggested to the executive committee of the Republican national committee that "in these times co-operation and not partisanship is the need of the country."

The President added, however, that he felt the Republican party should carefully scrutinize and debate proposals put forward to aid the country, opposing those "which will hurt the progress and welfare of the country."

OUTLINES PLATFORM

Mr. Hoover outlined what he called a party platform upon which "all Americans can stand without partisanship," including insistence upon sound currency, restraint upon federal spending and insistence upon government integrity as to its obligations.

The President's letter was read behind closed doors to members of the executive committee by Chairman Everett Sanders, and a reply was drafted immediately and dispatched to the White House, signed by 15 of the committeemen.

Their letter expressed "the deep appreciation of the loyal members of our party to your unceasing and effective labors in behalf of the American people."

LAUDS HOOVER

It extended congratulations to Mr. Hoover on the conduct of his campaign, adding that "your straightforward penetrating discussion of public issues indelibly impressed the fundamentals of sound government upon the millions of voters in whose hands rests the future of our country." The letter said:

"The supporters of our great party will continue to look to you for leadership in these difficult and dangerous days and we of the party organization are relying upon your counsel and co-operation in solving the many problems before us."

HEARST'S PLAN 'IDEAL'--LANG

The plan of William Randolph Hearst for a public works program to restore prosperity has been pronounced ideal by Director Edward G. Lang, of the City Department of Public Works.

Director Lang said:

"I can think of nothing that would aid in eliminating unemployment more effectively than an extensive public works program. I believe the plan to be ideal."

The Hearst plan to assure against future depressions, outlined in a letter to the Senate Finance Committee in Washington, has brought favorable comment from prominent citizens in many parts of the nation. The program also includes a sales tax, government ownership of railroads and reasonable reflation.

SWANSON, ICKES NAMED TO CABINET

Roosevelt Announces Naval and Interior Appointments

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—President-elect Roosevelt added two more names to his cabinet today, Senator Claude A. Swanson, Virginia, as Secretary of the Navy and Harold Ickes, Illinois as Secretary of the Interior.

He had previously announced the appointment of five other members of his cabinet, yesterday naming James A. Farley, New York, postmaster general, and Henry A. Wallace, Iowa, Secretary of Agriculture.

THREE POSTS OPEN

This leaves three posts in the cabinet still to be officially announced, although it is generally believed that the Attorney General will be Thomas J. Walsh, Montana; the Secretary of Commerce, Daniel C. Roper, South Carolina, and the Secretary of Labor, Miss Frances Perkins, New York.

Senator Swanson is an authority on naval affairs. He is one of the staunchest preparedness advocates on Capitol Hill. At the same time he is advocate of international agreement for limitation of armaments and a member of the American arms delegation.

Ickes is a lawyer and has been identified more or less with the Republican Independent group. He has been associated with Senator Johnson, California, in past political campaigns and is regarded by Roosevelt as a leader "for good government."

WRITES INAUGURAL TALK

A friendly giant, 6 feet 2 inches in height, weighing 215 pounds, and just approaching his forty-fifth year—James A. (Big Jim) Farley will combine his stewardship of the postal service with the duties of chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Henry A. Wallace, Des Moines, Ia., editor of a farm magazine, will fill the same farmer post in the Roosevelt cabinet that his father, Henry C. Wallace, held during the Republican administration of Warren G. Harding a dozen years ago.

After his cabinet announcements today the President-elect turned to his inaugural address which he intends to make very concise.

Announcement of the names of the remaining cabinet officers was expected shortly. Roosevelt said today he had not got anywhere below cabinet members in his selections.

Next 'First Lady' Drives to New York

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt returned to her town house last night, after spending the weekend with the President-elect at the family estate at Hyde Park, N. Y.

Mrs. Roosevelt drove her own roadster and took four hours for the drive because of the slippery condition of the roads.

'Star Boarder' Back In Latrobe Hospital

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 27.—Latrobe Hospital's "star boarder," Andrew Barboritch, 72, is back again after spending 106 days in the institution last summer. Barboritch fell from a haymow and fractured a leg. Upon his discharge he was struck by an auto and the same leg again was fractured.

WEIR URGES U. S. TO BACK BANKS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Two Pittsburghers today appeared before the Senate Finance Committee in an executive session, A. W. Robertson and E. T. Weir.

Robertson, chairman of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, gave his views on the business situation.

Declaring that public confidence has been shaken by developments in the Michigan banking situation, E. T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corporation, told the committee that full force of the government should be employed to protect banks where possible failures are of such magnitude as to break down confidence. He said:

"I believe it is a fundamental and important necessity that the government, which after all is the only power in the country today that has sufficient resources, should protect the banking situation where possible failures are of such magnitude as to break down confidence.

"This can be done through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation with government funds, and it must be done on a basis of liberality in estimating the value of securities put up as collateral, because where these situations are not protected the loss to the country at large through failure to protect them will be many times greater than the possible loss that could come to the taxpayer in keeping open for business daily necessary banking institutions."

Greensburg Robbery Suspect Taken Back

Wilbur Rittenour, 29, was taken back to Greensburg today following his arrest here in connection with a series of robberies and holdups in Westmoreland County. Westmoreland County detectives said that in the home of William Trautman, 323 Prince street, where Rittenour was arrested, they found an empty whisky bottle bearing a serial number corresponding to one taken in a drug store holdup in Greensburg a week ago.

FORD FORMS 2 BIG BANKS IN DETROIT

Restrictions Placed On Withdrawals in Ohio Cities

FORD BACKS BANKS

DETROIT, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—Henry Ford, with the power of his millions, came today to the aid of Michigan's beleaguered banks.

He will become owner and controller of Detroit's two largest banks, which will be established to supplant present institutions. And he served notice that he intends to run the new banks according to his own "revolutionary" ideas of banking.

The Ford banks will make no "speculative loans." They will be places of safe deposit and agencies for "productive" investment.

With his old genius for spectacular action, the motor magnate broke the news last night as Michigan was entering its third week virtually without banking facilities. Gov. William A. Comstock closed the state's financial institutions February 14, ordering an eight-day holiday. Drastic restrictions in withdrawals had been in effect all last week.

Ford will subscribe $8,250,000 as the entire capital for creation of two new banks to be known as the People's National and the Manufacturers' National. The Peoples' will supplant the present First National and the Manufacturers' will take the place of the present Guardian National Bank of Commerce. Ford will choose officers and directors for both.

Backed by a $78,000,000 R. F. C. loan, the two new banks will take over the liquid assets of the old institutions and pay depositors 30 per cent at once. The remainder will be paid later as frozen assets of the old banks are liquidated. Later the new banks may be merged.

OHIO GOVERNOR ACTS

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Emergency legislation, under which Ohio banks will be given the power to restrict withdrawals of deposits to as low as 1 per cent, will be offered in the State Legislature tonight, Gov. George White announced this afternoon. The executive's announcement came after many Ohio banks had announced restrictions on withdrawals today.

Speaking of the Ohio bank situation in general, the Governor said his reports showed it was "well in hand."

The Governor asserted the bill he will offer will give all banks in the state authority to restrict withdrawals down to as low as 1 per cent, with the approval of the Governor and the attorney general. The measure will provide that new deposits be segregated and held at the demand of the depositor, without any restriction whatever.

INDIANAPOLIS ACTION

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Withdrawals from checking accounts, savings accounts and deposits evidenced by certificates in Indianapolis banks, today were restricted to 5 per cent of the amount on deposit. A statement by the local clearing house said "other portions of balances will be released from time to time as conditions justify."

BALTIMORE, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie today sought advice of "representative citizens" on bank legislation.

A group, described as "those who are not bankers and who reflect the views of the general depositing public" was summoned to confer with Maryland's chief executive as the state began the second of its three-day financial holiday.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—The Reconstruction Finance Corporation will continue to make loans to banks when adequate security is offered for collateral, it was stated officially today.

Officials said there can be no change in the bank loan policy unless Congress amends the law.

Death Ends Child's Five-Month Battle

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—A five-month struggle for life was lost today by 2-year-old Thomas Busch, of Emporium. The child suffered a fractured skull in a fall at his home. After surviving several delicate operations at a hospital, a relapse set in two days ago.

Loss of Home by Fire Laid to City 'Economy'

Andy Ogrochnack, his wife and four children were homeless today after flames destroyed their two-story frame dwelling in Frick Woods. Abandonment of Engine Company No. 61, at Homestead and Commercial avenues, was blamed for the loss of the house, which was burned to the foundation.

The fire started on the second floor from an open coal grate. A still alarm was sent in by Thomas J. Horrocks, of 241 Whipple street, who telephoned to the fire alarm operator. No. 29 Engine Company responded from Braddock and Hamilton avenues, but lacked sufficient hose to reach the blaze. Two other companies, Nos. 16 and 34, were called before enough hose was available.

Mr. Horrocks, president of the North Homestead Board of Trade, who has led the fight to have Engine Company No. 61 reopened, said:

"The firemen did their part, but if No. 61 Company had not been abandoned this house would have been saved."

Met Stars in Jazz Show For Gatti-Casazza

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—They turned the Metropolitan stage into a night club last night.

With jazz music, a habanera, a vaudeville act, an Apache dance and Neapolitan songs, the opera staff paid its tribute to Guilio Gatti-Casazza, the general director, on the celebration of his twenty-fifth season.

The Ponselle sisters, Rosa and Carmela, danced to "Solo Mio"; then they sang it.

Then there were "Those Montmarte Kids, in an Apache Dance Deluxe"—Lily Pons, petite; Lauritz Melchior, the massive 'German.

Pons was the cigaret-smoking Apache, the creature of the streets. The orchestra wailed "My Man."

The great of the music world sat at the tables: Walter Damrosch, his arm about the shoulders of the tiny Marcella Sembrich, who came to the Metropolitan 50 years ago.

The cries came: "We want Gatti;" and the opera staff sang: "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Finally Gatti arose, his arm stretched forth in a salute. This was the zenith of his operatic career.

The audience finally went home—as an announcement was made that King Victor Emanuel conferred upon Gatti the Grand Cross of the Crown of Italy.

JOHN A. BELL DEAD AT 78 AFTER COLORFUL, TRAGIC CAREER

Ex-Banker Dead

JOHN A. BELL . . . PICTURED JUST THREE MONTHS AGO

The last news picture made of Mr. Bell, the ill onetime banker, politician, coal operator whose fortune was swept away in the wrecking of the Carnegie Trust Company and subsequent litigation seven years ago. He was 78 years old. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

EX-COAL BARON TO BE BURIED AT CARNEGIE

Bank Collapse Took Fortune, Brought Jail Sentence

John A. Bell, one - time banker, politician and coal operator, whose fortune was swept in the wrecking of the Carnegie Trust Company and the litigation which followed seven years ago, will be buried in Chartiers Cemetery, Carnegie, tomorrow, following services at 2:30 in the A. Blaine Day funeral home, Washington, Pa.

He died late Saturday night in Hill View Sanitarium, Washington, where he had been undergoing treatment during the last three years. He was 78.

At the time of the collapse of Carnegie Trust Company, Bell had attained a position of leadership in the business and political life of Western Pennsylvania. As a banker he was president of half a dozen institutions. As a coal operator he had become the owner of thousands of acres of bituminous land in Western Pennsylvania, and in the field of politics he had risen to a position that caused him to be prominently mentioned both for the governorship and for a seat in the United States Senate.

BEGINNING OF TROUBLE

The beginning of the end of the long and interesting career of the Carnegie millionaire came in 1925, when the Carnegie Trust failed. Immediately, the State Banking Department began investigating the books of his companies, and in August Bell was arrested. Two months later the grand jury indicted him on 14 counts.

It was alleged that during the period from 1919 to 1924 he had taken for his own use county funds deposited in his bank which amounted to more than $800,000. He had accounted for the inaccuracies, it was revealed, by false entries in the institution's books, made in collusion, it was said, with the bank's treasurer. As investigators delved deeper into the affairs of the bank, it was brought to light that Bell had made a false report on the bank's condition to the secretary of the State Banking Department.

Bell's trial, one of the most spectacular of its kind in the history of Allegheny County, opened in February, 1926. The jury returned a verdict of guilty on 12 counts. Two counts had been dropped by the prosecution.

The case was heard by the late Judge John R. Henninger, of Butler County, who sentenced the aged banker to six and one-half years in county jail and fined him $19,000. Commitment to jail was stayed by appeals of the defendant's attorneys, but in the end the one-time coal baron, who had suffered several attacks of paralysis, was taken into Criminal Court in a wheel chair and ordered to jail at once.

A day later, however, attorneys gained an order for his removal to a hospital, and he was removed to Allegheny General Hospital. Later his fine was reduced to $5,000. His transfer to the hospital resulted in a bill being rendered the county for $2,399 for caring for the prisoner-patient.

Bell was born in Carnegie, September 30, 1854, the son of John and Phianna Arner Bell. He was of the fourth generation of the family making its home near where the Bell homestead now stands at 836 Washington avenue —the Bells being pioneers in Western Pennsylvania. His great-

RADIO ROMANCE ENDS IN DEATH OF PIANIST

Ralph Federer Near Collapse at Demise Of Marion Salmon

In St. Lawrence's, the church where as an infant she expressed the desire to play the organ, solemn requiem mass will be sung tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock for Marian Salmon, popular radio pianist of the WCAE staff, and fiancee of Ralph Federer, pianist-composer.

Miss Salmon, who was 21 years old, died of a ruptured heart while asleep Saturday night in the family's home at 5471 Rosetta street. She leaves her parents, Patrick G. Salmon and Lucy Gannon Salmon; four brothers, Bernard, Paul, Edward and Francis, and one sister, Ruth.

She was a niece of Paul Gannon, WCAE tenor.

Miss Salmon was born and educated in Pittsburgh, attending St. Lawrence Parochial School and Peabody High School. She was graduated last June from the Frick Training Teachers School.

The Rev. Philip Callery, pastor of St. Lawrence's Church, a lifelong friend of the radio artist, will be the celebrant of the services. Interment will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Mr. Federer this morning was reported in a state of collapse over the death of his bride-to-be.

13 JURORS SIT IN 'CURE' TRIAL

Thirteen jurors—a rare number—were chosen today for the trial of Leo Banks Barlett, of Dormont, charged with violating the federal food and drug act by selling an alleged medical preparation represented to cure diabetes.

The odd juror was selected in the event of an indisposition by one of the 12, as the trials is slated to last a week.

To prove an alleged medical preparation had no curative properties, government attorneys, Lloyd W. Bryan and J. P. Painter, assembled witnesses from many sections of the country. Among them was Dr. Elliott P. Joslin, professor of medicine, Harvard University.

Attorney A. M. Replogle represents Barlett. Bryan, in his outline to the jury, declared the government would attempt to prove the preparation was misbranded, and had no curative value. Mrs. Grace Shelt, of Corfu, N. Y., was the first witness called.

POPE PREDICTS END OF CRISIS

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Contemplation of divine works will produce a confidence that will lead the world out of the crisis before the end of the Holy Year, Pope Pius today told the preachers who will deliver lenten sermons in the Rome district. The Pontiff said:

"If every soul really concentrated attention on the sum total of divine works, it would feel germinating a great confidence, a confidence we ourselves felt in proclaiming the Holy Year in order to alleviate this fever of pessimism. We are firmly confident humanity will be much better off before the end of the Holy Year."

Man, Girl Found Shot Dead in Hotel

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—John Treen, 29, a motion picture operator, and a young woman about his own age, were found shot to death today in a small hotel here.

Police said they believed they had been dead about two days.

LEW WENTZ'S MOTHER DIES

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Mrs. Adaline W. Wentz, 90, died Saturday night at her home, after a short illness of paralysis.

Five sons and a daughter survive. They are Lew H. Wentz, millionaire oil man and philanthropist, of Ponca City, Okla.; F. W. Wentz, of Pittsburgh; C. E. and Harry Wentz, of Los Angeles; Will Wentz, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Anthony Shorenagle, of Covina, Cal. Funeral services will be held tomorrow.

Lew Wentz made a fortune in the oil fields of Oklahoma. He is a former resident of Duquesne Heights. An amateur athlete and coach of high school baseball teams, he once aspired to ownership of the Pittsburgh Pirates. He is a close friend of Fred C. Clarke, one-time manager of the Pirates.

SUMMIT, N. J., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Two men were killed and six others injured, when a boiler burst today in the plant of the Grace Ryan brick yard.

SLEEPING GIRL HAS PNEUMONIA

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—Hurriedly placed in an oxygen tent obtained through a radio appeal, Miss Patricia Maguire, 27, who has been asleep for more than a year, today was struggling against the ravages of lobar pneumonia.

All attempts to rouse the sleeping girl from her coma have failed, although doctors have employed every method known to science. Miss Maguire lapsed into the puzzling coma nearly 13 months ago.

Not until last week had she shown any signs of distress when a high temperature developed. Pneumonia set in yesterday and doctors broadcast a hurried appeal for an oxygent tent.

Today, after being in the tent for several hours, she was resting more easily, physicians reported.

Two Chinese Held On Dope Charges

Yee Pone, 25, Chinese laundryman, 418 East Ohio street, and Gee Wing Him, merchant, 524 Third avenue, today were held for court charged with violating the state narcotic act. Magistrate Leo Rothenberg set bail at $2,000 each.

City detectives and federal narcotic agents arrested Pone on Friday after he is alleged to have purchased 100 grains of gum opium from Him. At the hearing Pone admitted being a user of opium, but denied purchasing the opium from Him, who denied making the sale.

DEFY ILLNESS, MOURN CHILD

Suffering from an ailment that caused the death of their only child, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Wentz, of Duquesne, left their sickbeds today against the advice of a physician to mourn at 5-year-old Dora Eva's bier.

It seemed for a time little Dora Eva would go to her resting place with none nearer than aunts and uncles about her tiny casket—aunts and uncles and "Dolly." Dora Eva would have wanted "Dolly" there, so they put the bit of bisque and cloth among the floral pieces during the funeral services at the Hunter, Edmundson and Striffler funeral home, McKeesport.

Dora Eva had been ill more than a week. Shortly after she went to bed with a severe cold, her parents became ill. The child died Friday in West Penn Hospital.

Mine Union Parent Taking Illinois Unit

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, today announced the international organization would take over complete control of the Illinois branch of the union Wednesday, at the request of the state officers.

The action will mean the resignation of John H. Walker, president; Walter Nesbit, secretary-treasurer, and other Illinois district officials. The international union will reorganize the Illinois branch and assume the obligation of the existing wage agrement between the Illinois Coal Operators' Association and the United miners.

WILSON GRILLED IN DEATH CASE

MT. HOLLY, N. J., Feb. 27.—(INS.)—John O. Wilson, father of the murdered Ruth Mowbray Wilson, today gave Prosecutor Howard Eastwood, of Burlington County, the most important testimony as yet uncovered in the reopened Wilson-Roberts case during conference of almost two hours.

As he told Eastwood the detailed story of how he discovered the bodies of his daughter and Horace Roberts, Jr., on the bed of his daughter's room almost four years ago, Horace Roberts, Sr., the other father whose efforts to have his son's suicide declared a murder, sat in another office.

Gets Life Sentence After Three Trials

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—Harold E. Williams, former Bucks County farmer, today was sentenced to life imprisonment for complicity with his sister, Mrs. Clara Grace Prophet, in the slaying of her husband, William.

Williams, twice sentenced to die in the electric chair, was granted a third trial and subsequently entered a plea of guilty. His sister is now serving a life term for her part in the slaying.

FRANK DEFENDS LEADERSHIP OF SCHOOLS

By HAZEL MACDONALD
International News Service.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 27. — Passionately protesting against "the current attempt to make socio-educational leadership the scapegoat for the sins of economic leadership," President Glenn Frank, of the University of Wisconsin today put into burning words the purpose which has drawn nine thousand public school administrators to Minneapolis.

In a keynote address before the opening session of the sixty-third annual convention of the department of superintendence of the National Education Association, President Frank said:

"A sword hangs over education throughout the Pnited States. To prevent this sword from sinking to the vitals of the whole enterprise of education, builded of the blood and sacrifice of pioneers, will demand the utmost of statesmanlike co-operation between the leadership of school and the leadership of society.

ECONOMY NEEDED

"That economy, drastic beyong anything we have been accustomed to think, is imperative in the conduct of local, state and national affairs no intelligent man will question.

"The man in the street, hearing of the rise in the tax draft on national income from 11 per cent to 33 per cent in four years, is all-too-likely to think that the cost of the public services of government has trebled in that time. Obviously this is not true. The factor that lifted the tax draft on the national income to 33 per cent was the dramatic drop in the national income due to the economic muddling that landed us in depression.

"The blame for the large proportion of the national income now going into taxes cannot justly be placed upon the shoulders of social and educational leadership, but must, to a very material degree, be placed squarely upon the shoulders of the economic leadership that proved incapable of steering our economic ship past the shoals of depression.

PRICE TO BE PAID

"The popular propaganda which brands the most self-sacrificing public servants as greedy payrollers will divert men of capacity and self-respect from public service for a generation to come. And it will be our children who will pay the price of this diversion.

"The most pressing problem now confronting educational leadership is the problem of imperative economy. The gravest peril now confronting educational leadership is the peril of irrational budget-making. Educational leadership will be derelict to its duty if it permits economic leadership to do what it will with local, state and national budgets. I do not believe that the leadership that led us into depression has earned the right to speak with final authority on the budgetary policies most likely to get us out of the depression.

"Do not misunderstand me. Upon the fact of the imperative necessity for economy in public expenditures there can be no disagreement. I insist only that the situation challenges us to effect that economy with statesmanlike foresight for the future of community, state, and nation. It is possible to be quite as shortsighted in administration economy as in allowing extravagance."

LOWER COLLEGE COSTS URGED

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Economic retrenchment by the nation's schools of higher education was urged in the twenty-seventh annual report of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching today.

Stressing a need for what it termed a "deflation" in the financial policies of colleges and universities, the report stated a "day of reckoning has come" for education as well as industry."

Among the measures suggested by the Foundation for economic readjustments which would cause the least "human hardships" among personnel of institutions involved were: Economy in expenditures of all kinds; reduction of the types of courses offered by colleges when similar courses are offered by "more competent" neighbor institutions, and adoption of a "share the work" plan among faculty members to provide maximum employment compatible with curtailment of classes.

MISS EVE VE VERKA

CHARM EXPERT ADVISES CUPID

"Don't gas a man with perfume if you want to attract him. A drop of perfume is mightier than a gallon."

This is Eve Ve Verka's advice to women who wish to be popular with men. Miss Ve Verke will conduct a Coty Charm School at Gimbels today, tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Here are some of her commandments to women wishing to be attractive to men:

Don't whine. Laugh if it kills you. Don't nag. Don't give men advice.

Don't act kittenish and coy when past 40.

Don't expect a man to be sentimental when he has something else on his mind.

DO HEADACHES DRIVE YOU CRAZY?

It's the worst kind of folly to dope and drug yourself every time you have one of those blinding, throbbing headaches. For drugs only relieve the pain for the moment, and in a little while the headache returns worse than ever and you have to drug yourself all over again. You've got to get at the cause.

Poisons created in your own body cause these severe headaches, and you must remove the poisons to get relief of a lasting nature.

By starting the new harmless Cream of Nujol treatment, today, you may free yourself from this constant torment.

This new form of Nujol is specially designed to rid you of poisons which very often cause this condition.

Cream of Nujol contains no drugs, and does not in any way interfere with work or play. It is delicious to take. Moreover, you can use this modern treatment at a cost of but a few cents a day.

Take Cream of Nujol night and morning. Begin this very night and give it a real trial. Buy it at any drug counter.

CHURCH'S PLACE IN CRISIS TODAY DEBATED

Spirited debate on the place of the Christian church in relation to the economic crisis today followed an address by the Rev. Dr. John McDowell, of New York, secretary of the Board of National Missions of the Presbyterian Church at a union ministerial meeting in the Smithfield Street Methodist Episcopal Church.

Dr. McDowell declared the spirit of Christ must be made to dominate the machine age and that the duty of the church is to produce men and women who will make proper laws. He said:

"There is nothing wrong with the world today that cannot be made right by the spirit of Christ and the orderly processes of democracy."

In open forum, which followed Dr. McDowell's address, the Rev. Theodore Miner, of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Saltsburg, declared it is time for the church to take a definite stand on the present social system.

He said:

"When it comes to any definite program, we play safe in our little ecclesiastical paradise. All these things are merely palliatives to bolster up a decaying system. We should stand for social workship of the major means of life. We should take our stand with the disinherited. At least that would not betraying Christ."

Dr. McDowell reminded the audience that if the church commits itself to any particular political theory, it should be made a condition of membership.

APPOINT COMMITTEE

Rev. Miner then asked Dr. McDowell if the church is not already committed to the present economic order, and received an emphatic "no."

Dr. Alexander Gibson, active in the work of the Helping Hand Association, declared distressing conditions of hunger exist in Pittsburgh. He said:

"There are some who are eating out of garbage cans."

The meeting moved to appoint a committee, including Jewish and Catholic representatives, to study the unemployment problem and make a report.

HUNGER MARCH LEADERS SEE PINCHOT

HARRISBURG, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Greeting leaders of the assembling "hunger army" in the reception hall of the capitol, Gov. Pinchot today promised to listen to their plea for aid at 2:30 p. m. Thursday.

The Governor and his callers talked quietly. They asked permission to sleep in the farm show building, explaining they'd slumber on the steps of the Capitol if no shelter can be found.

The Governor assured the delegation he will see if the farm building is available, but beyond this said he could promise nothing.

J. J. Williams, Philadelphia, leader of the Philadelphia contingent, asked that the marchers be provided with food and shelter and two nights' lodging.

The Governor said he could provide neither.

WON'T URGE AID

Williams said:

"Will you ask the Legislature to appropriate the money?"

The Governor replied:

"No. It would be useless."

The marchers later in an informal conference with Speaker Talbot, asked for a joint session of the Legislature to hear their demands.

Talbot said he could promise nothing, but told the delegation to return later in the day.

Williams said about 1,000 marchers will meet in Harrisburg, arriving noon Wednesday.

He said they will hold a conference Thursday, after seeing the Governor and the Legislature and that they will leave Friday.

The delegation is to ask the state for $100,000,000 relief, repeal of the eviction law, unemployment insurance, a quart of milk per day for each child of an unemployed family and abolishment of the community market system.

WOMAN LEADS

A hundred hunger marchers packed four auto trucks today at South Eleventh and Bingham streets to start their trek to Harrisburg. Fostered by the Unemployed Council, the crowd, including several women, were under the leadership of Edith Brisco. It was said that recruits were expected in East Pittsburgh and Pitcairn, and the caravan would then move to the William Penn highway, which would be followed to Harrisburg.

The trucks, it was said, were supplied by unemployed members of the council.

MY BEST WAR STORY

By MRS. F. J. BAKER,
R. D. No. 1, Willock, Pa.

Somewhere in France after a drive which forced the enemy to withdraw, a scouting party, of which my brother-in-law was a member, was sent out. They were detailed to ascertain the safety of their position for further advancement. In the wee hours of the morning and under the cover of darkness they crawled out of the trenches.

They had hardly began their scouting tour, when one of their number, with the ingenuity of the American doughboy for finding food, unearthed a large tub of apple butter. Such a delicacy in trench life was unheard of and the good news traveled swiftly.

Thirteen of the explorers gathered around the tub.

Mindful of the danger of their surroundings, they dragged the tub unopened to what they considered a place of safety. Here, with mouths watering as their fancies feasted on the newly acquired dainty, they fought and struggled with the lid. Finally it came off. Then arose the need for a spoon or dipper. They were preoccupied with ways and means of obtaining something, when the enemy opened up an unexpected volley of fire.

A shell whizzed and whined overhead, and 13 boys scattered. When things quieted down, they collected again and a quick survey revealed no casualties, but one tub of apple butter missing.

Examination disclosed that the shell dropped plump and pretty into the tub, exploding when it hit, splintering the tub and sending the apple-butter to the far corners of no man's land. Even their thankfulness for their uninjured state scarcely subdued their resentment of and chagrin at the perfection of the score of a German gunner.

The foregoing story was a prize-winner in the "My Best War Story" contest being conducted by veterans of Allegheny County. True accounts of war experiences may be mailed by veterans, relatives and friends to the "Best Story" Committee, Fulton Theater, Sixth street, Pittsburgh. They must not exceed 300 words. The winner each day will be awarded four tickets to the theater's showing of the war film, "The Big Drive."

BELL FUNERAL TOMORROW

His father died when he was aged 5, and his mother died six years later leaving four orphan children. Mr. Bell was schooled in the Carnegie district, and, at the age of 17, went to work in a store at Hickory, Washington County. With the money advanced him by William Hill, who was attracted to him, Bell, then 21, acquired an interest in a flour and grist mill in Carnegie. He sold out 12 years later to become chief clerk to Hill, who had been elected Treasurer of Allegheny County.

COUNTY TREASURER

In 1890 Bell, then 36, was elected County Treasurer on the Republican ticket, to succeed Hill, and held the position from 1891 to 1893. With his term of office expired, he was made vice president of the Freehold Bank, of which he became president a few years after. In 1902, when the Freehold Bank was consolidated with the Colonial Trust Company, Bell retained the presidency of the former institution, and was elected vice president of the latter. He was chosen president of the Colonial Trust in 1916, still holding the presidency of the Freehold Bank.

In 1901 he organized the Carnegie Trust Commpany and became its president, a position he held until the state closed the bank, April 27, 1925. He also was former president of the First National Bank of Carnegie and the Burgettstown Nation Bank (which suspended business shortly after the Carnegie Trust Company became insolvent) and the Colonial Trust Company, Freehold Bank and Grove City National Bank.

Mr. Bell played a prominent part in the development of the "Panhandle" coal field. He had purchased at various times approximately 50,000 acres of coal lands in that region, extending from Burgettstown and Hickory in the east, to the Ohio River at Wellsburg, W. Va., on the west. He became president of the Carnegie Coal Company and its subsidiary, the Carnegie Dock and Fuel Company, in 1914.

In 1923 he effected the consolidation with the Carnegie Coal Company of a number of his other coal interests, the Harmon Creek, Burgettstown, Verner, Tasa and the Salkeld Coal companies, and became the owner of the entire consolidated interests, which was capitalized at $20,000,000 and controlled more than 20,000 acres of coal lands in the "Panhandle" region, with 12 deep mine and five stripping operations having an output of 6,000,000 tons per annum.

The Carnegie Dock and Fuel Company had docks at Duluth, Minn., and Superior, Wis., with a handling capacity of 1,500,000 tons yearly. Bell had numerous and other varied interests in the Pittsburgh district, and in Oklahoma, Kansas, Kentucky and elsewhere.

He was a large contributor to all wartime drives and issues. In the Red Cross drive in Pittsburgh he was one of the large subscribers and personally worked on all campaigns.

CHURCH WORKER

He was an elder in the United Presbyterian Church of Carnegie, and he held the distinction of having held the superintendency of the Sabbath school for nearly 40 years.

During the World War members of the church and its Sabbath school organization distributed a fund of thousands of dollars to families in Carnegie.

He was prominent in national affairs of the United Presbyterian Church, being a member of the United Presbyterian Theological Seminary Board and the Board of Publication. As chairman in Allegheny County of the New World movement, sponsored by the church, Bell personally subscribed $100,000 and worked for the cause.

Mr. Bell was chairman of the board of management of the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary, member of the Duquesne Club, treasurer and trustee of Elizabeth Magee Hospital.

He leaves a son, John A. Bell, Jr., of Edgeworth, Pa.; two daughters, Mrs. Mary Bell Jones, of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. R. Craig Ferguson, of Redwood City, Cal.; a sister, Mrs. Howard White, of Los Angeles, and 10 grandchildren.

COX PRESENTS IRISH SONGS

In a way it was a gala night in the basement hall of Old St. Patrick's last night. The hall was jammed to the doors because it had been announced that Father Cox had consented to participate in the program with a couple of Irish songs. As usual he didn't disappoint his audience.

The entertainment, under the direction of Joe Walsh, was augmented by readings by pupils of Delilah Porter King. These included "They Always Pick On Me," by Shirley Ann Hastings; "My Father Can Lick Yours," by Catherine Bell; "Elmira's Best Beau," by Bill Treat.

Taps .....Charles Nussbaumer.
Acrobatic Waltz..Betty Hoeferman.
Song and Dance.....Mitzi Bales
Toe Acrobatic....Eva Marie Auer.
Syncopation .....Harold Wolfe.
Fast Rhythm.....
...Jean Skirble, Harold Wolfe.
Hoop Antics.....Catherine Bell
Toe Strut ....Betty Jean Hilpert

Last week was a record-breaker in the Father Cox-Sun-Telegraph subscription drive. The total already obtained in this campaign for subscriptions has brought Father Cox close to $1,100 for his unemployment relief fund. For every subscription turned in on the blank on this page brings to this fund a liberal cash commission.

Utility Executive Will Address Meet

Mr. Hewitt

Arthur Hewitt, of Toronto, Canada, president of the American Gas Association, will make the opening address at the Eastern Natural Gas Conference, to be held Thursday and Friday at the Hotel Schenley. Among Pittsburgh speakers will be Lee A. Green, secretary of the Steam Fitters and Helpers' Union. Equipment designed to make the use of natural gas more efficient and economical will be emphasized.

'Emergency School' Opened for Jobless

An "emergency school" for all persons over 17 years will open at the Manchester Educational Center, 1522 Chateau street, tomorrow morning. The school, intended primarily for persons out of work, will continue eight weeks with classes on Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday. Cultural, practical and recreational subjects will be offered.

Literary Society Masquerade Tonight

The Italian Literary Society of Pittsburgh will hold a carnival masquerade party tonight at the Kingsley House to celebrate its first anniversary. Miss Marie De Lena, chairman, will be assisted by the Misses Emma Mauro, Fanny Barretta, Florence Biandi, Edith Capozzi, Candida Capozzi and Mary Falvo Lazaro.

Loss of Leg Feared For Bryan Cousin

Doctors believed amputation of the leg will be necessary. Maj. Bryan, who is 73, injured his leg while climbing the pyramid, which is 264 feet high. Complications set in.

'Aircaster Digs Up Some Pet Peeves

By AIRCASTER

Pet peeves . . . Julia Sanderson doesn't like crowds; Howard Claney, handshakers; Leonard Joy, studio pranksters; Paul Whiteman, loaded elevators; Amos 'n' Andy, studio audiences (as if you didn't know); Ed Wynn, autograph hunters; Irene Taylor, answering letters; Ray Perkins, to be tripped up on one of his puns; Jack Pearl, dressing room whistlers (an old theatrical taboo); Ray Knight, to hear "I told you so;" Nellie Revell, studio loafers; Cheerio, inquisitive persons; Ben Bernie, Walter Winchell; Walter Winchell, Ben Bernie. . .

Four and one-half hours of melody is scheduled on WCAE tonight beginning with Richard Crooks at 8:30; the Gypsies, at 9; Paul Whiteman, 9:30; the Contented Hour, 10; WCAE artists in a variety program, 10:30; Ted Weems, 11; Terrace Garden rhythms, 11:30; Paul Gannon's "Music at Midnight"; Anson Weeks, 12:15 a. m., and Mark Fisher, 12:30 to 1 a. m.

For those dramatically inclined are: Booth Tarkington's "Maud and Cousin Bill" sketch, KDKA, at 6; the Scarab Mystery, WCAE, at 8; Dr. Fu Manchu, WJAS, at 8:30; Mysteries in Paris, 9:30, on WJAS.

Studio Slants

Willard Robison's Deep River Orchestra may take over Paul Whiteman's Sunday night concert spot on NBC-WJZ when the latter leaves on tour. Whiteman, by the way, concludes his NBC-WCAE Monday night series tonight.

Two bassos, a baritone and an alto, vocalizing to a "musical" background provided by an old brown jug and a washboard played with thimbles, make up NBC's newest group, the Southern Singers. They're from Cincinnati.

Peter Dixon's "Raising Junior" sketches return to the air via WOR at 6:50 tonight on a Monday-Thursday schedule.

Response to the Memorial Park's query to listeners last week concerning their preference for sacred or secular music favor the former by a large margin.

You can take it or leave it . . . but the syllable "Pah!" is becoming "sumpin'" in modern radio music. Arnold Johnson, who goes in for the unique, is utilizing it as a trick ending on "hot" phrases and—of all things—held an audition last week to find the best "pah-er" in his band. The winner: An inoffensive second fiddler.

Your Stomach Needs Toma

Relieves Stomach Ulcers due to acidity.

The decidedly different stomach formula, Toma Tablets, created in great laboratories, is bringing results to thousands. People marvel at the way they work. A prominent attorney says: "My father is almost miraculously a well man today after having suffered from ulcers caused by acidity for more than 20 years, and spending a small fortune. His recovery is entirely due to Toma Tablets." No wonder, then, the use of Toma has spread so amazingly!

Toma Tablets are specially designed for stomach ulcers, indigestion, gastritis, sourness, gas pains, dyspepsia, headaches, heartburn, belching, bad breath, lack of pep, constipation or other disorders induced by hyperacidity. They quiet pain, neutralize trouble-causing acids, soothe inflamed stomach membrane, stop nausea, promote normal appetite.

Don't be tortured any longer, investigate Toma, a doctor's prescription. Send for free booklet, "Your Stomach and You," today. Write Toma Inc., Dept. V 24, Ligonier, Pa.

Educational Convention On Air

Featuring addresses by the nation's leading educators, broadcasts from the National Education Association's annual convention in Minneapolis are presented daily over coast-to-coast networks this week.

The programs are scheduled over CBS-WJAS today at 4:30 p. m.; Tuesday, 3:30 p. m.; Wednesday, 4 p. m., and Thursday, 3:30 p. m. A broadcast of the final session will be carried by NBC-KDKA Thursday night at 10:30.

Speakers include Florence Hale, first vice president of the association; Dr. Glenn Frank, William J. Cooper, United States Commissioner of Education, and Amos Alonzo Stagg.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

"On Washington's birthday the Globe Trotter has to tell a fib."

So reports D. A. Hust. Mentioning George Washington as the first President of the United States is all wrong. I was mad, too, at first, but then he says that John Hanson served as the first president of the Continental Congress in 1781. His title was President of the United States.

The life story of Andrew Carnegie now appearing in the Sun-Telegraph brings back fond memories of one 80-year-old globe trotter from Perryopolis. E. K. Chalfant relates that his friend, a Pennsy engineer, once was ordered by Carnegie to move a freight train out of the yards. The engineer refused to obey because Mr. Carnegie didn't give him a written order. He was summoned later to the inner offices where he was sure that his failure to obey Mr. Carnegie would result in his dismissal. To his surprise the great man commended him for his railroad-like qualities and advanced him to positions of greater trust.

The geography teacher in St. Bede's School received an answer she didn't expect but one that she had to admit was correct. She had asked the pupils the locations of various important cities. When she asked where Brisbane was they all responded: "In the Sun-Tele."

* * *

Wonder why nobody gets the idea of writing a message, pasting it on cardboard and making a jigsaw puzzle out of that instead of pictures? Make it a love letter. Or, better still, piece together some of the ones you tore up in anger and wished you hadn't in remorse.

* * *

A mysterious message from Greensburg. Some one has a different kind of an animal to put on the globe broadcast. Not for us, please, we're out of the wild animal business for the time being.

TELL IT TO ELSIE

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Ugly Gossip Will Not Hurt Unless You Let It

Gossip—

Eyes peering at her from behind curtained windows. Voices whispering as she passes by.

The thought of it dogs Kathy's footsteps wherever she goes, darkening the sunshine, killing the joy in her young heart. And the worst of it is, she hasn't done a thing to deserve it. It all began because a boy whom she didn't even know started a story about her.

Ever have any experience like that?

The. maybe you can tell Kathy—

What'll she do? Hide herself? Look up the boy and fight it out? Or just grin and bear it? Dear Miss Robinson:

My problem, I believe, is different from most of those that you are asked to help with, but I hope you will help me, because to me it is a terrible disgrace, and I want to know what to do about it.

Not long ago one of my girl friends, Ellen, was with a group of girls and boys talking about anything and everything, and she started in talking about me, and asked one of the boys if he knew who I was. He said he didn't, but when she told him where I lived, he thought then that he did know me. And just then another boy began talking, and he called me something I wouldn't dare to write in a letter or repeat to anyone.

I don't know where or how he got his idea, because he doesn't live in my neighborhood and Ellen said she never saw him before.

WANTS TO HIDE

It hurt me terribly. I am not that kind of a girl, and it just breaks my heart to have anyone say such a thing about me. My folks wouldn't even let me chase around if I wanted to. I won't be 17 years old until this coming summer, and every time I go out I must be in the house before 9:30.

And last, but not least, I have never gone out with a boy alone, or even with just a crowd of youngsters. When I do go out I just go to my girl friend's house, and we dance or sing or walk around the neighborhood by ourselves.

Please, what shall I do? I have never told my mother about this, because I don't think she would let me go out at all if I did. But I feel as if all the eyes on earth were peering at me through windows, and all the people are saying: "There goes that Jones girl alone," every time I go down the street.

Shall I just make believe that I know nothing about this? Shall I find out who this boy is and tell him a mouthful? He seems to be able to make up bigger lies about a stranger than anybody I ever heard of. When I think of his saying that dreadful thing I want to go and hide.

Please help me. This is just ruining everything for me.

KATHERINE.

STOP WORRYING

Yes, honey, I know it seems dreadful; and, of course, the boy had no business to say it. But, after all, gossip is one of the oldest habits of the human race, and we all run into it some time.

And now—what to do?

Stop worrying about it, little girl. In the first place, the chances are that none of your friends or neighbors has heard anything about it. This boy doesn't know them. But even if they had heard it, they know the good side of you, too. And so long as you keep on being decent and sweet, that will prove he was wrong.

Gossip can't hurt you with other people a tenth part as much as worrying about it can hurt you inside yourself. So head up, honey! Forget this ugly thing. It can't hurt you unless you let it. Go on being yourself. Act just as if it had never happened. Think of something else—something happy and young and pleasant—and before you know it the skies will be all clear again.

Wife Can Forgive Anything But "Other Woman," Says Fay King

HE WAS NEVER IN LOVE WITH HIS WIFE!
MY DEAR GIRL, MY HUSBAND IS DECEIVING YOU, JUST AS MUCH AS HE IS DECEIVING ME!
I COULD FORGIVE HIM FOR ANYTHING BUT—HER!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

"Here's to our wives and our sweethearts—may they never meet."

That is an old toast, always good for a big laugh at a stag banquet.

The man who invented it and the men who applaud it are well aware that in such a meeting the husband would suffer most.

For the husband who succeeds best at deceiving his wife also excels at deceiving his sweetheart.

He treats his wife so affectionately she never suspects him. He lies to his sweetie so expertly she believes him implicitly.

To such husbands the wife and the sweetheart are in distinctly different spheres.

The only thing he cannot understand is that they cannot understand this.

But a woman can forgive a man for anything—but another woman!

Dicky Reports That He Has Seen Girls' Signal

Not for many seconds, however, could I feel dolorous over the introspection which my telephone conversation with Dicky had brought me. My feet fairly danced to the door, and I was conscious that my voice held joy in it as I called to the Mertons.

"I am through with the telephone," I said, then added significantly, "Thank you so much!"

Then I was flying up the stairs, conscious of but one thing. Dicky was safe! I refused to look further than the afternoon. What would come in the night if the rescue party should go through—of that I must not think. I could not, and remain sane.

"It was Dicky," I said breathlessly, as I burst into the room. "He had not telephoned the school, but I gave him your message and told him that we had news. I said nothing more than that, of course. He says he also has news."

"Sit down, darling!" My father pushed a chair forward and, coming over to me, put me into it bodily. "You're all flushed. Did you run upstairs?"

I was conscious that they were all looking at me, and wondered if my joy at Dicky's safety was reflected in my face.

WAITS FOR HUSBAND

"Will he come over immediately?" my father asked.

"Oh, yes; I should have told you. Right away. And—suppose I order something hot for him to eat and drink? He probably hasn't stopped for anything."

"It is an excellent idea," my father approved. "I would join him, only we lunched not long ago, Harry and Ronald and I. What about you, Hugh?"

"Nothing for me, thank you," he said, and something in his tone gave me the fantastic surmise that though he patently had not lunched, he could not bear just now to think of breaking bread with my husband.

"Then I will order just for Dicky," I said, and went out of the room to speak to Mrs. Merton. Purposely I did not return, but went instead into the tea room and stood by the window, watching for my husband.

I wanted to see him for just a second or two by myself, before he had to join the conference upstairs. Then, too, I had no wish to stir his jealousy further.

IMPORTANT NEWS

I had not long to wait. Driving Noel's car, which he evidently had commandeered, Dicky came furiously up the hill, drawing up before the door in much the same careening, terrifying fashion as had characterized my father's arrival. I was outside and across the footbridge before he was fairly out of the car, and though we both hate demonstration in public, something outside ourselves seemed to drive us into each other's arms. For a second we clung to each other, then Dicky gave the tender, half-amused little laugh which always means that his rancor against me has been conquered.

"What's eating her now?" he asked softly.

"You're safe!" I said fervently. "Nothing else matters."

"Oh, yes; there's a lot that matters," he said quickly, and I saw that our moment was over. "Where are the rest of them?"

"In a room upstairs. I'll take you up, or—won't you wait down here for a few minutes and eat something? I have something hot ordered for you."

"Good girl! I'm starved, but I can't wait to eat before I see them. Can't it be served where the rest are, so that I can talk and listen while I'm eating?"

"Of course," I answered promptly. "Just wait a half minute until I tell Mrs. Merton about it."

In less than the half I was back, drawing him upstairs to the room where the other men awaited his coming. I was on fire to hear his news, but I would not ask it before the rest had the chance to share it. But he waited no longer than to cross the threshold of that upper room before telling us what evidently was filling his heart and mind.

"The girls are in that mountain cabin," he said. "I saw their signal today."

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Brilliant Trap Pass

In the "Experts' Room" at Crockford's Club, New York, the world's ranking players meet daily in Rubber play. The strategy and tactics there are clear indications of how these players have attained their positions in the world of Bridge. In the bidding of the hands, each player knows that he is faced with the problem of outguessing a master who has attained his rank because he has himself been able to outguess almost every Bridge player against whom he has played.

One of the most brilliant calls, in my opinion, that have been made among the experts was that recently made by Mr. Oswald Jacoby on the hand below, when, by a brilliant trap pass, he was able to buy the contract at a price he was willing to pay, and, in addition, play on the weakness of West, who has a tendency to make very light Penalty Doubles. He not only avoided the danger of overbidding, but scored the double trick-value as well. The hand was:

West, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ A Q 10 7 5 4 ♡ J 10 3 ◇ 10 2 ♣ K 6
♠ 6 3 ♡ A K 8 6 4 2 ◇ A Q 7 3 ♣ 7	North West East South	♠ — ♡ Q 7 5 ◇ K J 8 6 5 4 ♣ 5 4 3 2
	♠ K J 9 8 2 ♡ 9 ◇ 9 ♣ A Q J 10 9 8

Mr. Jacoby

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♡ (1)	1 ♠ (2)	2 ◇ (3)	Pass (4)
4 ◇ (5)	Pass	5 ◇ (6)	5 ♠ (7)
Dbl. (8)	Pass	Pass (9)	Pass

1—Of course, the proper bid.

2—A very sound Overcall.

3—While East's hand is weak in honors, it has tremendous distributional values.

4—A brilliant pass. Mr. Jacoby realizes that his hand offers practically no defense against his opponents, but he feels certain that the bid of two diamonds will not be passed. This call is all the more brilliant in view of the fact that, with his partner's bid, there is a sure game in the hand for North and South, but he nevertheless takes the slight chance of permitting it to be played in two diamonds by East and West.

5—This bid is also correct.

6—An alternative bid by East might have been four hearts, which conceivably might have changed the trend of the subsequent bidding.

7—The trap pass has worked. Mr. Jacoby now apparently saves game.

8—West, as expected, falls into the trap.

9—East very reluctantly passes, but, remembering that his partner has opened the bidding, he believes that there is a certain penalty and, after all, but slight prospect for a contract of six.

Five spades were made at a lay-down, but six diamonds or six hearts could also have been made by East and West. While all Bridge players should be quick to double when their opponents have gone beyond a safe point, West, over five spades, had a much better course. Instead of doubling, he should have passed, and his partner would have known that he was being asked either to double five spades or bid six diamonds. In this case East would have bid six diamonds, and South, no doubt, would have bid six spades, which would have been doubled and set 1.

TODAY'S QUESTION

What is the correct Opening bid by Second Hand, Dealer having passed, with the following holding?

♠ A Q 10 8 ♡ A K J ◇ A K ♣ Q J 10 6

Answer: Two spades. The Opening Forcing bid in a suit is definitely indicated in preference to any Opening notrump bid.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Grammar

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—When speaking of your mother in a sentence like: "I went to the city with mother," is the word "mother" to be capitalized?

2—I always hesitate in the use of "may" and "might." What is the difference in their usage?

READER.

1—Yes. In this sentence you use the word MOTHER instead of a proper name. Your mother's sister, for instance, would say, "I went to the city with Mary," but in your sentence you use MOTHER, instead of MARY. Mary would be capitalized, of course, and so, in its place, Mother would be capitalized. This, by the way, is a good test for other similar words, too . . . "I went to the city with Uncle."

But, when you use before the name a modifying word—my, your, our, their, for instance—then the noun is a common noun and hence would not be capitalized, "I went to the city with my mother." "They went to the city with their uncle."

2—May is the present tense of the verb, and means that you are asking permission: "May I go with you?" Might is the preterite of the verb MAY: "He might have been well received, if he had had gracious manners."

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

An ingrowing toenail will continue to make trouble until it is encased in a shoe that doesn't press inward. The remedy is simple.

When the young thing chucked the corset, womankind divided into two camps, the long-nosed ones who considered the unharnessed form unladylike and more advanced femmes who exclaimed, "At last, ribs are out of bondage! Girls will grow corsets of strong muscles. Figures will improve." Have they? Mebbe. The most important factor of the beautiful svelte figure has been overlooked, and that is posture. With shoulders thrown forward, backbone languid, abdominal muscles slack, and the female form is anything but divine. When will the gals pull themselves up, walk in beauty? Good posture and graceful movement are the real substance of good appearance.

Household Hints

Green peppers and pimentos added flavor to chicken soup.

Chopped parsley improves the flavor of white sauce when poured over boiled vegetables.

To prevent mixtures sticking to the baking dishes, grease the bottom and sides of the dish with butter or oil.

"This is the nicest looking wash I've ever had! Here's my new washday secret . . .

"I use my regular soap and washing method, add 2 tablespoons of LUX. Lux is so pure that just this little bit gives me much richer, faster working suds."

NOTE: Use only Lux—no other soap—for silks, woolens, rayons. Delicate fabrics should never be exposed to harsh alkali or cake-soap rubbing.

$3 worth of protection for $1 if you use Pepsodent Antiseptic

PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC is 3 times as powerful as other leading mouth antiseptics. Hence it goes 3 times as far. And whether you buy the 25c, 50c, or $1 size, you still get 3 times as much for your money.

IT DIDN'T take the public long to figure out the difference between Pepsodent Antiseptic and other leading kinds. Common sense said, "Here's the difference between one dollar and three dollars . . . the difference between positively killing germs and being fooled by diluting old-style antiseptics."

Two kinds of antiseptics

Most mouth antiseptics kill germs only when used full strength. But Pepsodent Antiseptic is powerful enough even when diluted with 2 parts of water to kill germs in 10 seconds! Pepsodent Antiseptic is at least 3 times as powerful as other leading mouth antiseptics. It goes 3 times as far—gives you 3 times as much for your money—and gives you greater protection against sore throat colds.

Use Pepsodent for safety

Millions who once diluted ordinary antiseptics now discover their mistake. Be sure you choose the antiseptic that, even when mixed with water, kills germs. Insist on Pepsodent Antiseptic—be sure! Be safe . . . and save your money!

IMPURE BREATH
(Halitosis)

The amazing results of Pepsodent Antiseptic in fighting sore throat colds prove its effectiveness in checking Bad Breath (Halitosis). Remember, Pepsodent is 3 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics. Remember, even when diluted with water it still kills germs.

Blizzard Kills Boy, Girl Fights for Life

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., Feb. 27.—Eighteen-year-old Doris Ebsen, Arizona State Teachers' College student, was given only a 50-50 chance to live today as the result of exposure in a blinding snowstorm which claimed the life of her companion, Robert Sanders, 19.

Miss Ebsen, Sanders, Nancy Alford, 17, and William Brown, 19, set out Saturday to climb Mt. Elden, three miles east of here. They were trapped by a blizzard.

Virginia D. Bily Is Married to R. G. Flannery

One of February's most charming weddings took place this morning at 11 o'clock in St. Philomena's Roman Catholic Church, Virginia Dolores Bily, daughter of the Edward S Bilys, of Phillips avenue, was the bride, and Raymond Gerard Flannery, son of Mrs. Joseph M. Flannery, of Dithridge street, the bridegroom.

The church was decorated in green and white. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of graceful white Alecon lace, having long, tight-fitting sleeves, and a long train draped from the waist, and the neckline was square. She carried calla lilies, and her only ornament was a diamond bow-knot pin, the gift of the bridegroom.

Lois Bily, her sister's maid of honor, wore a Hattie Carnegie model, in shell pink satin, fashioned with puffed sleeves, and a large bow in the back, and a soft straw turban to match, having a starched veil. She carried blue delphinium. The bridesmaids, another sister, Helen Bily, Helen Flannery, sister of the bridegroom, and Louise Brown, all wore gowns made like that of the maid of honor, in blue satin, with bows of blue satin and blue straw turbans with starched veils. Their flowers were pink roses and blue delphinium. John Flannery was his brother's best man, and the ushers included James J. Flannery III, a cousin, Lynn Lawson and Frank Harbison.

The bride's mother wore rose beige lace with long sleeves, a hat to match, and a corsage of orchids. The bride's youngest sister, Marjorie Anne, who sat at the bride's table, wore green satin and mousseline de soie, with a green straw and velvet hat.

The reception and breakfast were held in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association annex. The bride's table was covered with a cloth of blue satin, and the napkins were of blue satin, too. The table was centered with pink roses and blue delphinium lighted by pink tapers in blue Dresden candelabra.

Mr. Flannery and his bride are sailing tomorrow for Bermuda on their honeymoon and after May 1 will be at home in the Pennsylvania Apartments.

Gossipy Chat
By NANCY JANE

Her parents take motion pictures of her constantly, and she adores it. They bought many reels of film to catch her first smile.

For all of two minutes she was broken-hearted because her mother wanted her to hold one of her family of dolls instead of a cork she had found in the kitchen.

At "Sleeping Beauty," given for children at the Nixon Saturday morning under the auspices of the Women's International League of Peace and Freedom, I never saw so many girls with their long bobs brushed back away from the face with a band of ribbon—just like Alice.

Replacing its annual luncheon with a novelty tea, the Lutheran Woman's League will hold the tea tomorrow afternoon in the Mt. Zion Church rooms, Perrysville avenue.

School Opens March 15 For Unemployed Women

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

A practical movement towards the solution of at least one phase of the unemployment problem has been planned under auspices of the women's advisory council of the Salvation Army. Mrs. Edwin D. Miller, chairman of the personal service bureau, brought the idea from New York, where it has been tried with success.

It is this—a home-makers' school free to unemployed women (or any others for that matter) for eight weeks at Utility Hall, beginning March 15 at 2:30 o'clock. Miss Karen Fladoes, director of home service at Utility Hall, will supervise the weekly classes which will furnish recipes and demonstrate them as well as several other things in home-making, such as correct table service. And the course will conclude with a tea for everybody who has attended, volunteers from the classes arranging and serving the tea.

Breakfasts, soups, vegetables, meats, fish, breads, cakes and desserts are the subjects announced. The need for this new venture was suggested to Mrs. Miller through handling the more than 12,000 applications for employment which have come to her since last March.

A greater number of the applicants could have been placed had they known how to cook or do any sort of home service, Mrs. Miller says. She points out further that the new classes will give opportunity to many girls and women to perfect themselves in what they already do know and that there is an exceptionally inviting field for such gifts just now. The hostess, who no longer employs a maid, for instance, prepares a meal for guests, but needs someone to serve it intelligently and correctly. Or in a home where there is sickness, there is need of expert assistance to the woman of the house. And it is to fit women to meet such needs as these and more that the classes are designed.

THE BOAT-SHAPED NECKLINE IS IMPORTANT SPRING STYLE

THERE ARE many indications that the wide neckline that used to be known under the name of the bateau neckline will be an important spring and summer style. The boat-shaped line is appearing more and more in dinner and afternoon dresses. It is even shown in some afternoon coats that are worn with printed dresses buttoning high around the throat.

THIS OLD-NEW neckline appears in many forms. Sometimes it is elliptical in form, sometimes rectangular. Occasionally it is lower at the front than at the back, or vice versa, but more often it is in equal proportions. In practically every case, however, it goes with the type of dress which follows, pretty generally, the lines of the natural figure, with little or no elaboration and with especially soft lines across the front and back. Any decorative touches used at all with this neckline are confined to the sides—in sleeves, shoulder decorations, or sashes that tie at the sides.

Spring Suit Theme

Welcome, indeed, is the latitude of choice in the Spring suit mode. Now, if ever, you may be truly individual.

Is a version of the tailored mode to your taste? We have decorous suits in men's wear fabrics, with slim skirts and jackets tailored to perfection. And tweed outfits that, in addition to the tailored suit, have matching capes or topcoats.

Perhaps you prefer the soft, dressmaker type. If so, costumes are here . . . gracefully caped coats and jackets, lustrously fox trimmed, that are combined with intriguing frocks.

All are "ladies' costumes" . . . and priced exceptionally low with the times.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Neglecting Tumor Is Dangerous

A remarkable collection of strange and unusual cases of tumors was recently shown under the auspices of the New York Academy of Medicine. There were excellent photographs which clearly showed the different types of tumors. It was a remarkable exhibit and of tremendous instructive value to the physicians who saw it.

Dr. Copeland

Today I want to tell you about one of the interesting features included in this exhibit. It was a case of Von Recklinghausen's disease.

"Von Recklinghausen's disease" is indeed a difficult name to pronounce. But it is easier to remember than "multiple neuro-fibromatosis" which is the medical name for this affliction.

The disease is characterized by nodules or small swellings. These are found in the skin, or beneath the skin. They may be on the hand or on the face, but more often they are distributed all over the body.

At times the tumors may hang from the skin. In advanced cases, the skin is stretched and loose. When the nodules are found on the scalp, large folds of skin hang down over the ears or over the face. It is a strange and unusual affliction.

The cause of Von Recklinghausen's disease is unknown. It is a congenital, or hereditary disease. But the nodules may not become conspicuous until late in life. The progress of the disease is slow. The swellings gradually increase in size and new ones appear elsewhere on the body. There is a peculiar discoloration of the skin around the nodules.

I am glad to say that these particular tumors are rarely cancerous. Tumors are divided into two classes, benign and malignant. A malignant tumor contains cancer cells. A benign tumor may resemble a malignant tumor, but is slower in growth, and has no cancer cells. Von Recklinghausen's disease is an example of a benign tumor.

When there are few swellings treatment is easy. The nodules are removed by a simple operation. This operation can be performed under a local anesthesia.

In advanced cases the swellings are spread all over the body and operation is not advisable. However, these cases show excellent results when treated with X-ray or radium. The choice of treatment can only be determined by the physician.

Unfortunately, most sufferers from Von Recklinghausen's disease neglect the affliction. They seek relief after the swellings have grown to a large size and become unsightly, hindering them in their work. In addition, the general health of the afflicted person is undermined and he becomes susceptible to infectious diseases and other ailments.

When in doubt regarding any unusual swelling or tumor, talk with your doctor. He will give you the necessary advice.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: Tickled pink you took advantage of another opportunity to orchid Steve Hannagan and Joe Copps . . . They must be grand newspaper reporters to read your carbon copy about them . . . Here's a swell novelette. He used to adore a chorine at the Hollywood on Broadway . . . Now she's on the Broadway of Hollywood. He used to dine with her at her night club, and now when he dines there nightly alone—he places her photo, a miniature, on the top of a bottle (in the tinfoil) and stares at it between swallows . . . Love, as you so often have quoted, certainly is what makes the world go 'round with that pained expression . . . But I admire him, anyhow . . . I was just telling it to Jim, who parodied it much better. He argued that Love is what makes the world go around with the other guy's wife!

If you want a real treat on the airwaves—then tune in on Lily Pons . . . Oh, dear! What a lark she is! . . . Denis J. Mahoney and Leo Lowenthal, two of the town's better detectives (and I still adore the Brodericks and Cordes), were recommended by two Senators for guard duty for Roosevelt at the inaugural. . . . So Mr. Mulrooney is sending them . . . And why not chuck two orchids at the Police Commissioner for this . . . A woman was arrested. She told a story about having a baby at a hospital five days ago and said that her husband was low with pneumonia . . . Mr. Mulrooney couldn't believe her—so he checked up on her yarn—and found she was telling the truth . . . So Mr. Mulrooney, bless his heart, dug into his own pockets and paid off her immediate needs—and ordered her back into a hospital where she should have remained, anyhow—and then had her ailing husband put in the same hospital near her. . . . There's a man for you, Walter—toast him out loud!

Joan Burgess (Nicky Blair's lovely bride) is at Medical Arts with appendicitis, as is Doc Schiff, who is at Polyclinic. Both doing well, for which thanks . . . I called Manning, but they didn't get any posies. I'll check again . . . Wait'll you see Eddie Garr in "Strike Me Pink!" the new Durante-Velez opera—very funny. He imitates everybody—and looks just like them! . . . Terry Turner is Radio City's special exploiter now. . . . I liked "Melody" very much and the business is capacity, your notice helped a lot, mister, and Mr. George White wants you to know it.

Edwin Baird's "Real America" got off to a good start, as did Paul Milton's Knickerbocker, Jr. . . . Whiteman may play Irv Berlin's new song, which will be a new hit, watch and see . . . It's called "Maybe I Love You Too Much" . . . And the chorus goes: "Maybe it's because I love you too much—maybe that's why you love me so little. . ." . . . Plenty torchy—and a grand Berlin ditty . . . Max Winslow looks better than ever . . . Wonder why that aging soandso has stopped sending you anonymous letters? . . . And if he has been sleeping these past few nights? . . . Nice mans . . . Dudley Field Malone's snapper on your item is immense. What a sensayuma! . . . Billy Glason isn't marrying any widow.

Nellie Revell will be Associate Ed. with the new American Mayfair . . . That Joe Morrison you plugged last week has been signed for that Brice-Olsen air show and he sends you his orchids . . . Washingtonia is a snappy mag in D. C. They claim it is published for Washingtonians who (1) Take Themselves Seriously and (2) Those Who Don't T. T. S. . . . Say, is my face pink? . . . Last fall I said that an astrologer near the Grand Central predicted that an assassin would attempt to kill the President-elect before or on the day of his inaugural . . . I scoffed at such a statement, and now I'm being teased for being such a smarty. And so, as Lyda Roberti says, I apologize to me!

Tell Marlene that Joan of Arc wore male clothes and was burned to death . . . The Literary Guild's March selection is the Andrew Jackson book you credited to the Book of the Month . . . didja know that the Mickey M. animated cartoons, which take 7 minutes to run, require 10 weeks' work and cost $20,000 each, and sometimes they require 125 people to complete? . . . Quite staggering. Makes me Disney to think of it.

Among other people who waste a lotta time hating you is the type of contempt-orary who brags about his scoops, when they really aren't . . . Or the sort who tries to poke fun about anything—considering that the Presidential Cabinet lineup he predicted (as a hot beat months ago) was entirely wrong—not one crashing it! . . . At least, of the crew you rumored would make it—Miss Perkins did! . . . So what? So nothing.—Your Girl Friday.

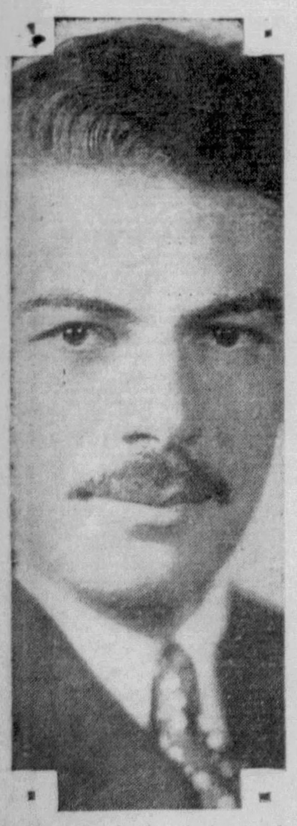
Francis McDonald is featured in "Trailing the Killer," thrill film booked to follow the "Big Drive" in the Fulton.

Drama



Paul Muni, star of stage and screen, will come to the Nixon stage next week in the Elmer Rice dramatic success, "Counsellor-at-Law."

Dempsey and Mix to Be Here Friday

Miss Jordan And McCrea To Team

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 27.

Their first picture may be "Little Clown Lost," a Barry Benefield novel which Wilbur Daniel Steele calls "the finest sentimental romance I have ever read." Mr. Steele, one of the outstanding short story writers in the world, is now out here for RKO. He's adapting the novel for the screen.

Of course, you've heard that Dorothy Jordan is going around with Merian C. Cooper, the new production boss at RKO. With him to see that she gets good roles, Dorothy will have a chance to make Clarksville, Tenn., proud of her.

Miss Jordan

The opportunity will not be long in coming. Radio has bought another story for this team, "After Romance." So far, it's a toss-up which picture will be produced first.

* * *

Dozens of stories are told of the Marx Brothers conferences. Latest is about the writer who was submitting dialogue for their approval. He read a six-line speech. They asked him who it was for.

"Zeppo," he replied.

"Cut it down to 'Well-er—?'" snapped Groucho.

Miss Lane

Iola Lane isn't waiting to spend her $35,000 divorce settlement before returning to pictures. She's up now for a part in Fox's "Husbands Cost Money." Sharon Lynne is another making tests for this picture. . . . The Estelle Taylor-John Warburton romance is going full tilt again. The two were dancing at the Cotton Club the other night. . . . Lee Tracy and Isabel Jewel were at this late-spot, too, and Boots Mallory, with James Dunn.

Remember Margaret Mann, who played the mother in "Four Sons" and who never got another break after that? Well, John Ford has her playing another mother role in "Pilgrimage." Oddly enough, both of these stories are by I. A. R. Wylie . . . Turns out Richard Dix isn't going to sell his hideaway ranch after all. He moved his furniture into his Beverly Hills home, and is doing the ranch-house over. . . On the other hand, Bill Boyd will sell both his Beverly Hills house and beach cottage to move into his new ranch near Malibu.

Poor Marian Nixon. She wants to keep her adopted baby, but the chances are they won't let her. Divorce in the family, you know. Anyway, she hasn't lost the baby yet. And she's hoping . . . It's good to hear that Colleen Moore will make a picture after three years.

Marian Nixon

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is loaning her to Fox for the lead in "Power and the Glory." Colleen says it's a role as dramatic as "So Big." She's all enthusiasm.

Interesting, that New York taxi-driver who watches the papers and meets all the stars. His name is Philip Lewis and he used to work in the transportation department of several eastern studios. Since the armistice, however, he has piloted a taxi. Many of the stars know him by name. He it was who taxied Mary Pickford to various functions on her recent New York trip. Also took her to the Rex when she sailed. And Mary already has paid him in advance to see that Katie Dorsey, her adopted aunt, gets to the Broadway opening of "Secrets" on March 8.

Did you know: That Adolphe Menjou has his shoes, and even his ties, specially made for him?

Police-Firemen V.F.W. To See War Film

Continuing the special nights set aside for war veterans' organizations to see "The Big Drive," World War picture now in the Fulton, Post No. 303, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will go to the Sixth street house tonight. This is the Pittsburgh Police and Fireman's Post, which has a membership of several hundred.

Plays and Players :: By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The first play since George White's "Melody" will light up the Nixon footlights tonight for the premiere performance of a Theater Guild production, "Both Your Houses," fourth in the series of subscription plays. It is a political comedy by Maxwell Anderson, who wrote "Elizabeth the Queen" for the Guild. "Both Your Houses" will be staged with a cast headed by Walter C. Kelly, "The Virginia Judge," and Mary Philips, other members of the company to include Aleta Freel, Sheppard Strudwick, Robert Strange, Morris Carnovsky, Jane Seymour, Jo Bromberg, William Foran, John F. Morrisey and Russell Collins. The engagement is for one week only, with the customary Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

Opening next Monday in the Nixon, "Counsellor-at-Law," Elmer Rice's drama, that had a long run in New York, will be presented, with Paul Muni, star, and other members of the original cast, in the various roles. With Otto Kruger in the part created by Muni, this play did visit cities outside of New York last season, but Pittsburgh was not among them. Seats for this original production will go on sale in the box office Thursday.

Broadways of the World
All In A Day
By Mark Hellinger

(Editor's Note: This is the first of a group of articles written by Mr. Hellinger in Turkey and Egypt and mailed just before he entered the Indian jungles, where he is now beyond communication with the outside world.)

HOTEL TOKATLIAN, ISTANBUL, Turkey.—They held a tea-dance in this hotel—a favorite form of amusement, by the way, in all these countries—and it was the girls who amazed me as they whirled about the floor. They amazed me for the simple reason that it is but 10 years since they were permitted to enjoy any type of freedom whatsoever.

Imagine this, if you will: Only 10 years ago the men and women of Turkey still retained practically all of the customs that had been a part of their religion for thousands of years. A man was not permitted to look upon the face of his future bride until after the marriage ceremony, and no woman would dream of stepping from her home without being heavily veiled.

Enter Kemal Pasha who, by a series of forced moves, entrenched himself in the hearts of the Turks.

"The old Turkey is finished," he cried. "From now on we will live for the new Turkey; the Turkey of the future. We are going to rebuild, and we are going to rebuild by employing common sense."

In decreeing that the women of Turkey need no longer be veiled, however a very radical step in the right direction was effected. That may not sound like a tremendous thing to us Americans who have little knowledge of what the other conditions were. But let me assure you that after studying such a country as Tunis, where the old beliefs are practiced religiously, I can see that Kemal has done a great deal by this one, bold stroke.

The period of time is so small, and the difference is so great. The women are not particularly pretty and, with their newfound freedom, they are employing so much paint and powder that they make themselves in many cases positively ugly. It will evidently take them many years yet to learn how cosmetics should be properly applied. How's that, girlie?

Regardless of the paint and powder, however, there's a certain sense of satisfaction in the whole business. As I sat among these women, I found myself wishing I could talk Turkish—not Turkey— to a few of them. I wanted to ask questions.

How did it feel to be freed from a religious law that made them and their female ancestors little less than slaves? How did they act when they cast away their veils and appeared on the streets for the first time without them?

And I longed for something else, too. When I was through with my questions, I wanted the same woman to be able to ask me some.

"It's all very well for you to question me about some stupid conditions in my country," I wanted her to say, "but how about your own nation? How about the stupidities of your religious prejudices? How about your blue laws that are still being enforced in many sections of America?

"How about the Mooney case? How about the laws against gambling while Wall street has always been permitted to run wide open? How about a film censorship that permits old fools to do as they will? How about so many things? And above all, how about prohibition?"

I couldn't have answered those questions. But it might have done me a lot of good to have heard them . . .

In the evening, while strolling through the city, I came upon a a theater that was advertising a special, four-star, advance, sensational showing of "that mighty jungle thriller"—"Tarzan of the Apes."

Just to get an idea of how foreign audiences reacted to the jungle type of picture, I plunked down two Turkish pounds and was promptly escorted to a seat in a loge. Two Turkish pounds being the equivalent of a dollar in our money, you can readily see that the Turks are no pikers when it comes to charging for motion picture entertainment.

What I saw was the version of "Tarzan" that had been dubbed in French. There wasn't much talk in the original "Tarzan," so the result wasn't too bad.

It was interesting to listen to their reactions. They recognized the phony parts of the Tarzan picture just as quickly as an American audience and, in certain spots, even more quickly.

Aside from the feature, the balance of the program was practically the same as we are accustomed to in our programs in America

Yes—aside from the language—I would have sworn that I was in a Broadway theater. Especially when I looked around and saw that the house was half empty . . .

GRAND DUKE, KIN OF CZAR, DIES

ROQUEBRUNE-CAP MARTIN, France, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Grand Duke Alexander Michailovitch, brother-in-law of the last Czar of Russia, is dead here today at the age of 66.

The Grand Duke, who was grand admiral of the Russian Navy at the time of the revolution, had suffered from a spinal affliction, which his secretary, Arkady Roumanoff, said resulted from an accident on his last visit to New York three years ago.

Widely known as a writer and lecturer, the Grand Duke had lived in Paris most of the time since the Russian revolution.

In addition to the widow, Grand Duchess Xenia Alexandrovna, he is survived by three sons and a daughter, Princess Youssoupoff.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday.

Gas on Burning Ship Impedes Firemen

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—Firemen from four land companies and two fireboats were called today to battle a stubborn blaze which broke out in the hold of the Clyde line steamer Seminole, shortly after it had docked at pier 37, North River.

Efforts of the firefighters were hampered by presence in the hold of large quantities of gas kept there to preserve the fruit which forms a large part of the coastwise steamer's cargo.

OBITUARY

Josiah Speer.

Josiah Speer, 89, who served three terms as Allegheny County Controller, died yesterday at his home on the McKeesport road, Elizabeth. Funeral services will be held at the home at 2:30 Wednesday, with interment in Elizabeth Cemetery.

He was a member of the Masonic lodge of Elizabeth 55 years, and of the Elizabeth Presbyterian Church, where he was superintendent of the Sunday school 50 years.

He leaves a daughter, Mrs. Anna S. Kerr, and a sister, Mrs. Matilda Eckley, of Pittsburgh.

Jacob Harrison Albig.

Jacob H. Albig, McKeesport pioneer foundryman, died at his home in West Newton last night. Thirty-five years ago he founded the Monon-Yough Foundry and Machine Company, which he operated until he retired seven years ago.

He leaves his wife; a daughter, Mrs. Ralph S. Rice, of Bolivar; and two brothers, J. W., of McKeesport, and E. E., of West Newton. He was a Mason and a lifelong member of Christ Evangelical Lutheran Church, West Newton, where funeral services will be held Wednesday.

Lennon Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Annie Roger Lennon, 70, who died Friday at her home, 5430 Broad street, will be held in St. Lawrence's Catholic Church, Penn and Aiken avenues, tomorrow morning.

She was a lifelong resident of Pittsburgh and a member of the Christian Mothers and the L. C. B. A.

She leaves a son, Timothy Lennon, and three daughters, Mrs. Annie Pischke, Mrs. Joseph Beyers and Mrs. Thomas Bowler, all of Pittsburgh.

Debes Funeral.

Funeral services for John Debes, 83, will be held in St. Mary's Catholic Church, North Side, tomorrow morning. He died Friday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles W. Loeffler, 1308 Goettman street, North Side.

He was born in Germany and came to Pittsburgh 63 years ago. Besides his daughter he leaves four grandchildren.

Harry F. Robinson.

Harry F. Robinson, former Pittsburgher, died at his home in Alhambra, Cal., Saturday, according to word received here. He was a member of Geter C. Shidle Lodge, No. 650, F. & A. M.

He leaves his widow.

Pinchot to Send Davis Certificate

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 27.—So far as Gov. Pinchot is concerned, the perturbation of Senator James J. Davis as to whether he will be on the Senate payroll when his new term begins next Saturday is groundless.

Mr. Shields

The Governor has made no public statement on the subject of a certificate of election for the Pittsburgher, but on excellent authority it is known he intended to issue such a certificate before the fourth of March.

His function is prescribed by law, and is purely ministerial.

Even is he believed there was anything questionable about the manner in which Senator Davis was elected—and the Governor does not—his duties in the situation are inescapable.

An example is the certificate Mr. Pinchot issued for William S. Vare, after the election of 1926, when the face of the returns in both primary and general election showed that Vare had been nominated and elected on the Republican ticket. Mr. Pinchot in that instance did question the validity of the election, and attached a rider to the certificate, in the form of a letter to the Vice-President, that he believed the election "partly bought and partly stolen."

But he issued the certificate, despite the sentiments.

Unlikely to Voice Sentiments on Davis

While it is well known the Governor has no high admiration for Mr. Davis, this attitude has nothing to do with the circumstances surrounding his election.

There is little likelihood that these private feelings of Mr. Pinchot will be expressed in anything supplemental to the certificate.

He is known to have been advised by legal minds that to cast any reflection upon the Senator at a time Mr. Davis has a case pending before the courts would be not only bad taste, but poor judgment.

If during actual trial the Governor should make some official statement derogatory to the Senator, the latter's lawyers could utilize that statement in a demand for a mistrial, contending that any observation from the Governor of the state, Mr. Davis represents in the Senate would inevitably have a prejudicial effect upon the minds of the public from which jurors are to be drawn—even though they are in another state.

A statement of the nature the Governor might make would have widest publicity, and would be freely printed in New York newspapers.

Contempt of Court Possibility Seen

There are some Pinchot associates who believe that any expression on the Davis subject from the Governor at any time before final termination of the senator's case might be construed as contempt by a federal court. They admit this is stretching things a bit, but see no necessity for the Governor even remotely involving himself in a controversy.

They even go so far as to say that even should the senator be under conviction—with an appeal pending—the Governor should do no more than issue the certificate. Their position is that Mr. Pinchot knows nothing anyone else doesn't know, and that the Senate rather than Mr. Pinchot, who can act solely in a ministerial capacity in the matter of election, is the judge of the qualification of its own members.

So under any conceivable set of circumstances Senator Davis and his entire office staff, so far as Gov. Pinchot is concerned, will be qualified to draw pay from the Senate next Saturday.

That should be a relief to the mind of the senator, who has been urging his friends in Harrisburg to prod Mr. Pinchot along. He will issue the certificate without prodding.

Youth Refused Job Leaps to His Death

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—Unsuccessful in his quest for employment, Charles Crawford, 22, of Clifton Heights, Delaware County, today leaped from the eleventh floor window of a downtown office building. He met almost instant death.

Shortly before, Crawford had been refused his old job by officials of a company by which he was employed several months ago. Police said he had been an inmate of the Norristown State Hospital at one time.

Savants Here Lay Jig-Saw Fad To 'Thrill of Accomplishment'

MAURENE AND VIOLET ESPEY...WORKING A JIG-SAW LATE AT NIGHT BACKSTAGE, VARIETY

If you are one of those persons who sit up half the night working a jig-saw puzzle, it's all because you are "egged" on by the "thrill of accomplishment," according to a group of Pitt and Tech professors. In explaining the craze that has suddenly gripped the country, Dr. Chester A. Buckner, head of the division of professional education at Pitt, said:

"My attitude is that it is harmless enjoyment. It gives people something to do and then there is the thrill of accomplishment."

Dr. William T. Root, head of the Pitt psychology department, said it was not unusual for human nature to be attracted to anything new and strange. He added:

"The chief emphasis for the fad is social suggestion. There have been other examples of it such as Mah-jong, backgammon, the cross-word puzzle, miniature golf and other crazes that lasted for a while."

Prof. Alexander Kostellow, of the Tech fine arts department, said the puzzles do not have any educational value. He also denounced all belief that they developed one's appreciation of size, color and shape. He said:

"I tried working several but they soon became boring."

Dr. David B. Rodgers, Pitt sociology professor, said:

"The puzzles are an innocuous sort of pastime for people who have no other interests. They are much better for one than loafing at the corner."

QUIZ FOLLOWS BLAST, FIRE IN CLAIRTON

Four Families Periled As Dwellings Burn; Loss $20,000

Deputy Fire Marshal A. W. Devlin today continued investigation of a mysterious explosion and fire that early yesterday imperiled lives of four Clairton families, including 11 children, and caused damage estimated at $20,000.

The blast ripped through a double frame dwelling at 313 Wylie avenue, Clairton, rocking the neighborhood and shattering windows in a radius of several blocks. Several feet of blasting reported found by fireman resulted in questioning of more than a dozen persons by Fire Marshal Thomams L. Pfarr, Police Chief James Brenner and Fire Chief F. C. Tepe, of Clairton. No arrests were made.

James Bird, his wife, Lola, Negroes, and Samuel Rutledge and his wife, Goldie, Negroes, occupants of both sections of the house, fled to the street shortly before the burning building collapsed.

John Doban, 56, of 315 Wylie avenue, his wife, Mary, 46, and five children fled when the flames leaped to the two-story frame structure. The dwelling was destroyed.

Hampered by lack of water, firemen were unable to check the flames before they swept to the adjoining home of John Beatty.

The home of Mike Kereczma, of 319 Wylie avenue, was also destroyed.

The bodies of two dogs were found in the ruins.

Effort to Kill Frick Hurried Conclusion Of Homestead Strike

FROM THE LIFE OF ANDREW CARNEGIE
By BURTON J. HENDRICK

Abridged for exclusive publication in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph by special permission of Mrs. Andrew Carnegie

But another event now changed the criticism that had been falling on Frick's shoulders to a sympathy that was almost as pronounced and widespread. If the Pinkerton onslaught showed this man's character in its least commendable aspect, the tragedy of which he now became a victim brought out the heroic side.

That Frick, during this period, should have moved freely through the streets of Pittsburgh utterly unguarded, and should have remained in his office accessible to any passing caller, had already caused his friends anxiety. A slender, boyish looking figure, dark-haired and sallow—clearly a foreigner—had been observed several times near the headquarters of the Carnegie Steel Company.

This young man described himself as the representative of an employment agency in New York; he could supply any number of skilled workmen, he said, to fill the ranks of the Homestead strikers; and in this plausible capacity he had asked for an interview with Frick. After several postponements the chairman fixed 2 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, July 23. At that time Frick was sitting in his private office at the end of a long table, intimately discussing business with John G. A. Leishman, one of his most valued lieutenants. The door opened and an office boy entered, followed closely by a stranger.

This unannounced appearance and the nervous demeanor of the intruder aroused Frick's suspicions; rising, he advanced. Hardly had he taken a step when the flash of a pistol blinded his eyes. The chairman of the Carnegie company, a bullet in his neck, sank to the floor; the visitor approached and shot again at the prostrate form, the second bullet also landing in his victim's neck.

Raising the weapon once more, the assassin was about to fire a third time, but Mr. Leishman, whose rush in his direction had been impeded by the furniture, seized his arm and threw it upward, the bullet hitting the ceiling. Mr. Leishman then grappled with the stranger, who proved far stronger than his slight figure would have led one to suppose.

Dagger Also Used

As the two men clinched, Frick, weak and bleeding, rose from the floor and ran to the assistance of his friend. In the tussle that ensued both Frick and Leishman spent their energies trying to unloose the pistol from the man's hand; the other hand being free, he was able to draw a dagger from his pocket, with which he stabbed Frick several times, wounding him in no vital spot.

In a few seconds, Frick, with Leishman's aid, had thrown the would-be murderer to the floor. Several clerks, alarmed by the hubbub, had by this time rushed into the office and the man was overpowered.

While the startled group were awaiting the police, Frick, a ghastly sight, stood feebly leaning against his desk, closely scrutinizing the pinioned figure that had sought his death. He was the only cool person in the room.

His first act after the turmoil had subsided was to dictate the following telegram and send it to his mother, his wife and Andrew Carnegie: "Was shot twice, but not dangerously;" with these words added for his chief: "There is no necessity for you to come home. I am still in shape to fight the battle out."

When the surgeons began probing for the bullets Frick refused an anesthetic—if con-

Legislator Balks at Fee Paid Eaton, Associates

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 27.—Gov. Pinchot today denied that the testimony of Chairman Clyde L. King, of the Public Service Commission, before the Senate Public Utility Investigating Committee, could justly be construed as a repudiation of the Pinchot policies on utility regulation.

The Governor asserted that Dr. King, in opposing a people's counsel in the commission, was echoing a Pinchot policy of long standing. The present commission, the Governor said, has been acting as a people's counsel, as it should.

Dr. King is in agreement with his policies, which have not changed, the Governor reiterated, and that should end the flurry caused by interpretations of the chairman's testimony.

UPHOLDS INQUIRY

Investigation of the utility question, the Governor insisted, should go on, and he will make this demand the basis for a special message to the Legislature within 10 days.

The Governor regards as ridiculous suggestions that he should withdraw the nominations of King and Commissioner P. S. Stahlnecker, the Governor's former secretary, which are now in the hands of the Committee on Executive Nominations.

The Governor referred to an interview with Dr. King last Thursday in the Sun-Telegraph, in which the commission chairman said the preliminary report of the Senate committee had justified every charge made by the Governor against utilities. In that interview King said there were still exorbitant rates, a statement he also declared showed the Governor's charges were well founded.

"DR. KING AGREES"

The Governor said:

"That interview with Dr. King shows he agrees with me."

Today's interview was the first the Governor has given since King testified before the committee last week.

Mr. Pinchot said:

"Of course my position on the public utility question has not changed in any respect. Dr. King agrees with me, and that should settle the question.

"So far as Dr. King opposing a people's counsel, that is in exact line with my policy. The commission itself should be the people's counsel, as I have repeatedly declared. The present commission has been doing just that.

"The investigation of the utility question by the Senate committee should go on."

The Governor expressed amusement at the thought he had reversed himself on his utility policies, and facetiously asked who it was thought he had sold out to.

Dr. King and the Governor are expected to confer this afternoon, at which time it is expected Dr. King will discuss his next appearance before the committee, probably this week. He was requested last week by the committee to produce certain data, and said he would have it ready on Tuesday of next week.

CHAIRMAN'S STAND

The Chairman's second appearance will give him the chance to explain to the committee that he was not advising it on a course of action. His prior statement that the committee had investigated sufficiently to determine a basis for changing the utility law, he probably will say, still stands. This, he may continue, gives the committee no warrant to cease investigating charges by the Governor of alleged improper connections between utilities and present

INJURIES FATAL TO BEATTIE

Pneumonia developing from injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile Tuesday caused the death in Montefiore Hospital yesterday of Thomas A. Beattie, 69, general superintendent of the McKeesport works of the National Tube Company. His home was in the Schenley Apartments.

He was born in Pittsburgh and had been in the service of the National Tube Company 50 years. From 1900 to 1929 he was general manager of the company's Riverside works in Wheeling, being transferred from that city to Pittsburgh.

Mr. Beattie was a member of St. Vincent De Paul Catholic Church, in Wheeling, attended St. Paul's Cathedral in Pittsburgh, and was a member of St. Paul's Retreat League of the Holy Name Society.

Besides his widow he leaves four sons, Father Paul Beattie, of Washington; Jerrie Beattie, of Wheeling, and Taylor and Thomas C. Beattie, of Pittsburgh; three daughters, Mrs. Donald B. Parent, of Narbeth, Pa.; Mrs. O. M. Bendure, of Youngstown, O., and Miss Katherine Beattie, of Pittsburgh and a brother, J. A. Beattie, of Pittsburgh.

Lure of Unknown Takes Democrats To Washington

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

The boys are ready to take over the gears of government and make good their honeymoon promises.

We wish them all the good fortune we can spare. They should get something accomplished. For the first time in a long time the White House, the Senate and the House are one happy bungalow colony.

They're all pulling in the same direction like the tooth and the dentist.

We will be down here for the inaugural. We are going to give the boys the benefit of our long marching experience in the opposite direction.

We think Jim Farley has the best job so far. His is an absolute monarchy dating back to the poste royale of Louis the Dozenth of France.

And it seems the rules have never been changed.

IRON COMPANY OFFICIAL DIES

William Ford Moreland, vice president of the Interstate Iron Company, a subsidiary of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation, died yesterday.

He was born in Pittsburgh in 1896, prepared for college at Shady Side Academy and the Hill School, entering Yale University with the class of 1918.

When the United States entered the World War in 1917, he enlisted in the French Ambulance Corps and served with it until he was sent to the French School of Artillery at Fontainebleau. He became a lieutenant in Regiment No. 303, of the French Foreign Legion, serving until the Armistice. He was cited for bravery on several occasions and awarded the Croix de Guerre, which entitled him to act as aide-de-camp to Marshal Foch when he visited Pittsburgh.

At the close of the war Mr. Moreland entered the employ of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation, spending two years at the iron ore mines at Virginia City, Minn., before coming to the general offices of the corporation in Pittsburgh.

He leaves his widow and two children, Barbara Snow Moreland and William Crawford Moreland II, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Moreland, and a brother, Raymond Ford Moreland.

Thieves Take Radio And Movie Machine

Gaining entrance through a rear window, thieves stole a motion picture projector, 1,200 feet of home movie film, a radio, flashlights and batteries from the Star Electric and Construction Company 4917 Second avenue, last night. The robbery was discovered by W. E. Gloekler when he opened the store this morning.

ARSON SUSPECT CAPTURED

Jack Hirsch, 45, alias Ben Hirsch, was to be taken to Cleveland today to stand trial in connection with the Ellington Apartment fire, which killed 13, last June. Hirsch, long sought, was arrested last night by County Detective Peter Connors and Deputy Fire Wardens Joseph Sweeney and Albert Meyer, of Cleveland, as he neared his home, 149 Travella boulevard, East End, in response to a decoy telegram.

Denying knowledge of the fire, Hirsch said he would willingly go back to Cleveland to answer the charge against him. Under indictment with Hirsch are Samuel Neamon, an insurance adjuster, of Brentwood; Paul Childs, a Beechwood boulevard druggist; L. J. Kammons, a former attorney, now in Western Penitentiary on another arson charge, and Ray Turk, proprietor of a barber shop in the burned apartment. All have been charged with complicity in starting the fire.

WOOD ST. FIRE LOSS $1,000

Fire which damaged the six-story Hanan Building, 531-33 Wood street, yesterday was possibly caused by a dropped cigaret, according to Battalion Fire Chief William Graves. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

Downtown firemen confined the flames to the basement. Smoke poured through the building, but did not halt the work of Andrew Sala, a tailor, of 645 Orchard avenue, Bellevue, who stayed at his bench on the third floor.

The second, fourth, fifth and sixth floors are unoccupied. The Hanan & Son shoe store occupies the first and Pfohl and Olney, Inc., a tailoring concern, is on the third.

Struck by an automobile while crossing Seventh street at Penn avenue, J. A. Billig, 60, of 1233 Resaca place, North Side, was injured seriously today. At Allegheny General Hospital it was said his skull may be fractured. Charles C. Wiley, 5125 Dearborn street, was arrested as the driver of the machine.

Seek 2 in Stolen Money Order Case

Police today sought a man and woman who attempted to purchase goods in a department store with a money order believed stolen in a Chicago postoffice robbery last July. The order number was checked and found to tally with a missing order, but before police could be called the couple had vanished.

MacGowan Accepts Call to New York

The Rev. Dr. Robert MacGowan, for 16 years pastor of the Bellefield Presbyterian Church, announced yesterday that he had accepted a call from the Irvington Presbyterian Church, Westchester County, N. Y. He will deliver his last sermon here March 26.

Dr. MacGowan came to Pittsburgh from Lancaster, Pa. He received the degree of doctor of divinity at the University of Pittsburgh in 1919.

Engineer Is Found Dead in Hotel Room

Mr. Bell, who was originally from Chesley, Ont., was a member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, the Engineer's Society and the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Members of his family were expected here today from Chesley.

'SCRIP' SCHEME TO BE TRIED IN HOMESTEAD

Checks to Be Cashed After 27 Persons Indorse Them

Homestead business and professional men have turned to a form of "scrip" to solve their depression ills. The new plan, backed financially by the Citizens Commercial Bureau of Homestead, and secured with cash in the Monongahela Trust Company there, will go into effect Wednesday.

The new "scrip" plan evolves around the payment of obligations by check. The checks of one and five dollar denominations are issued with the understanding the person accepting them, pass them along within 24 hours, and when the check has 27 indorsers, it will be redeemed at the bank for cash.

The system is declared equivalent to the issuance of a 30-day negotiable note, the 27 endorsers representing the 27 average business days of each month. Leo L. Half, president of the Bureau, explained the scheme thus:

"It is a plan we have agreed upon for a 30-day trial period whereby we hope to prove the value of circulating money as compared to hoarded, or stagnant money."

or former commissioners, unless it is looking for an alibi.

He will emphasize that his statement that the commission is doing its work with energy and good judgment pertains only to the members since October 1, 1932, when King became chairman, and has nothing to do with the performance of any commissioner prior to that time.

S. Ray Shelby, a member of the commission for several years, is one who was a Pinchot target. The Governor attempted to remove him in 1926, but was blocked by the courts. When subpenaed to produce private bank and brokerage records before the investigating committee, Shelby obtained an injunction in Fayette County.

DATA SOUGHT

The data sought by the commitee goes back years, before King took control of the commission, and all of the Governor's charges were based on dates prior to October.

The Governor is expected to put some fireworks into his forthcoming message. In demanding continuance of the investigation he is expected to point out that sufficient has been known for some time on which to base tightening of the law. He will insist, however, that the public is entitled to information on extortionate rates permitted by previous commissions.

He will show, it is asserted by one of his advisers, that the Republican organization protected in their jobs commissioners who acquiesced in such rates, and that the public should be armed for political action against a return of such conditions.

He will point out that the commission, as he has reconstructed it, found widespread rate reductions immediately, through formal rate hearings, were physically impossible, and that the commission then inaugurated the plan of informal conferences with utility chiefs, something no other commission has done. When these conferences failed to bring immediate reductions, rate cases were instituted.

CONFER ON FUNDS

Senator John J. McClure, crairman of the investigating committee, and Senator Harry Scott, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, will confer today about action on a resolution asking $100,000 for the expenses of the committee. The committee already has spent or become obligated for $53,000.

Some senators feel the appropriation is too much, and one Republican organization member today hinted the counsel fees charged by Attorney O. K. Eaton, of Pittsburgh, and his associates, acting with the committee, should be shaved.

Eaton put in a bill for $10,000 for himself and $5,000 each for Julius Levy, J. Cullen Ganey and John G. Hervey, associate counsel. These fees have not been paid.

Democratic members of the Senate may join in protest at any effort to drop the investigation, it was announced today by Warren VanDyke, Democratic state chairman. The Democratic Senate bloc will be asked to insist upon passage of the appropriation resolution.

VICTOR CHENKIN | STRING QUARTET

Victor Chenkin, Russian diseur, returned to Pittsburgh last night and gave a lengthy program before the large audience of the Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association. It is by far the most popular program offered so far by the society, and there came encore after encore from this gifted entertainer.

Mr. Lissfelt

His program was made of groups of songs from the Polish countryside, from the French of Pierre Jean De Beranger, songs from the Caucasus and from great Russia, and best of all, from old Hebrew sources, folk songs and Chassidic rituals of glowing comedy and intense fervor and devotion.

Vocally Chenkin is on safe ground, although one never listens for extraordinary effects other than those necessary to help his declamation. As a pantomimist he is marvellously right, though not too subtle. I could not help recalling the exquisite art of Yvette Guilbert while watching Chenkin, and wondering whether he could refine his gesture to compete with her standards.

Not to be misunderstood, Chenkin is by no means a vaudevillian, and when upon a syllable he sings the emotional flights of a medieval worshipper there he gives us art which we might well hope to preserve with Guilbert's Troubadour songs.

As a painter of Ghetto life he has not missed the lighter side of Jewish character. He is not a caricaturist in this case, and both his song and gesture are kindly and amusing. His costumes are obvious, but passable.

PROGRAM

Quartet in F, Major, Op. 135 . . . Beethoven
Gossiping and Quarreling . . . Moussorgsky-Pochon
Refrain de Berceuse . . . Palmgren
Alla Tango Mlonga . . . Erwin Schulhoff
Quartet F. Major . . . Ravel

The reorganized Shapiro String Quartet—Max Shapiro, first violin; William Lockel, second violin; Francis Kletle, viola, and Samuel Kliatchko, cello, gave its first concert yesterday afternoon under the most pleasant conditions in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Kaufmann. For the audience it was an ideal time and place to hear chamber music.

After little uncertainties during the opening Beethoven Quartet the players got their stride and during the several minatures one began to hear the niceties of their playing. Shapiro always stressed these delicate pieces, and I remember with great pleasure "The Dunes" of his former concerts and trust we shall have another occasion to hear that little modern gem repeated. A charming minuet —Scherzo of Zitterbart came as encore after this group.

It was during the Ravel work that I felt the quartet at its very best. The music itself must be intensely grateful. It is neither vague and by no means formless. It is easy to follow for the casual listener and has a spicy tang. Here the quartet showed a sureness of dynamics that speaks well for the following concerts.

Powder Cleans and Whitens Teeth—as nothing else can Outlasts Toothpaste 2 to 1

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder IS ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dull Teeth Become White

For over SIXTY YEARS—dentists everywhere have prescribed Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used.

It cleans off all stains and tartar, and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

Dr. Lyon's is the only dentifrice old enough to prove it can be safely used for life. Free from all grit or pumice, it cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel, as years of constant use have shown.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums, freedom from pyorrhea and the least possible tooth decay.

Lasts Longer—Costs Less

Once you use Dr. Lyon's you will never be satisfied to use anything else. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

In use over 60 years

MORRILL HAILS 'NEW DEAL'

Everybody can expect a new deal after the inauguration of President-elect Roosevelt Saturday, in the belief of Albert H. Morrill, president of Kroger Grocery and Baking Company, who spoke yesterday to more than 1,000 employes at Islam Grotto, North Side. It was the fifth anniversary program of the organization in the Pittsburgh district.

Pointing out that the United States is young and vigorous, with abundant raw materials and agricultural products and with improved general health, he said:

"Right now I believe there is a better business feeling, although it is not shown in dollars and cents. Particularly in the rural stores the business profits are better.

"It is inevitable that things are going to work out for a greater share for everybody. One hundred years from now people will look back at the first 50 years of this era as ones of real and rapid social changes."

Aid Asked in Hunt For Missing Cripple

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your headaches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

SURVEY FINDS UNCERTAIN TREND

The last few weeks have brought a mixture of favorable and unfavorable developments in the business situation, states the Guaranty Trust Company of New York in the current issue of the Guaranty Survey, its monthly review of business and financial conditions in the United States and abroad, published today.

Superficially, the preponderance of events has been on the unfavorable side, the Survey declares. The seasonal advance in business activity since the year-end has been distinctly less marked than usual. Confidence has been impaired by a reappearance of rather serious banking disturbances in some parts of the country, most notably in the state of Michigan, where a banking holiday was declared in order to prevent a possible needless sacrifice of sound institutions.

NAMES PUBLISHED

Such developments seem to have been due, at least in part, to the publication of the names of borrowers from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The latter institution was formed for the purpose of aiding banks and other business organizations that possessed inherently sound assets, in the hope that such support would not only help them to meet current demands but also inspire confidence in their soundness and, to that extent, make actual financial aid unnecessary. The publication of the names of borrowers seems to have gone far toward nullifying the psychological benefits that appeared to be accruing from the corporation's activities.

It is difficult to see what advantages have been gained to offset these rather serious adverse effects, except for the assurance that the corporation has been functioning actively, honestly, and impartially—a fact that there was little or no reason to doubt in the first place.

INFLATION FEARED

Business sentiment has also unquestionably been affected by the fear of the drastic inflationary legislation. This state of mind is particularly unfortunate in view of the probability that it is entirely needless. As nearly as it now can be judged, the outlook for the adoption of any radically unsound inflationary program is very remote. But the very fact that such dangerous measures have been seriously advocated by members of Congress with a considerable amount of popular support has been enough to destroy much of the confidence that had been slowly built up by the improvement in business and financial conditions in the second half of 1932.

The recent disturbances in the banking field, a considerable increase in currency hoarding, shrinkage in bank deposits, decline in excess bank reserves, weakening of dollar exchange, and softness in Government bonds, all serve to call attention to the importance of maintaining confidence in the public mind as the first requirement of stabilization and business recovery, the Survey declares.

BUSINESS :: Should Corporations Protect Accounts Of Officials?

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

WHEN THE 1929 crash took place, a large proportion of the executives of leading corporations found themselves holding more stock in their own companies than they could carry. In many cases these men had been encouraged to buy this stock by their immediate superiors. In following this advice the executives borrowed heavily from their banks and put the stock up as collateral.

Recently it has been disclosed that some corporations have made a practice of guaranteeing these stock accounts of their officials and key executives or of using corporation assets to assist individual executives.

The practice naturally raises the question:

"To what extent has a corporation a right to use its assets to protect officials and executives from the loss of their stock holdings?"

Employe Ownership Plan Well Grounded

IN THE 10 years preceding 1929 the employe ownership idea took deep root in American industry. A large proportion of the outstanding corporations became so convinced that efficiency could be increased by executives and other workers having a share in the profits that they launched campaigns to sell stock to employes. In most cases arrangements were made for installment payments through periodical payroll deductions. Many of the corporations made arrangements to provide stock to employes below the open market price or to give special bonuses to employes who held the stock for specified periods.

Some of these plans involved considerable expense, but the cost was believed to be justified through the advantage of giving the employes broader interest in the welfare of their organization by making them partners. Except in cases where stock was sold at highly inflated market prices, the idea may be expected to stand the test of time.

There appears to be little cause for complaint against the expense involved in carrying out employe stock ownership plans of this type, but the problem takes a different light when corporation assets are used to help officials and executives who have bought stock in the open market and then have pledged it as collateral for loans.

In the case of the employe ownership plans, the companies have direct control over the entire process and have assumed a certain responsibility in asking their employes to buy their stock. In the second case the executives are not engaged in a company-sponsored plan but merely made purchaser as individuals and financed these purchases through outside agencies.

Shows Favoritism To Certain Holders

IN GUARANTEEING the stock accounts of their executives, the corporations are using assets which belong to all their stockholders to help a particular group of stockholders. The way is opened for officials to make widespread use of corporation assets to finance their personal speculations and financial operations. It can readily be seen that the practice could get out of control and might cause serious losses to the corporations and, incidentally, to the remaining stockholders.

Some of the financial events of the past year have shown the importance of drawing a sharp line between the affairs of corporations and the affairs of the individuals engaged in their management.

Last week testimony before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee showed that the National City Bank of New York had loaned about $2,600,000 to officials to cover their open market commitments in the bank's stock. Only about 5 per cent of the loans have been repaid.

While it was maintained that this was done to uphold the morale of the officials, the desirability of the practice appears questionable.

Incidentally the bank does not appear to have extended similar assistance to stockholders who were not part of the bank's official family.

Practice Being Followed Here

SOME PITTSBURGH corporations have been following the practice of guaranteeing the loans contracted by their executives to purchase their stocks. In the annual report of the Harbison-Walker Refractories Company the following appears:

"It has always been the policy of your company to encourage, to a liberal extent, its officers, key men and employees, in the ownership of its securities, particularly of its common stock. It is the opinion of the officers and board of directors of your company that the satisfactory and unbroken record of earnings (until the past year) since its organization in 1902, is due, to a very considerable extent, to the loyalty, efficiency and good management of your operating organization, inspired by employees' stock ownership.

"As a consequence of the drastic deflation of the past three years, a number of key men, including some of the officers, finally reached the point where the equity in their holdings of the company's common stock, built up over a period of years, was practically exhausted. After due consideration of the situation and the probable effect on the interests of your company, it was deemed expedient to safeguard these holdings by lending to these employees, for collateral purposes, 15,700 shares of common stock and by guaranteeing to the banks certain fixed prices for the common stock of your company owned by the makers of the loans and pledged thereon. The guaranteed price has not exceeded $15 per share in any case. No loss in these guarantees is considered probable, and a very moderate improvement in business conditions should relieve the company of them."

Harbison-Walker common is now selling in the vicinity of 6¾.

Kroger Equipment Budget Increased

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Appropriations totaling $2,100,000 for new construction, automotive, manufacturing and sundry equipment will be made by the Kroger Grocery and Baking Company in 1933, says Albert H. Morrill, president. This is larger than the 1932 total.

Simple Cipher Should Provide Amusement

Cipher Editor

Here's Cipher No. 64. It's submitted by Walter D. Crumine, of 1013 Jancey street. Although it is a simple one you will find it very amusing.

In Tuesday's Sun-Telegraph you will find a tip that will help. Watch for it. It may give you the key. Anyhow, see what you can do without any help.

Did you have any trouble with Cipher No. 63? It was really hard, wasn't it? The table printed today shows how the letters in the alphabet were obtained. It should all be clear now.

The answer was:

"To thine ownself be true, and it will follow as the night the day, that thou cans't not be false to any man."

MANAGER TELLS OF BUILDING PROBLEMS

Managing an office building is a continual experience in human psychology, according to Anthony H. Clark, manager of the Benedum-Trees Building, past president of the Building Owners and Manufacturers Association and president of the Oakland Board of Trade.

Mr. Clark speaks from 22 years' experience in office building managing. He said:

"A good-sized skyscraper has a population equal to that of many a township or borough and its maintenance is a complicated problem involving both management and diplomacy."

The modern building manager must be a philosopher, a psychologist, an engineer, a designer, a craftsman and counsellor to the occupants of his building, Mr. Clark said. He must realize his responsibility for the safety and welfare, not only of his tenants, but of the public and the hundreds of employes whose business it is to make the office building machinery run smoothly.

The elevator traffic constitutes the most human part of a well regulated building, Mr. Clark said. The problem of taking care of rush or peak hour traffic is a hard one. The ideal elevator operator is an intelligent automaton, who is always courteous, careful, neat, punctual, alert, respectful and silent.

The mechanics of office building management involve many miles of pipe lines, many miles of telephone and electric light wire, all concealed from sight, yet easily available for repairs. A pure water supply must be maintained to guard the health of tenants.

The modern building knows no holidays. All machinery must be in duplicate or triplicate to assure continuous, uninterrupted service. Mr. Clark has been dealing with office tenants in the Benedum-Trees Building, Fourth avenue, since 1911. He said:

"I believe in sacrificing schedule to convenience in elevator service. If one of our elevators passes a tenant or client on a floor, it stops, comes back up and gets him. When a tenant asks to have a desk moved, or some other service done, it is done immediately, not tomorrow or next week. Office tenants are like a family. Indeed they spend nearly as much time in their office home as they do in their private homes. They come to me often with their private business troubles. Personal relationships have helped me to mould these office inhabitants into a business community."

ENGINEER JOINS TUBE STAFF

Rudolph Furrer, recently chief engineer and director of research of the A. O. Smith Corporation, Milwaukee, Wis., and one of the most prominent research engineers in the pipe industry, has been appointed assistant to the operating vice president of the National Tube Company, it was announced today by F. W. Waterman, president.

Mr. Furrer has been active in designing electric pipe welding plants and equipment and has been identified with practically every step in the adoption of that type of pipe in the oil and gas industries. He comes to the National Tube Company to extend the research and engineering studies of the engineering and operating repartments.

JERSEY BACKS A. P. I. POLICY

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey today advocated active support of the American Petroleum Institute's program for curtailing oil production.

"Mere acquiescence" in the principles enumerated recently by the institute is not enough, said the company's official publication The Lamp.

The periodical enumerated the following as main principles in the institute's program: Holding of current production to actual market demand, restriction of output from new fields to the utmost legal limit, production by each state and each pool to be prorated on a fair basis, and the extension of the principles covering domestic production to the producing fields of other exporting countries.

Control of crude production, said The Lamp, is essential "not only to the petroleum industry but in the public interest." It strongly urged the strict and effective enforcement of conservation measures.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—At the request of the Senate, the Federal Trade Commission will soon begin an inquiry into the causes of recent petroleum price reductions and whether oil cost at the wells was determined by any corporation or group of corporations.

M'KECHNIE TO RESTORE SLIDING PIT

ONE BIG LEAGUE manager who is bent on restoring a spectacular feature to baseball by stressing baserunning this year is Bill McKechnie. The Wilkinsburg man is determined that his Boston Braves shall show more dash and pick up additional ground on the paths, and to that end he is going to revive the old sliding pit in the spring training camp at St. Petersburg. Boston discarded the sliding pit years ago. So did many other clubs. Fear of injury was the reason. But McKechnie is going to bring it back and is confident of getting gratifying results.

Bill McKechnie

Bill thinks sliding has been all too generally neglected in recent years. Many players do not know how or when to slide. One of McKechnie's own men, Red Worthington, went out last year because of a broken leg suffered in a slide that was unnecessary in a game against Pittsburgh. The Brave skipper plans to correct the weakness and expects to develop far greater ground-covering and run-getting ability on his club, which last year stole only 36 bases and scored fewer runs than any other major league team except the Reds and the Red Sox.

IT IS M'KECHNIE'S argument that many a tight, close ball game has been lost because a runner could not get an extra base on a long hit, or because he could not slide properly to a base. Bill's decision to restore the sliding pit as a means of improvement is enthusiastically approved by President Emil Fuchs

"I am not one of those who believe that the old-timers were superior to the present generation of ball players," says Fuchs, "but you'll have to admit that most of the present-day clubs ignore sliding. We'll try to bring back that bit of picturesque baseball."

EVERY FOLLOWER OF college sports in the Pittsburgh district mourns the death of Johnny Luch and extends sincere sympathy to the family of the former University of Pittsburgh athlete, whose career came to a tragic end yesterday in a local hospital, following an operation.

A letter man in track and boxing as well, Johnny had been best known to the public as a football player, and though he did little playing last season he had previously built up a proud record as one of the best, cleanest and most popular athletes that Pitt ever had, and a model student in every respect.

RECALLING THAT 20 years ago baseball was dominated by Irish and German players, Gordon Cobbledick invites attention to what this season's major league rosters reveal. There are Comorosky, Pietrewski (Piet) and Swetonic, of the Pirates; Cohen, Rosenfeld, Lopez and Cuccinello, of the Dodgers; Goldstein and Greenberg, of the Tigers; Kisloski, Cihocki, Merena, Madjeski, Freitas and Kiloski-Cole, of the A's; Kowalik and Szimanski (Simmons), of the White Sox; Lazzeri, Crosetti and Jablonowski, of the Yankees; Vergez, Luque and Mancuso, of the Giants; Grabowski, of the Phillies; Urbanski, of the Braves; Spognardi, of the Red Sox, and in addition to having Puccinelli, the Cards have even added a Hawaiian, Nobriga.

Roger Peckinpaugh

BASEBALL'S QUICK CHANGES are emphasized again in the case of Roger Peckinpaugh, who tonight will lead the Cleveland club southward for the sixth successive year. Only one man in the majors outranks Peckinpaugh in point of continuous managerial service with a single club, the lone exception being Connie Mack.

Burt Shotton, of the Phillies, is tied with Peck with five campaigns to his credit, having started at the same time in 1928. Bill McKechnie, of the Braves, and Bucky Harris, of the Tigers, have been managing for a longer time, but McKechnie has served three clubs and Harris two.

THE ONLY CLEVELAND manager to hold the job longer than Peck in that city's 32 years of membership in the American League was Tris Speaker. The latter put in seven years at the post, from 1920 to 1926, inclusive, leading the Indians to their only pennant, also the world title, in 1920.

Other Cleveland pilots were Jim McAleer, one season; Bill Armour, two and a fraction; Napoleon Lajoie, four full seasons and parts of two others; Jim McGuire, two; George Stovall and Harry Davis, each part of one year; Joe Birmingham, two and a fraction; Lee Fohl, four; Jack McCallister, one.

THE ANNUAL PICKING of all-star hockey teams is now on, and a new idea is a lineup and three alternates, with one man from each club in the National League being given a place. The selections were made not solely on the basis of playing ability, but with a view to naming the most popular player and best drawing club on each team. One former Pirate and several old visiting Pittsburgh favorites are included. The regular lineup shows ex-Pirate Roy Worters, of the New York Americans, at goal; Ching Johnson, New York Rangers, and Eddie Shore, Boston Bruins, defense men; Howie Morenz, Les Canadiens, center; Baldy Northcott, Montreal Maroons, left wing, and Don MacFayden, Chicago Blackhawks, right wing. The alternates are Hec Kilrea, Ottawa Senators; Red Horner, Toronto Maple Leafs, and Herb Lewis, Detroit Redwings.

IN SPECULATING AS to the outcome of the Grand National Steeplechase of 1933, which will be run off March 24, the dopesters are no longer making a prediction that used to be considered perfectly safe. There was a legend that the first horse over the last barrier would always win the race.

But that's all out now. It was ditched six years ago. In 1927, when only seven out of 37 starters finished, Sprig, a horse owned by a 75-year-old woman, took the final jump several lengths behind Stephen Sanford's Bright Boy, and then came on to win the race in the greatest finish in the history of the classic.

SPEAKING OF MIXED attractions, how about a Jewish boxer meeting an Italian for a world championship on an Irish holiday? Ben Jeby, Jewish holder of the middleweight title, will defend it against Vince Dundee in New York in the outstanding fistic feature of St. Patrick's Day.

Jack Dempsey

These fighters already have met twice—in 1930 and 1931—with Dundee winning the decision each time. But Jeby has improved greatly in the meantime, while Dundee appears to have gone back, so a turning of the tables is not improbable.

FOLLOWING THE CONFERENCE which Jack Dempsey is to hold in New York this week with those interested in landing the Max Schmeling-Max Baer fight for one of the big baseball parks there, it may not be long until the site of the June battle is announced definitely. Though Dempsey may be expected to play one city against another up to the last minute, he is said to have strong leanings in favor of Chicago with its World Fair crowds. Schmeling is to return to this country early in April, when he and Dempsey immediately will go on an exhibition tour, with Jack refereeing all of Max's bouts. Dempsey and Schmeling will stick to the Eastern half of the country, with Baer touring the West to stir up interest. Both fighters are to start training the middle of May.

WELTER RIVALS DO BATTLE IN FOURTH BOUT

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

"If Wolfe won their last fight, he won all three of them."

Sez who? Sez Ray Foutts, manager of Ted Yarosz, the welterweight pride of Monaca Pa. and not of the Monaca Club of which you have been reading so much in the papers these last few days.

Ted Yarosz

Eddie Wolfe

The statement requires a bit of amplification. The idea the rather smooth-talking Foutts, the Earl of East Liverpool, O., desired to convey was that if Yarosz didn't win his third battle with Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, of Memphis, in the Motor Square Garden ring some weeks ago, then he didn't come close to winning in their first two meetings, for he says this was the most decisive of their battles. Their first bout, in Detroit, was THAT close, and Yarosz received the decision. Then they fought in Madison Square Garden, New York, and the bout was called a draw, with Yarosz far off form and failing to hit his stride until the closing rounds. In their third bout, in the Garden here, they battled on even terms for eight rounds and then Wolfe began to wilt and Yarosz came on to grab himself a winning margin, but the judges disagreed and the referee found for Wolfe, ending at some 60 professional battles a string without a decision being entered into the books against Yarosz.

TED RULES FAVORITE

Yarosz thought he won that third battle, and kicked up quite a fuss in his corner. Later, they tried to console him in his dressing room, but every time they ran out of words he came back with:

"But I WON this fight. They can't tell me different."

And so now they're at each other again in a "rubber" battle which may be their last meeting. Despite the decision against him in their most recent clash, Teddy has been installed the favorite by the sharpers who like to bet on such things as boxing bouts and wail about them afterward. Yarosz is so full of that vibrant, fighting spark and has been such a consistent winner that he's figured a good risk for any man's money. Also, he's a student of the game. He tries to figure out ways and means of improving himself. Coming by a rough and ready style of mixing naturally, he has gradually toned it down because of a realization that it bordered upon infringement of the rules. He depends upon excellent condition and an overwhelming aggressiveness to keep his opponents in subjection. He is of the type that could fight all night without tiring.

KNOCKOUT POSSIBLE

As for this fourth battle with Wolfe, whose style blends with his in such a manner as to give him his hardest matches, Yarosz believes it will settle for once and all the question of his superiority. He has had time to figure out the mistakes of their earlier meetings. He has gone to the trouble of engaging sparring partners as nearly alike as possible to Wolfe in build and fighting style, and has shortened up his right-hand punches, so many of which were wild when they last met. He has hurt Wolfe at least once in each of their fights, and he believes that if he gets any sort of a break he may be able to stop his rugged foe, although he is not generally regarded as a knockout puncher.

WOLFE RUGGED FOE

What about Wolfe? Just sawing wood and saying nothing. Satisfied to let his efforts in the ring speak for themselves. This will be his fourth showing here. He lost a decision to Tony Herrera in a bout in the Meyers Bowl which the fans thought he really won; knocked out Pee Wee Jarrell, and then was the first opponent to grab a decision against Yarosz.

WELL-MATCHED FIVES CLASH TONIGHT

By JULIUS LEVIN

The second round of the annual W. P. I. A. L. basketball elimination series will be inaugurated in the Pitt Stadium pavilion tonight when Ambridge, champion of Section IV, encounters Mt. Lebanon, champion of Section IX.

Henry Leucht

Mt. Lebanon, coached by Henry Leucht, is making its second appearance in two years in the tournament as standard-bearer of Section IX, while Ambridge is back as the Section IV representative after a year's absence.

Last year Aliquippa High represented Section IV in the eliminations and was vanquished by Mt. Lebanon in a second round engagement, 23 to 17. Mt. Lebanon bowed in the quarter-finals to Ford City, 40 to 17.

The present Ambridge team is one of the best ever to represent Section IV in the tournament and scholastic fans who have seen the Rubenstein-coached passers in action are picking them to go far in the tournament.

TEAMS WELL MATCHED

The contest looms as one of the best of the early-round games and should prove a thriller from start to finish as both teams have compiled enviable records.

Two of the mainstays of the Ambridge quintet are Eddie Gutowski and John Michelosen. These two athletes were protested by Aliquippa, but the decisions committee of the W. P. I. A. L. ruled in their favor and they will be in the lineup against Mt. Lebanon tonight.

The Mt. Lebanon quintet was one of the surprises in last year's tournament and may prove a stumbling block to Ambridge which is making a determined bid to win its second successive major athletic championship. Ambridge was crowned class A football champion without opposition last fall.

The champions of Section IX are one of the best supported teams enrolled in the W. P. I. A. L. and indications are that tonight's game will draw the best crowd of the tournament to date.

The winner earns the right to meet the survivor of the East Pittsburgh - Leetsdale - Bellevue games in the quarter finals on Thursday, March 9.

GREENSBURG PLAYOFF

While Ambridge and Mt. Lebanon are tangling in the Pitt Stadium pavilion tonight, the Greensburg High School floor will be the scene of a playoff game between Norwin and Sewickley Township for the championship of Section XI. The teams finished in a deadlock for the sectional crown and the winner tonight earns the right to engage the Scottdale-Connellsville winner in Section X in the quarter-finals at Greensburg on Tuesday, March 7.

South High and Perry High are marking time for the opening battle of the post-season series for the City League championship, scheduled for tomorrow afternoon in the Pitt Stadium pavilion.

While many scholastic fans have established South, Section I champion, the favorite, Perry will not be without supporters in the series. South will present a veteran team against the Section II champions, while the Perry lineup will include two boys who saw very little action in the first half of the season. South did not lose a man in the February graduations, while Perry lost two dependable performers in Arthur Geis and Jimmy Manning.

SOUTH UNDEFEATED

South won the Section I title without dropping a decision, scoring a clean sweep in its 12 league engagements. Perry likewise compiled a fine record by winning 11 out of 12 league games, South Hills being the only school to defeat the Smith passers in Section II.

The series brings together the two leading scorers in the City League in Bill Jesko, of South, and Bob Kornick, of Perry. The second game of the series will be played Friday and the third, if necessary, a week from tomorrow.

LOCAL SKATERS WIN TITLES

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—A frail but wiry Canadian, Alex Hurd, of Hamilton, Ontario, last night won the North American ice championship by defeating his countryman, Frank Stack, of Winnipeg, defending champion, in the North American championship meet here.

The diminutive Hurd compiled a total of 170 points, winning the quarter, half- three-quarter, mile and two-mile finals tonight and coming in second in the five-mile final last night.

Harry Hasley, of Pittsburgh, won the juvenile title by taking the 440-yard race; Bob Ingbretson, of Milwaukee, was second and Phil McGrath, St. Louis, third. It was the only juvenile event. John Deni, of Pittsburgh, won the senior two-mile laurels.

Feminine honors went to a tall, smooth-sailing girl from Wisconsin, Madeline Horn, of Beaver Dam, who won the women's continental title with 70 points, outskating Hattie Donaldson Briggs, of Toronto, by 10 points. Miss Horn, representing Oconomowoc, Wis., won only the 880-yard race, but took two second places to win from Miss Briggs and Dorothy Franey, of St. Paul. The St. Paul girl set one world's record in the one-sixth mile race, and tied the record of 44.2 seconds for 440 yards, held by Elsie Mueller, New York.

U. S. Skate Stars Win In Finland

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Feb. 27. — (AP.) — Two American skaters, Eddie Schroeder, of Chicago, and Bert Taylor, of New York, turned in victories yesterday in the second day of the international speed skating meet to share honors with the Finnish stars, Clas Thunberg and Miss Verne Lesch.

Schroeder won the 5,000-meter race in 8:52 2-10, leading Heyden, of Holland, and Lindell, of Finland, across the finish line. Taylor's triumph came in the 500-meter event.

SPORT VIGNETTES

"Darn 'em," is the advice of the baseball fans as Eddie Collins and a millionaire pal buy the Boston Red Sox, who have been run down at the heel and sticking out at the toes all of these years.

Now the secret is out . . . The secret of why Mose Butch came out fighting as a southpaw and continued boxing in the unorthodox manner throughout in his recent bout with Fidel LaBarba at the Garden, after having turned around in earlier engagements . . . He had a bad right side, received in a bout with Ross Fields and aggravated in a battle with Matty Matheson at Youngstown the week before he met LaBarba . . . The idea of turning around against LaBarba was to make Fidel get past his extended right hand before getting a shot at the injured portion of his anatomy, and it was wise strategy, in view of the fact that LaBarba's best blow is a left hook to the body or head.

Ray Foutts, manager of Ted Yarosz, was very much interested in the announcement that doctors, in the final analysis, attributed the death of Ernie Schaaf after his collapse against Primo Carnera to the fact that he was suffering from a swelling of the brain as an aftermath of a siege of influenza a few weeks before his last fight . . . A few months ago, Yarosz went to Detroit to box Paulie Walker and developed a cold and a touch of influenza and Foutts informed the promoter four days in advance of the bout that if Ted didn't improve he would not let him fight . . . On the day of the bout, the boxing commission physician examined Yarosz and pronounced him fit . . . The fever had left him and his pulse was normal, but Ted had been forced to break training and was not feeling right . . . Foutts called off the match and Yarosz was suspended in all of the states allied with the National Boxing Association . . . And now they say Schaaf died because he entered the ring too soon after an attack of the dread flu weeks, not days, before a bout.

Baby Arizmendi, the Mexican star, who boxes Freddie Miller for the latter's N. B. A. featherweight title in Los Angeles tomorrow night, began boxing when he was eight years old and has had close to 300 battles, winning 275 of them and losing only to Johnny Farr, Tommy Paul and Battling Battalino.

—HARRY KECK.

COLUMBIA GETS CLEAN BILL

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—A committee of five, appointed to investigate Columbia University athletics after charges of professionalism were brought by the college paper, The Spectator, not only have cleared the school system of all suspicion, but advised greater facilities for athletic participation.

In an exhaustive report, filed with Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, the committee, headed by Linsly R. Williams, found no evidence of favoritism toward athletes, either as candidates for admission, as applicants for work about the school, in class room work, or the awarding of scholarships.

The report said the committee was convinced that the athletic association formerly made direct efforts to obtain football players, but that this practice was discontinued 18 months ago when control of athletics was placed directly under university authority.

The suggestion was made that every player in the future contribute to or work for his board at training table, in contrast to the present arrangement where those boys who ordinarily live at home and would be spared the extra expense do not contribute to training table costs.

Aside from these points, and the observation that the salary of the head football coach, Lou Little, is "high when compared to salaries paid to the teaching staff of the college," the report defended vigorously the manner of conducting athletics at Columbia.

BUCS RESUME DUAL DRILLS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., Feb. 27.—The Pirate pitchers and catchers this morning were loaded with pep as they made ready for two more drills on the Paso Robles park. The rest and relaxation of yesterday were just the thing needed to add spice to the intensive training which Manager Gibson inaugurated last Thursday.

Two long drills were on the card, but they held no fears for the players who for the most part had rid themselves of the soreness which slowed them down after the early workouts of last week.

STARS ON WAY

Boss Gibson plans to drive his men at a rapid clip in the three succeeding days so that the sharpshooters will be able to show a lot of class to the "ball-players" who are due in camp Wednesday night. The batterymen, especially the catchers, know a lot about the national pastime, but they all are ready to admit, especially the pitchers, that the cream of the club is on the way to camp. The real fun will begin to pop as quickly as the Waners, Pie Traynor, Fred Lindstrom, Gus Suhr, Tony Piet, Arky Vaughan, et al, arrive on the scene.

The players in camp spent Sunday afternoon in various ways. The only workout consisted of a two-hour drill from 10 o'clock until noon. The athletes had the afternoon and evening to themselves.

Honus Wagner was the guest of a deep-sea fishing party. The returns are not all in, but when they are they should make a real story. A local sportsman had a car ready for Wagner at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. Wagner would not ask to be excused from practice, but the veteran had taken off seven or eight pounds, and Gibby ordered him to go fishing.

HONUS GOES FISHING

Now Wagner loves to fish, but fishing in the deep Pacific was something else again. Nevertheless he went over the mountains to the broad waters about 11 o'clock. He was told he would

School Ice Teams Resume Play Tonight

Central Catholic meets Dormont and Arnold takes on University School in tonight's Interscholastic Hockey League competition. The Central Catholic pucksters are leading the league with two victories and no defeats.

The first game will get underway at 7 o'clock, with the teams alternating each 10 minutes.

RADICAL RULE CHANGES EFFECTED BY PRO GRIDDERS

NATIONAL LOOP HEADS CLOSE CONFAB HERE

By TOM BIRKS

Radical changes in the rules, designed to speed up the offensive part of the game, were passed by the owners and officials of the National Professional Football League during the two-day session that ended at the Hotel Fort Pitt yesterday afternoon.

At the conclusion of the conclave, President Joe E. Carr, of Columbus, O., stated that in his opinion, the organization had accomplished the greatest bit of legislation to make the game more attractive since the organization of the league.

CHANGES REVOLUTIONARY

While the changes are revolutionary, the magnates and coaches feel that the fans approve the moves to speed up the game.

As was reported in yesterday's Sun-Telegraph, the rule governing the throwing of forward passes behind the line of scrimmage was changed. Passes may be thrown from anywhere behind the line of scrimmage.

The rules also were changed to bring the goal posts back to the goal line and the 10-yard sideline zone also was adopted, following in the footsteps of the colleges to do away with the out of bounds play. The penalty for clipping was left at 25 yards.

TIME OUT WARNING SET

In the matter of times out, officials in the future must notify the coaches when a team has had three times out. If this notification is not given the five-yard penalty for more than the legal times out will not be inflicted.

Another radical change was the action of the owners appointing President Carr to draw up a balanced schedule for the schedule committee to pass upon when the annual meeting is held in Chicago in July.

The fumble rule caused quite a controversy. A number of coaches wanted the rule changed to permit a fumbled ball being advanced, but the more conservative members figured that such a change would affect the offenses, with backfields taking less chances with the pigskin.

Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Cleveland and Cincinnati applied for franchises. The local and Philadelphia bids hinge upon the outcome of the blue law fight.

ROONEY SEEKS FRANCHISE

Art Rooney, prominent North Side sportsman, had quite a long session with President Carr yesterday and while it was reported that Rooney stood an excellent chance of landing the franchise here, it was admitted that other parties were interested in running a team here.

run into some wonderful members of the finny tribe. Honus was informed that the sinkers used on the lines had to be "plenty" heavy, but this sally did not scare him to the extent that he lost his humor. He remarked:

"Well, boys, maybe I am out of luck, but the heaviest things I brought along for sinkers are coupling pins. If they are not heavy enough I guess I better go back."

Earl Sheely, former Pirate first baseman, who owns a ranch five miles out of Paso Robles, entertained some of the Pirates last night at a dinner party.

The Pirate camp was brightened by news from the home of Floyd Vaughan, near Los Angeles. An eight-pound baby girl has arrived to add to the happiness of the young shortstop and his wife. The baby's name will be Patricia Ann Vaughan. She was born on Washington's Birthday.

SECOND SQUAD EN ROUTE

The second party of Pirates is en route to Paso Robles today, with a stop scheduled in Kansas City, where Paul Waner is to be picked up and later on, at Herrington, Kan., Outfielder Forrest Jensen will join the squad.

Rosies Play Three Floor Games Here

Three appearances will be made in Pittsburgh this week by the Cleveland Rosenblum-Celtics professional basketball team.

The Rosies meet the Irene Kaufmann Settlement team on the latter's floor tomorrow night, an all-star team at Motor Square Garden Friday night and stage an exhibition at popular prices for children in the South Side Market House, Saturday afternoon.

Cookie Cunningham, Shang Chadwick and Pip Koehler will be among the players in the lineup of the opposing team in the Garden game, for which tickets are being handled at Spalding's.

Ambridge High School, champion of Section IV, meets Mt. Lebanon, champion of Section IX, in a second round game of the W. P. I. A. L. basketball eliminations in the Pitt Stadium pavilion tonight. Ambridge will be out to avenge a 23-17 defeat Mt. Lebanon inflicted on the Section IV representative in last year's tournament. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

SQUASH STARS SCORE WINS

MATCHES TODAY

5:15 p. m.—C. A. Woods, Jr., vs. Karl G. Wolfe; H. A. Robinson vs. Charles Lockhart; D. J. Schneider vs. William Hutchins; G. W. Kelper, Jr., vs. P. G. Sullivan.

5:30 p. m.—Graham McCargo vs. William A. Gordon.

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Dr. John O'Loughlin, P. A. A. entrant and top ranking district tennis star, and J. O. Craig, Keystone Athletic Club luminary, blazed the trail into the quarter-finals of the second annual City Class B Squash Racquets title tourney at the K. A. C. yesterday and this afternoon languish in repose as a dozen fellow-aspirants to the crown mingle in third-round combat to complete the bracket of eight. Six contests grace today's bill and virtually all of them loom as heated engagements.

O'LOUGHLIN WINS

O'Loughlin cantered into the last octet through default of Herb Lytle, veteran home-club ace, and a quick, straight-game victory over W. P. Berg, another Keystoner. Craig kept pace with the Winged Head net ace through defaut of Foster, Pittsburgh Golf Club performer, and decisive success in fracas with Dr. George Booth of the P. A. A., 15-12, 15-10, 15-12.

Meanwhile such favorites as Bill Gordon and Quizzer Woods, Edgeworth Club satellites; Charley Lockhart, Pittsburgh Golf Club hope; Bill Hutchins, crack Winged Head youth and D. J. Schneider, Keystone sharpshooter, slashed into stanza three in consecutive games. All five flashed impressive form and should register sturdy bids to crash the latter cantos.

Jean Caspar, K. A. C. contender, copped a speedy tussle from "Rod" Flannery, P. A. A. giant, but was forced to come from behind to do so, and edged out the triumph only after traveling to 11-15, 15-12, 15-10, 15-12. Graham McCargo, clever Pittsburgh Golf Clubber, met a worthy foe in A. W. Schmidt of the Keystone, but owned enough stamina and carried enough artillery to nose out 15-8, 12-15, 15-4, 17-14 decision.

TORRID PLAY AHEAD

In the lone limit fray of the session, Paul Sullivan, of the P. A. A., eked out a scanty verdict over hard-hitting Del Kennedy, Keystone driver, 12-15, 15-10, 10-15, 15-11, 15-9.

Especially torrid scrimmages lie ahead for late this afternoon, with Ham Robinson, of the Keystone A. C. meeting Lockhart, and Bill Hutchins taking on Schneider at 5:15, and McCargo tangling with Gordon in a real feature at 5:30. The summary:

Second round, upper half—W. P. Berg, K. A. C., won from W. B. Wolfe, Pittsburgh Golf Club, by default; Dr. John L. O'Loughlin, P. A. A., won from R. G. Lytle, K. A. C., by default; T. R. Kennedy, K. A. C., won from Theos Manos, K. A. C., by default; C. J. Caspar, Jr., K. A. C., defeated J. Rogers Flannery, P. A. A., 11-15, 15-12, 15-10, 15-12; P. G. Sullivan, P. A. A., defeated D. J. Kennedy, K. A. C., 12-15, 15-10, 10-15, 15-11, 15-9; G. W. Kepler, Jr., P. A. A., won from ——— Dougherty, K. A. C., by default; Graham McCargo, Pittsburgh Golf Club, defeated A. W. Schmidt, K. A. C., 15-8, 12-15, 15-4, 17-14; William A. Gordon, Edgeworth Club, defeated Dr. C. F. Brand, P. A. A., 15-11, 15-10, 15-8.

Lower half—C. A. Woods, Jr., Edgeworth Club, defeated Mabon W. Bovard, P. A. A., 15-6, 15-8, 15-5; Karl G. Wolfe, P. A. A., won from Stan Quay, Allegheny Country Club, by default; H. A. Robinson, K. A. C., won from Dr. Livingston Allegheny Country Club, by default; Charles Lockhart, Pittsburgh Golf Club, defeated Thomas Foley, K. A. C., 15-6, 15-10, 15-8; J. O. Craig, K. A. C., won from J. Foster, Pittsburgh Golf Club, by default; Dr. George Booth, P. A. A., won from W. C. Robinson, Allegheny Country Club, by default; D. J. Schneider, K. A. C., defeated Edward F. Kelly, P. A. A., 15-8, 15-10, 15-12; William Hutchins, P. A. A., defeated William R. Spindler, P. A. A., 15-12, 15-6, 15-8.

Third round, upper half—Dr. John L. O'Loughlin, P. A. A., defeated W. P. Berg, K. A. C., 15-8, 15-8, 15-13.

Baseball Briefs

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—The New York Giants have acquired a freshman baseball class in addition to their squad of regulars and rookies who are in training here. Art. Nehf, the old-time Giant pitcher who successfully introduced Hank Leiber last season, has brought a pitcher, Arthur Hale, from Phoenix, Ariz., for a tryout, and Leiber has persuaded Manager Bill Terry to inspect three players, Walter Carson, outfielder; Russell Painter, infielder, and Jack Hile, pitcher.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—The vanguard of the Brooklyn baseball team was on hand today, ready for the first workout of the Spring training season. Nine pitchers and one catcher had arrived last night. More batterymen and first baseman Del Bissonette, who has been visiting Dazzy Vance at Homosassa, were expected today.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—George Grantham, second baseman for the Cincinnati Reds, announced here today he had signed a contract and would leave March 6 to join the Reds at their training camp in Tampa, Fla.

BILOXI, Miss.—(INS.)—The first casualty of the training season reported at the Senators' camp today when Gen. Crowder, ace pitcher of Clark Griffith's aggregation, reported with an infected right thumb on his flipping hand.

NEW YORK—(AP.)—The Brooklyn Dodgers today announced that Outfielder Al Cohen had been sent to the Nashville Club, of the Southern Association, on option.

PASADENA, Cal.—(AP.)—Manager Lew Fonseca called the roll of his Chicago White Sox candidates for their first drill today, ordering the recruits out an hour ahead of the more experienced hands.

MIAMI, Fla.—(INS.)—Dazzy Vance, balking at the $5,000 contract offered him by the St. Louis Cardinals, said today he had refused two requests to go to St. Louis for a conference with club officials.

CATALINA ISLAND, Cal.—(INS.)—Pat Malone's "Lumbago Nine" defeated Guy Bush's "Tarbabies," 17 to 16, in a Chicago Cub practice game yesterday. Zack Taylor pitched the last two innings for Malone's team and fanned Bush. Babe Herman made three hits, including a home run.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—A new corps of assistants made up of Bing Miller, Eddie Rommel and Lena Blackburne has been announced by Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, as a result of the resignation of Eddie Collins, captain and first coach of the team. Miller will replace Collins, one of the buyers of the Boston Red Sox.

YANKS DEPART FOR FLORIDA

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—The New York Yankees prepared to start the 1933 campaign for another world's championship today with the departure of the first squad of players for the training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Only three players, all pitchers, were listed to depart from New York this morning under the guidance of Road Secretary Mark Roth. They were Charles Devens, Harvard's only contribution to major league baseball; Pete Jablonowski, who performed well at Newark last season, and Russell Van Atta, from St. Paul. All the batterymen except Herb Pennock are due Wednesday. The infielders and outfielders will not start work until March 8.

Eight Teams Set For Polo League

Eight teams have been granted franchises in the newly formed outdoor polo league, sponsored by the Western Pennsylvania Polo Association. The franchises were granted at a meeting held yesterday in the Hunt Armory, East End.

The South Park Riding Club, Library Polo Club, Fox Chapel, Old Furnace, Polo Club of Zelienople, 107th Feld Artillery, Charleroi Robin Hoods and the Charleroi Veterans are the clubs that will comprise the league.

SEALS' PIANIST DIES

Miss Marian Salmon, WCAE pianist who played for the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph on their radio programs for almost a year, is dead at her home, 5147 Rosetta street. She had been ill for several months. Death was due to a ruptured heart. Miss Salmon wrote the music for and first played the theme song of the Seals and also entertained with interludes and accompaniment on the programs.

Good enough. He needs no further recommendation.

Pete Gulotta, of New York, boxes Louie Severo, of Meadville, Pa., in the eight-round semi-final, and Red Bruce takes on Bill Nichy and Joey Bazzone engages General Burrows in the two eight-round preliminaries, with the show getting under way at 8:30 o'clock.

Ski Star Records 281-Foot Jump

SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Alf Engen, 21-year-old Salt Lake City ski rider who claims the world's distance jumping title in tournament competition, chalked up a leap of 281 feet, the longest of his career, in an exhibition yesterday on Ecker Hill in the Wasatch mountains.

Between Rounds

Twelve bouts will be offered in the amateur boxing show at McKeesport, Thursday night. Following are the pairings already made: John Burkholder vs. Anthony Barr; John Pitts vs. Nick Malley; Nick Lazzo vs. William Johnson; Joe Sirak vs. Steve Lesko; Johnny Marks vs. Wheeler Ringer; William Fitchner vs. Frankie Trio; Teddy Movan vs. Jimmy Sofiasky and Jiggs McKnight vs. Jimmy Perry.

Matchmaker Lou Raymond, of the Arena, on the North Side, needs only a six-round opener to complete his card for Friday night's show, which lists three attractive 10-round battles in the following grand manner: Mose Butch vs. Vidal Gregorio, Jimmy Thomas vs. Jimmy Mack and Ross Fields vs. Jackie Wilson.

Notice was given today by the Allegheny Mountain Association, of the A. A. U., that all amateur boxers who have participated recently in shows at East Liverpool, O., have been disqualified and declared professionals.

Irish Sign Conley; LaSalle Gets Brill

YANKEES' PITCHING ACE WEDS MUSICAL COMEDY STAR

Married yesterday in New York, Pitcher Gomez and his bride parted temporarily today as he departed for St. Petersburg, Fla., the Yankees' training camp, and she rejoined her show in Philadelphia. She will rejoin him in Florida next month. She's June O'dea of the stage and was Helen Frances Schwarz in private life. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

BODY OF LUCH SHIPPED TO WHEELING

By JESS CARVER

The body of John Luch, Pitt football fullback and weight star and boxer, was shipped shortly after noon today from the Pennsylvania Station to Wheeling, W. Va., where the funeral will be held from the Kepner parlors Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock.

The entire Pitt squad will attend the services. Dr. John B. (Jock) Sutherland, Pitt football coach, and James (Whitey) Hagan, graduate manager, went to Wheeling today to make arrangements.

Luch died in the St. Francis Hospital shortly after 8 o'clock yesterday morning after a game three days' fight against peritonitis. He underwent two blood transfusions on Saturday.

The death of Luch revealed a secret marriage of the football star. His bride was the former Martha Ernes, a schoolmate at Warwood (W. Va.) High School. They eloped to Wellsburg, W. Va., and were married on September 3, 1931, and planned to keep the matter a secret until Luch's graduation in June. Their parents knew of the marriage, however.

PARENTS AT BEDSIDE

Luch's mother and father were at his bedside when the end came.

Three weeks ago, the big fullback underwent an operation for the removal of his appendix and for gall stones. He apparently was on the road to recovery when peritonitis set in on Thursday and he sank rapidly. At noon Saturday, Miss Louise Hohman, of Turtle Creek, who recently recovered from the same malady that cost Luch's life, a post operative sepsis, gave a pint of blood. Johnny rallied after the transfusion, but at midnight his physicians sent a hurry call for John Valenti, sub center on the Panther football squad, and another transfusion was effected to no avail.

Valenti was selected from more than a score of Pitt athletes who offered their blood to save Johnny. The blood of Valenti, Jimmy Clark, another former Pitt fullback, and Herman Lentz met the requirements.

Dr. Ralph Shanor, Pitt team physician, who attended Luch, and Dr. Moses Baker, who performed the transfusions, said Luch made a gallant fight to live. His stamina astonished the physicians, who held out small hope for his recovery as early as Friday night, when his condition first became alarming.

Luch is the second varsity football player to die at Pitt in three years. In the spring practice of 1930, Leo Murphy, of Youngstown, suffered a broken neck in a line plunge and died a few days later. Murphy also was a fullback.

PLANNED TO TEACH

Luch entered the university in 1929. He was a student in the school of education and planned to take up teaching and coaching as professions. He was the regular fullback in 1931, after subbing in 1930. Last fall, he was stricken with a severe attack of appendicitis while at football camp, but an operation was deemed not necessary. He took part in only a few games last fall as his recovery was slow.

He was a varsity letter winner in both boxing and track.

SARAZEN TAKES HUGE LEAD

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Tying the course competitive record with a spectacular 31-36—67, four under par, Gene Sarazen today went 10 holes up on Olin Dutra after 54 holes of their 72-hole competition for the "world golf championship." He was 7 up at the end of 36 holes yesterday.

Gene went four below par on the first outbound nine today for a medal score of 31 that gave him an additional three-hole advantage.

The medal score was one stroke below his lowest card for the nine holes in yesterday's play.

MORELAND VICTOR

HOUSTON, Tex., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Gus Moreland, of Dallas, Tex., won the nineteenth annual Houston Country Club invitation golf tournament yesterday for the third consecutive year, defeating Ossie Carlton, of Houston, on a waterlogged course, 6 and 5.

The entire match was played in rain.

N. Y. Commission Restricts Managers

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—All licensed professional boxing clubs in New York State today were in receipt of orders from the State Athletic Commission designed to "improve the conduct of the sport."

One, aimed to break up such combinations as existed between Jack Sharkey and his protege, the late Ernie Schaff, prohibits boxers and wrestlers from being directly or indirectly interested financially in any club, boxer or wrestler. Managers, wrestlers and boxers must not be connected with any corporation promoting shows, and no person will be allowed to be identified with more than one corporation promoting such shows.

VON PORAT DISCHARGED

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—Completely recovered from an attack of acute indigestion suffered in a bout last Friday night with Tuffy Griffiths, Otto Von Porat, the Norwegian heavyweight, today left Columbus Hospital, where he was rushed upon his collapse. Physicians forbade Von Porat from indulging in any training for 10

PIRATES' WHO'S WHO

Our Flag Contenders Answer Quiz, Giving Fans Lowdown on What's What and Why.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Staff Correspondent

No. 4—Charles Asher (Spades) Wood.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., Feb. 27.

Charley, you look like a different boy—how come?

Well, I reckon it was that ol' appendix they carved out of me one yeah ago in Los Angeles. Two yeahs back I went to my first Pirate training camp weighing 145 pounds. I had an awful dose of flu and last spring that right side gave me a terrible time, 'til Pie Traynor brought me to a doctor friend in Los Angeles who gave me much relief.

Do you feel like a big leaguer?

I think I have a few symptoms. You know, I got my first dash of big league seasoning in August, 1930, when I was only 20. I had won 22 games and lost but three for Wichita, the Pirate farm, and the first thing I knew I was right in the middle of a Pirate uniform.

Charley Wood

Did you enjoy the experience?

I'll say so! Perhaps you don't recall that I landed at Forbes Field one morning about 10 o'clock and three hours later I was warming up to pitch against the Dodgers. It felt a little funny, but it all happened so quickly I didn't have time to get nervous. I guess I did pretty well, but I lost to the Dodgers.

You had better luck on your next attempt?

Yes, my curve was workin' good and I shut out the Braves. Boy, that felt great, and you can imagine how I felt, a few days later, when I blanked the Reds, I won five and lost three that year for Pittsburgh.

How much do you scale this year?

So you figure you are primed again.

I sure do. I haven't been much good to the Pirates in the past two years, but I am going to step on the gas this year.

How did you get into professional baseball, Charley?

I was pitching a middlin' good game for Wofford College in my home town of Spartansburg, S. C., when I first attracted attention. Late in 1928, Mr. Louis Probst, who was the president of the Columbia club, the South Atlantic League and the Salisbury club of the Piedmont League, brought up the matter.

What happened?

Well, when he pushed 300 berries under my nose in $20 bills, I grabbed a pen and signed with Salisbury. I pitched a few games and the next year I was transferred to Columbia. The Pirates had connections with both clubs.

Did you stay with Columbia?

Just a short time. I was sent back to Salisbury and was going along at a fair clip when the Pirate bosses ordered me to their class A farm at Wichita.

You were a star in Wichita, presumably.

So they tell me. Anyhow, I fanned more than 200 batters in 1930 while winning 22 games and I woke up one day to find myself in the big league. But listen—there's quite a difference between pitching in Wichita and Pittsburgh. And don't I know it!

Duquesne University's Dukes of basketball, the trump cards of the district this season, resume their campaigning tonight with an invasion of Morgantown, where they'll meet West Virginia in a return clash. They beat the Mountaineers here in Pittsburgh a couple weeks back by three points.

The waning collegiate season holds two or three feature attractions this week. Friday night the Dukes run into their final test of the campaign as they take on Carnegie Tech in the second game of the series with the Plaid. They'll play that one and meet Wash-Jeff again and then they are through for the year.

TECH LOSES THREE

Tech and Pitt arrived home from their Eastern invasions last week with four defeats and one victory to show for their pains. The Tartans dropped all three of their games, losing to New York U., Temple and Penn State. Pitt bowed to Georgetown, but came back nobly on Saturday to upset the crack Navy team, which has been beaten only once before.

Grove City comes to town tomorrow for a tilt with the Plaid. Pitt is idle until Saturday, when the Panthers meet Temple in Philadelphia in a game which may decide the Intercollegiate Conference race.

Bob Smith, Tech's scoring ace, has the highest point total and the best average per game of any of the city performers. The Tartan star has scored 128 points in 13 games, an average of nine and 11-13 points per game.

GENEVA ABOUT 'IN'

Geneva can sew up the Tri-State Conference title once and for all by beating Bethany tomorrow night. Should the Bisons upset the Covenanters, the latter still can win the flag by taking Waynesburg on Friday.

By beating Temple's second-place team Wednesday night, the West Virginia boxers can clinch the Intercollegiate Conference team championship. So far, the Mountaineers have not been defeated and have won 21 out of 28 bouts.

ZONEYS, SYGAN ELEVENS WIN

The Castle Shannon Zoneys swamped the Union Switch and Signal soccer aggregation by an 8-to-4 score at South Park yesterday afternoon to enter the second round of the West Penn cup.

Sygan pulled the big surprise of the day, defeating the Moon Run team, 2-1, in the junior cup.

Other games in the senior cup found Heidelberg beating Barsotti, 11-0; McKnights beating Sturgeon, 7-1, while Garfield United upset Valley Athletics in an exhibition game, 5-1. The Zoney-Switch lineup:

Zoneys—8	Pos.	Union Switch—4

Yankees Willing To Back Wheeling

WHEELING, W. Va., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Club owners of the Middle Atlantic Baseball League met last night in a long session, talking over reorganization plans and the approaching season.

George M. Weiss, president of the Newark International League club, and head of the New York Yankees' farm system, attended the session. He was accompanied by Gene McCann, Yankee scout, and Earl Mann, executive of the New York organization.

Weiss said he is prepared to establish a farm club here provided league club owners decide to operate. Wheeling left the league in 1931.

STOCKS CLIMB AS PRESSURE SUBSIDES

NEW YORK, Feb 27.—(AP.) — Pressure was again lifted from the securities markets today, and prices were inclined to recover in quieter trading.

Stocks rallied from fractions to more than 2 points, in a quiet, rather jerky market. Stock traders were inclined to take their cue from bonds, and although there was a little further selling in that market, it acted much better than on Saturday. Commodities acted well, and although there was some resumption of pressure against the dollar in foreign exchange markets, it was regarded as relatively unimportant.

Henry Ford's entrance into the Michigan banking situation was emphasized as a constructive step, tending to break the banking impasse in Michigan. This tended to counterbalance the effects upon sentiment of withdrawal restrictions in a few other cities. Furthermore, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation announced in Washington that it was actively making loans, and denied rumors that there had been any change in its policy.

Rail shares were helped to some extent by the January net operating income reports, indicating that a number of roads had continued the improvement shown in December over a year previously. Conspicuous among these were Baltimore and Ohio, Southern and Louisville and Nashville. In the tobacco shares, a substantial short interest was built up during the recent price cutting, and they have been quick to rally when the market has shown signs of stiffening. Coca-Cola ordered its regular quarterly dividend of $1.75.

The first of the larger railroad systems to report its freight movement for last week was Santa Fe, which handled 18,751 cars, against 20,587 in the previous week. This may have been due to the fact that Washington's Birthday is a more widely recognized holiday than Lincoln's Birthday, which came in the previous week.

The money market stiffened a little, as rates on bankers' acceptances were raised, after the active selling in this form of commercial credit last week. Federal funds were boosted from 1 to 1½ per cent.

TRADE DEMAND AIDS COTTON

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Cotton futures opened steady, 1-5 higher, on steady Liverpool cables and trade buying. March, 5.87c; May, 5.98c; July, 6.10c; October, 6.29c; December, 6.41c; January, 6.48c.

The opening bulge met some further liquidation but offerings were absorbed on slight setbacks by the trade buying which was believed to be partly for foreign account. Little southern selling appeared and after the opening pressure subsided, May rallied from 5.94 to 6.03, making net advances of about 5 to 10 points on the general list.

Trading was quiet later in the morning and prices held generally steady on a moderate demand. May sold up to 6.05 and October to 6.34, making net gains of about 6 to 12 points on the more active positions and quotations were within 3 or 4 points of the best at midday.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 27.—Cotton, no receipts. Spot quiet; prices nine lower; quotations in pence; American strict good middling 5.65; good middling 5.35; strict middling 5.05; middling 4.90; strict low middling 4.75; low middling 4.60; strict good ordinary 4.40; good ordinary 4.10. Futures closed steady, March 4.73; May 4.76; July 4.78; October 4.83; December 4.86; January 4.88.

STOCK MARKET DEEMED STILL PRECARIOUS

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics New York University

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Last week the stock market averages lost about 5 points.

They broke decisively through levels at which they have been stubbornly supported for several months. Saturday's lowest since July, 1932.

Who can says that the bear market is over? Even the railway stocks have fallen through, thus "confirming" the action of the other groups.

It has been fairly apparent that there was little reason for the persistent support given to the carrier issues, whether in earnings, financial condition, or prospective traffic.

There is little use, however, in dwelling just now on the past—unless it be to emphasize the fact that "confidence" is of no avail when not based upon sound fundamentals. Sentiment must have a foundation in facts.

The immediate position of the stock market remains precarious.

TECHNICAL RALLY SEEN

Now that everyone is getting bearish, I suppose that the market will soon get oversold, and a "technical rally" may thus develop by mid-week. Traders should watch for the usual signs of "climax selling" for indications as to when to come in for a turn. But further liquidation seems probable.

There is no trading public to follow up on rallies. On the other hand, the relatively large loans on securities and the long lists of stockholders in the big corporations plainly show where selling may come from. Neither the Lausanne rally nor the stock-mindedness of the "new era" seems to be fully liquidated yet.

We can now see clearly that a great deal of financial readjustment will be required, while the threat of radical political action in the field of money and banking is a seriously disturbing factor. Obviously this is no time for the little investor to take a chance on the stock market.

Until the bond market is safe for democracy, little is to be expected of junior securities. But the bond market has fallen back to July levels and remains much unsettled.

RALLY TRADING DULL

The volume of trading in stocks has tended to fall off on rallies and expand on declines. For example, note how dull the market became on the technical rebound Friday.

The market presents a picture of broad liquidations overcoming the efforts to support it and the buying of those who have felt that the underlying trend had turned upward. It is significant that of the last 12 trading sessions, nine have shown a majority of stocks to be lower, while but a small percentage of the volume has come in the few most active issues.

We are witnessing the complete disappearance of last summer's madness in Auburn. The big move in Montgomery Ward is over. The more recent play in United Aircraft seemed to have ended Saturday.

All this is emphasize l by the foreign liquidation which has been evident of late, accompanied by our loss of gold both by ear marking and by export. We all remember how prominent was the part played by European speculators last July when gold was pouring into the country.

Business is not good, but business conditions proper are mostly sound. The stock market, with the aid of an unsound credit structure, has simply been out of touch with the real business of the nation.

CONDITIONS MOSTLY SOUND

We should not let the gyrations of the bulls and bears affect our business judgment, nor dim our hopes that business will gradually get turned around this year for that sustained recovery which will come just as soon as our finances and credit are put on a sound basis.

January Building Total Down Here

January contracts for all classes of construction awarded in the Pittsburgh territory totaled $6,099,100, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation. This contrasts with $7,845,400 for December and $7,517,600 for January, 1932. Gains between December and January in residential and non-residential building were too small to offset losses in public works and public utilities contracts. A gain in non-residential awards as compared with January, 1932, was not large enough to counteract important declines in the remaining three divisions of the industry.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Several spots in the bond market showed an obvious lack of support today, but on the whole the tone was better than it was in the immediately preceding session. United States Governments were again easy, except in the Treasury 3¾s, which recovered about ¼ of a point. Moderate gains ruled in the active part of the foreign division, affecting principally the obligations of Germany, Australia, Japan and some South Americans.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column; United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

Life of Andrew Carnegie

By BURTON J. HENDRICK

scious, he maintained, he could assist them in their painful labors. This ceremony performed, Frick, disregarding the protests of his subordinates, returned to his desk, signed many letters and transacted several pieces of unfinished business, including the negotiation of a loan.

Policy Unchanged

He then issued a bulletin for the general public. "This incident will not change the attitude of the Carnegie Steel Company toward the Amalgamated Association. I do not think I shall die, but, if I do or not, the company will pursue the same policy and it will win."

A stretcher was brought and Frick was carried home. Three weeks afterward the patient got up, ate his breakfast, jumped on a street car, and, in due course, appeared, somewhat paler and thinner than before, at his desk.

Affairs had suffered little in his absence, for during convalescence Frick had lain propped up in bed, a telephone at his hand, two or three secretaries at his side, still the active executive head of the Carnegie company, and still personally supervising the struggle with the striking workmen.

For this attempted murder, the union men, though their cause suffered as a consequence, had no responsibility. It was the isolated act of a criminal fanatic, a man who never had the remotest connection with labor unions or the Homestead mill. He proved to be Alexander Berkman, a Russian anarchist, aged 25, who had lived only a few years in the United States, advocating views so extreme that even the "comrades" of his own ilk had hesitated to associate with him.

Berkman had come from New York to Pittsburgh for the purpose of killing the man who, in his opinion, most completely embodied the tyranny of capital. The one result accomplished was a change in the popular attitude toward the Homestead strike and the Carnegie chairman.

The Strike Fails

The unpopularity Frick had acquired for the employment of Pinkerton guards now changed to sympathy, and the coolness and courage displayed inevitably appealed to the American instinct for hero worship.

So far as the practical outcome was concerned this attack was probably the most fortunate happening in Frick's life. The cause of the Amalgamated Association was now utterly lost. "The bullet from Berkman's pistol," said Hugh O'Donnell, the leader of the union men, "went straight through the heart of the Homestead strike." Men from all parts of the country poured into Homestead taking the vacant places, and the old workers, disregarding their union membership, began flocking back.

In November the union formally declared the strike at an end. From that day the once powerful Amalgamated Association has been a pitiful remnant, only a few scattered bands here and there representing the hosts that once lorded it over American steel mills.

Not a union man has since entered the Carnegie works.

Inevitably the politicians attempted to play a hand in the Homestead imbroglio. A national campaign was under way in the summer of 1892, President Harrison, old-fashioned exponent of Republicanism and a high protective tariff, contesting the election with Grover Cleveland. All the leaders of the Carnegie Steel Company had given their support to the Republican cause. Carnegie had been a member of the party since its organization, and at times a liberal contributor to its funds; his friendship with most of its chieftains from the time of the Civil War was well known, and in 1892 he was on the pleasantest personal relations with President Harrison.

The tariff figured as the most important issue in the campaign, and the favors shown for the preceding 30 years to the steel industry had provided much ammunition for the enemy. Never before, indeed, had the respective merits of free trade and protection occupied so conspicuous a place in popular discussion. Impending hard times gave such piquancy to the debate that, in the headquarters of the Republican party, the possibility, even the likelihood, of Democratic success was spreading an atmosphere of gloom.

Helps Democrats

The administration, already weakened by the incessant attacks on the McKinley law and alarmed by manifestations in plenty of a growing distrust among the working classes, was badly prepared to weather the storm caused by the disturbances in the Pittsburgh area. For several weeks Homestead proved the one absorbing topic of private conversation and public discussion. The Democrats pounced upon it as almost a gift from Heaven. Mr. Cleveland, accepting the Democratic nomination, pointed to this little town as a symbol of the evils that followed in the train of a protective tariff, while campaign orators misrepresented the issue with characteristic shamelessness.

The striking workmen were pictured as worthy rebels against "starvation wages," the fact that they were the highest paid employes in the United States being ignored. The McKinley tariff had promised high compensation in every trade, it was urged, and instead it was giving "high fences, Pinkerton detectives and militia!" The Carnegie Steel Company suddenly found itself elevated to the position of an overshadowing issue in a presidential election.

In the November election President Harrison went down to defeat and Grover Cleveland came in for his second term, and certain unbending Republican war-horses went so far as to blame Carnegie for this disaster. Had he used his undoubted power to end the Homestead strike, the election, they bitterly insisted, would have been a Republican victory, but on this particular phase of the cataclysm the majority stockholders never had the slightest misgiving.

Though Carnegie supported Frick personally and publicly, he believed then, as he believed afterward, that the chairman had managed the crisis most unskillfully. Pursuing his policy of "silence," nothing was said for general circulation, but to his intimates, in letters and talk, he never concealed his dissatisfaction with Frick's behavior.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

The rain Saturday which followed a week of pleasant weather in Pittsburgh drove all the youngsters indoors and as a result the theaters where the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club meetings are held, were packed to the very doors.

The meeting at the Enright was the largest at this theater for some time, this was due to the fact that the Cameraphone Chapter has been combined with the Enright and Manager Frank Roberts had arranged an elaborate program of entertainment for the "kiddies."

In addition to the sign contest, which the members of the Cameraphone Chapter were eligible to compete in, the youngsters were entertained by a Boy Scout band under the direction of Wally Sharaff.

Many of the Cameraphone Chapter members joined Dolly Fritz' dancing class and at one time there were so many youngsters on the large stage of the Enright asking for instructions from Miss Fritz that Manager Roberts had to call a halt to the proceedings to give the instructor a chance to clear the stage. Several games and contests were held for the members and then they enjoyed the fifth chapter of the "Hurricane Express," serial now being shown at the Komic Club meetings.

A few of the members present Saturday were: Ann Helfgott, Paul Schatuer, Joseph and Allen Broudy, Richard, Lorraine and Alexia Cunninghan, Thomas Blackburn, Edwin and Lorraine Pitney, Bernice Chaulker, Betty George, Bessie Levine, Alvin Caplan, William Gribben, Thomas Hallam, Billy and Leroy Kaplan, Wilfred Sklar, Dolly De Luca, Joseph Sespi, Fred Hill, Betty Busch, Billy Eisman, William Tiffany, Loretta Williams.

Playgirls in Love

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER IX.

Judith bustled around the little shop, straightening things, while Zella leaned back with her feet propped on a chair and sipped her tea and ate her sandwich. "The scrubwoman's coming tomorrow morning early to give the place a grand clean-up, so save your energy, Judith."

But Judith insisted on washing all the cups and saucers and rinsing the innumerable cocktail glasses before they left.

"I thought Miss Tewson would surely have included you in the dinner party tonight, Zella?" she asked.

"She did. At least the Graves child did. But I told her I already had a date—have you forgotten Freddy and Chester are taking us to the Purple Parokeet for supper?"

Judith said tonelessly: "Oh, I remember."

Freddy and Chester were Flatbush boys—hard-working clerks and the salt of the earth—but to go out with these very ordinary youths after her enchanted talk with Barry Deane seemed such an anti-climax.

Zella had perspicacity. She gave Judith a sharp look. "They may not be as thrilling as Mr. Jack Ordway and the other snappy sheiks who decorated this shop today, but—"

"Why, that's okay." To head Zella off, Judith asked hastily: "Did you know that Miss Graves is the daughter of the president of our bank?"

"Is that so?"

"Yes. Barry Deane introduced me to her as they both came in this evening. I've mentioned Barry once or twice to you before, I think? He used to give me special work to do for him when I was downtown. He's one of the vice presidents in the new Business Department of the bank. Barry's awfully clever."

"So it would seem," Zella said grimly, "when he trots around with the boss's daughter."

LORANDA ANNOYED

Zella put on her hat and coat, remarking that it would be a good thing if Judith—when she could—would cultivate the good will of Miss Betty Graves, for a friend at court in these hard times was certainly not to be sneezed at . . .

"Why, she barely noticed me . . ."

"I'm not so sure of that. You were in a class by yourself for looks, and the men buzzed round you like wasps after the honey. Speaking of wasps, I saw Loranda watching you when the handsome Barry Deans was making a fuss of you, ole dear, and Loranda seemed annoyed. It's my belief she's got a crush on him."

"Well, don't let his cleverness and nobility of character carry you away. In the long run, men are all the same! Not one last Adam's son of 'em to be trusted!"

The telephone rang sharply at this moment. Zella went over to her desk and took the receiver off its hook.

"Yes? Yes? What's that? Miss Brian? She's right here. Who shall I say wants her?"

DATE DECLINED

She put her hand over the mouthpiece as Judith came forward. "Your debut has begun already, honey," she said. "Jack Ordway craves a word in your ear!"

* * *

"Oh, no . . . oh, thank you very much . . . but I already have a date . . . a supper date . . . I couldn't break it . . . no, that's right out of the question!"

A pause. Zella, tidying the papers and cigaret ends on her desk and close to Judith, who was holding the receiver, could hear Jack Ordway pleading.

"I can't . . . truly I can't . . . I tell you Zella made this engagement for me several days ago . . . we're going to a place called the Blue Parrot . . . no, the Purple Parokeet . . . it's a regular date!" Judith insisted.

Regrets at the other end. Hope for another meeting soon. Embarrassed but somewhat thrilled by the man's importunity—for wasn't he of "the crowd" that Barry knew?—Judith hung up.

"That was Mr. Ordway asking me to go out and dance with him," Judith said apologetically. "I wouldn't go, of course. But even if I'd been free, I wouldn't go at such short notice."

"Attagirl! You'll do. You're not an easy mark. You've got their number."

ADMITTED TO NIGHT CLUB

Half an hour later, the two girls, with Freddy and Chester squashed into the little seats opposite them, in festive mood, were bounding and ricocheting per taxicab from 56th Street to Greenwich Village.

But though Judith tried to join in their mood and be gay and laugh at their sallies, her mind was turning the question of Barry and Jack Ordway.

The taxi pulled up before a couple of steps that led down to an iron-grilled door on a side street in the Village. Above the door swung a signboard with a bizarre-looking bird painted on it.

This was the Purple Parokeet. The four got out, Freddy rang the bell, a panel slid back in the door, and an Irish face peered through the grating at them.

Freddy gave his name in suitably mysterious tones—the bolt shot back — he swaggered in ahead of the others with the air of a man-about-town.

Immediately inside there was a bar with perhaps 20 or 30 people propping up the rail, an incessant popping of corks and clink of ice, and beyond it lay the kitchens and the restaurant.

The four passed through, into an oblong room that was cleverly laid out to represent a miniature jungle. Trellises hung with trick fruits and artificial leaves separated the tables. The main lighting of the room came from illuminated cages where live birds chirped, and from a purplish-blue moon that cast an unearthly radiance.

On a raised platform at one end on banks of ferns with silver mosses trickling down from the branches of trees, a South Sea orchestra played and crooned romantically. Nearby a parokeet swung on a hoop, its plumage dyed shades of purple.

Freddy made his way to a group of three small tables that were set under a tree that fairly dripped with artificial smilax.

At one of these they sat, and Freddy ordered supper for the four of them, and soft drinks, and Chester produced from his pocket the inevitable flask.

BARRY VISITS

Judith danced with Freddy first. She forced herself to a seeming careless gaiety that was attune to Freddy's mood, laughing at his fancy steps and exaggerated compliments.

They ate, and talked, and danced, and the room that had a garish woodland beauty was flooded with Hawaiian music.

Why couldn't he be here to continue their enchanted talk? Why must it be just Freddy?

Time slipped away. It was past 11 and Zella was about to make a move to go, saying that hard-working boys and girls ought to be heading for home sweet home and the downy pillow, when there was a stir at the door of the restaurant of the Purple Parokeet, and heads craned round as two white ermine coats and one magnificent chinchilla entered.

Ermine coat No. 1 had a high fox collar that framed Loranda Tewson's pretty face and golden hair, while coat No. 2—worn by a red-headed girl—was shabbier. The rather sallow Betty Graves wore the chinchilla wrap that Judith had seen earlier today, and immediately behind her was Jack Ordway.

"For heaven's sakes, he's actually followed you here!" Zella whispered to Judith.

But Judith's heart had gone into a tail spin at sight of Barry Deane among the group that—hesitating for a moment and then led by Ordway—was coming directly across the floor to their corner.

Judith went white. Now that her wish had come to pass, the very breath seemed to leave her body.

Synopsis

Judith Brian, a secretary in the Knickerbocker Bank, and Barry Deane, young executive, are secretly attracted to one another. Judith, however, feels that Barry is above her socially. Zella, Judith's friend, receives an attractive offer from Loranda Tewson, society girl, to manage a dress shop for her. Zella and Judith leave their drab boarding house and rent an apartment. Judith is unhappy when she is transferred to the bank's uptown office where she will not be able to see Barry. Loranda's friends attend the shop's opening. Barry arrives and thrills Judith by his adoring gaze.

THE BASTILE

Stormed July 14, 1789, which date has become a national holiday similar to our July 4. King Louis XVI's failure to accede to demands of Deputies led to constitution of National Assembly and outbreak of revolution in Paris. Storming of the Bastille was first successful feat of revolutionists, who no doubt gained republican ideas from the American Revolutionary War. (World's History)

Much Ado About Nothing

In the first place, no tourist pictures ever turn out any better than a chfiled mustard plaster.

In the second and list price, we will guarantee that every government has a complete motion picture library of its neighbors' fortifications.

If England has to make repairs at Gibraltar we'll bet it can secure a complete set of blueprints from Italy, Spain and France. Gibraltar is supposed to be a total secret like a recipe for beauty cream.

There ain't any more secrets in war, peace or diplomacy except how the diplomats get their jobs. The real reason why governments don't like you snapping national defenses is that they're afraid the people will discover that the money wasn't spent right. The appropriations never reached the threatened spot and the weak link in the chain is still patched with putty.

It seems strange that you can always take a picture of a stationary army or an admiral in motion. There is no law against aiming the dollar camera at a cruiser or a sailor on the loose.

But try and photograph Fort Ticonderoga or Governor's Island for your album and a man will grab himself 10 cents' worth of hickory lumber and chase you off the reservation.

They're very strict at Annapolis and West Point. They take your camera for the same reason they confiscate your umbrella in the monkey house at the Bronx Zoo. They don't want you teasing a national hero as he revolves with the breeze in his swivel chair.

The Plight of the Navy

It Is to Be Hoped Our Sea Power Will Be Strengthened Under the Democratic Administration.

Every patriotic American is prayerfully hoping that Senator Swanson, as Secretary of the Navy, will approach his task in a spirit of ardent loyalty to this great arm of the nation's dignity and security.

The Navy has grievously suffered at the hands of the Republican party. Its strength, both actual and relative, has steadily declined. Its morale has been constantly weighed down by the dissympathy and indifference of three successive national administrations.

Its personnel has been reduced. Its efficiency has been diminished. Its upkeep and expansion have been neglected. From every standpoint it has been stupidly and despitefully treated.

IT IS HIGH TIME THIS STOPPED!

And the nation turns to the Democratic administration to repair the past—its sins of omission, lack of vision and blundering judgment.

When the last Democratic administration ended, the Navy was in a high state of efficiency and well on its way to becoming second to none.

Then came the tragic thrust at America's naval power, delivered at the Washington disarmament conference.

Fine modern vessels nearing completion were SUNK, merely to provide Secretary of State Hughes with a little British applause and to give resonance to the unhappy word "SCRAP" which for the first time was used as an epitome of America's policy with regard to its Navy.

The result of this ill-fated conference was in truth the greatest defeat ever inflicted on the Navy of the United States, and ironically enough, it was a defeat sustained on land.

The late Mr. Balfour, for his services in persuading the United States to this quixotic action, was immediately on returning to England elevated to the peerage—a reward which England reserves for victorious naval commanders who are instrumental in saving her primacy as a sea power, when threatened from any quarter.

Since then, under the baleful influence of Mr. Hughes' policy of "scrap," we have seen the Navy steadily deteriorate until today it is inadequate to the requirements of the nation.

NOT as a threat to anyone, not as a means of aggression, is it our duty to maintain the Navy at an efficient level, but as an essential to our security, to our dignity among the powers and to our influence in the maintenance of world order.

Nothing less than this is in keeping with the position of the United States.

Under Republican misrule we have not met this test of what is sound and true Americanism.

Let us mend our ways. Let us get back to the right viewpoint on this question without delay.

And let there be no more unheeded complaints, no more unheeded warnings from admirals and fleet captains that the American Navy—abhorrent thought to all sound thinking Americans!—is being neglected and suffered to decline—or is being scuttled to satisfy the selfish policies of foreign powers.

Doctors' Noble Service

Allegheny County's Physicians Are Carrying On, Notwithstanding Grave Difficulties.

When good times return we should put up a monument to the Allegheny County physicians who have carried on so nobly during the crisis.

The doctors are in a bad fix. Many thoughtless or selfish people pay their doctors' bills last, or do not pay them at all. Countless others are unable to pay.

The current number of the Pittsburgh Medical Bulletin, official organ of the Allegheny County Medical Society, tells of an old physician whose telephone service was discontinued because of his financial embarrassment. One of his patients died from a sudden hemorrhage while the family distractedly sought more distant medical aid.

The doctor was prompted by the incident to write to scores of his debtors and point out how inconsiderate they were in maintaining their telephone service while leaving their debts to him unpaid, and thus forcing him to do without this necessity of a medical practice. It is gratifying to learn that the letters brought good results.

Physicians protest in the columns of the Medical Bulletin against being called upon to shoulder personally and individually what should be a community burden—the care and treatment of the indigent sick. They argue for health insurance and for requiring those who are able to pay doctors' bills to pay them. But the spirit of philanthropy, the love of mankind, which has been the noble badge of the medical profession since the days of Hippocrates, continues to shine out.

A "Country Doctor" writes that on a recent Saturday night he was holding high hopes of entertaining a visiting brother at his home when he was summoned by telephone to go to a place two and a half miles back in the hills to see the wife of a man who had never paid him for "delivering" their three babies. Demurring, the doctor bade the man come in, thinking that it might be necessary to do no more than send some medicine for her relief.

But when the man arrived and described the symptoms in detail, the physician decided he must go.

"When I saw that suffering woman's chalky white and haggard face," he writes, "I was thankful I had not failed to respond." He telephoned from a neighboring house to a fellow practitioner that he would like his help, telling him all the circumstances, including the three unpaid for babies. The sufferer was made comfortable, although she died at daybreak. In conclusion the doctor writes:

"I am sure my colleague of the night would join me in asking all physicians, in the name of the Great Physician, to carry on in medical service to the poor, in spite of failure of our fellow citizens to meet their moral obligation to share the expense with the physician."

It is to be hoped the community will find some way of recompensing the doctors for the personal sacrifices they are making.

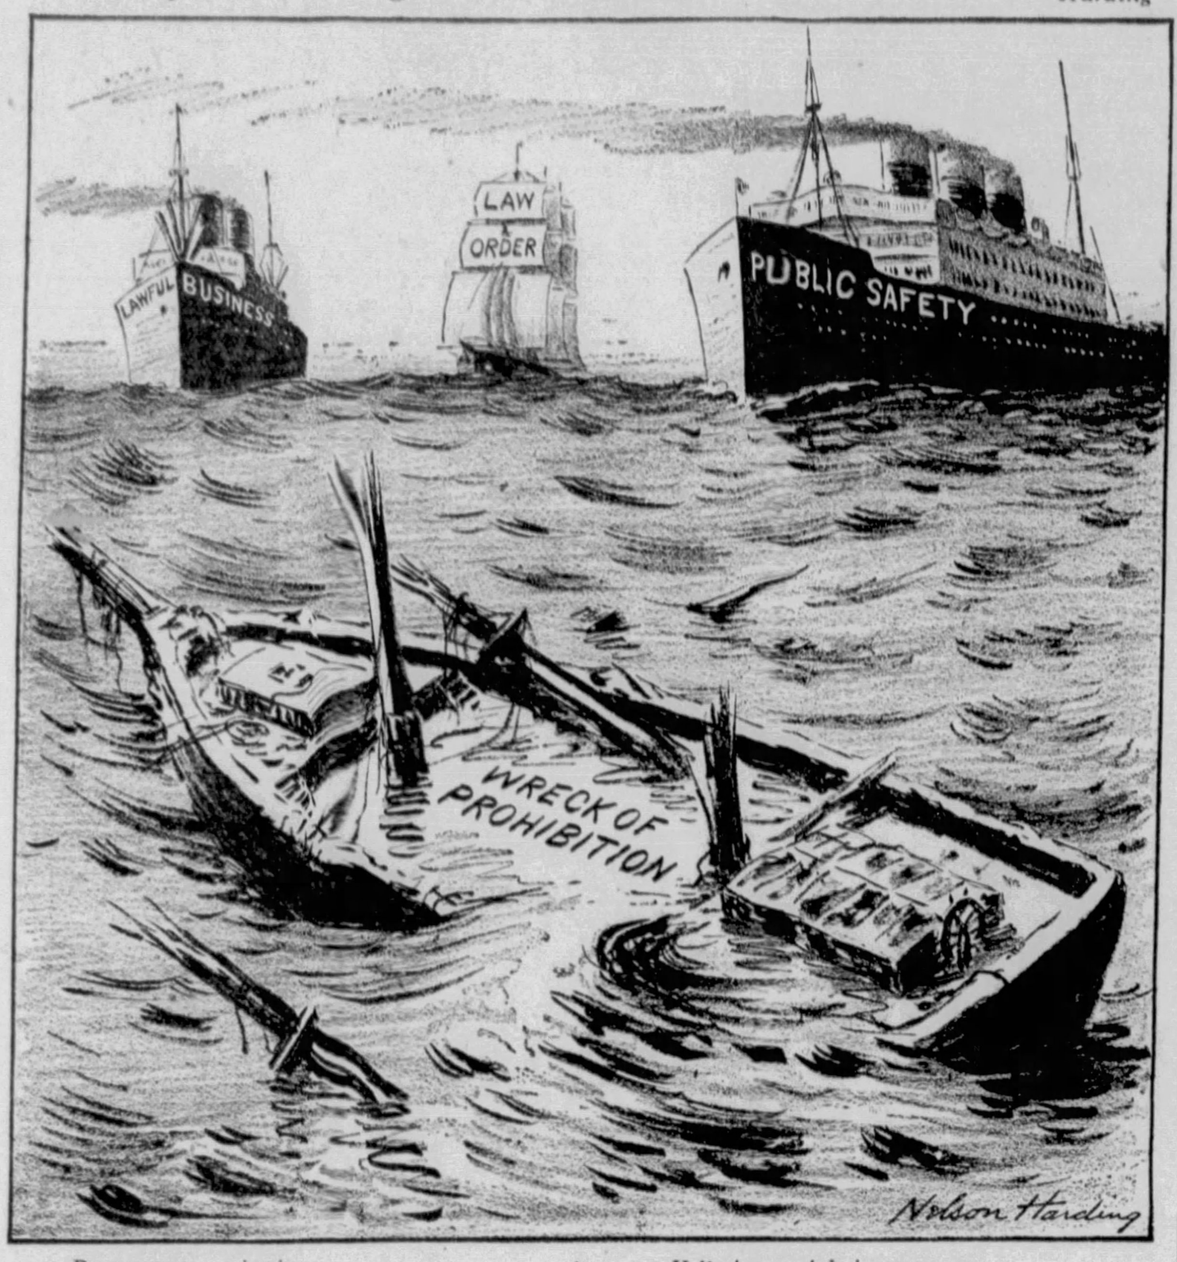
Destroy the Dangerous Derelict -:- -:- By Nelson Harding



Dangerous to navigation
Is a hulk wrecked and abandoned,
Drifting with a helm unguided
In the path of ocean traffic.

Half submerged, it is a menace
Lurking in the lanes of travel,
And must be destroyed completely
In the interest of safety.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 27.—Bert Wheeler and Bob Woolsey were discussing the sex appeal of a certain friend of theirs.

"He just hasn't got it," Bert.

"You're right," replied Woolsey. "He couldn't lure an old maid out of a burning building."

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The World

The world is a beautiful, splendid sphere,
A place of untold delight;
But only that man can find it so
Who has vision to see aright.

It is all in the self that goes
In the mighty pageant which never ends,
Where each one sees the thing he knows.

The world is wrong or the world is wise,
For some strange enchantment gives
A whole, new world made to meet the mind
Of each man who upon it lives.

The world is no bigger than you yourself,
Though you wander from pole to pole
You will see it all in the terms you use,
The terms of your secret soul!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Out in a high wind, and so affrighted, articled for a taxi two blocks away to take me smack home. So, breakfasting on horminy grits which Mrs. Carey sent from Lexington, and reading a gracious letter from Joan Crawford, the cinema lady, of whom I am very fond.

My wife, poor wretch, took me in hand this day regarding the sorry disarray of my desk. And I feigned a hurt sadness, and jockeyed to let her come upon me sewing at a coat button to indicate pathetic neglect. So, to Steve and Buff Brodys, and Charlie Towne, Marc Connolly, Clare Brokaw and George Jean Nathan there.

In the dusk, to the Paul Whiteman's Spanish apartment to eat chili which Mrs. Lee fashioned, and met Charles Butterworth's bride, a comely maid. Also, talking to Peter Arno about Reno and London, where he has been so recently. Then chatting with the Earl Benhams until late.

With so many eager and deserving trying valiantly to keep abreast of the business of living, I found myself in a glow of indignation over the furore of the bogus Prince Michael Romanoff. Especially ill timed was his vaudeville appearance, when excellent players are in actual need. A confessed faker, he has repeatedly flaunted the laws, preyed on the gullibilities of a decent society, and otherwise made himself a distinct nuisance. In a period when the next meal is a problem for many worthy, it seemed inopportune to glorify a rascal. It was good to hear that his guns were spiked.

The Marlene Deitrich mannish attire, higgle-depiggledy, is dotting the avenue with a number of publicity-seeking ladies. One popped out of a department store, the other morning, wearing riding trousers of white corduroy and a coat with enormous airplane style shoulders. And my Boston (goody, goody) barked at her.

The first woman I ever beheld in a mannish costume—the exaggeration was slight—walked out of Hotel Ansonia, years ago. She was a lawyer, whose name, if a tricky memory is not acting up, is Lucile Pugh. (I'm right, for I just looked for it in the phone book.) Anyway, Miss Pugh's costume was only masculine as to coat lapels, vest, wing collar and four-in-hand. But so pronounced was my yokelism, that, invariably, upon seeing her, I pivoted and followed, spaniel-like, for several blocks.

Another captivating eyeful of a little later period was (and still is) Julia Hoyt, well-known stage and society matron. In a darkly raven way, I thought her about the most stunning brunet hereabouts. So awed was I by the lustre that, while I met her several times in ensuing years here and there, it was only recently that I could summon courage to converse. And, even then, I observed brightly that the evening was chillish in my dictionary.

There was, in my sleepy home town, a long-reigning belle, Buzzette Newsome. In adolescent fancy, I was often returning from big city triumphs to receive her favor. She was the first girl I ever saw play tennis, and, added to this glamour, there were her seasonal visits to far-away Atlantic City. It was during the Charles Dana Gibson era, and Miss Newsome was remindful of his sailor-hatted seashore girl—remember? To our jay berg, she symbolized an excitement in living we never could attain.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

You're sore. Somebody has taken advantage of you again.

All your life it has been like that—people imposing on you; trampling on your rights; failing you when you needed them most.

"No wonder I'm bitter!" you say to yourself. "I've reason to be bitter. I've never been able to trust anyone yet. Even those who've been nearest and dearest to me—my own family; my most intimate friends—they've two-timed me! Why should I have faith in anyone, when people treat me like that?"

Is that what you're thinking? Probably. Most of us do feel that way, at one time or another. Yet it's a bad way to think.

FOR WHOSE FAULT IS IT IF PEOPLE TAKE ADVANTAGE OF YOU? WHO IS TO BLAME IF PEOPLE TRAMPLE ON YOUR RIGHTS?

IT'S YOUR FAULT! AND YOU, YOURSELF, ARE TO BLAME!

You don't believe it? You deny it indignantly? You get all steamed up with self-pity, thinking how swell you've been to everyone, and how low-down they've treated you in return—yes? All right; GO OFF AND HAVE A GOOD HARD CRY! Then let's sit down and think things out.

Suppose you had a business—a very valuable business that faced a lot of mean competition. What would you do with that business?

Would you open your doors, unlock your show cases, take the combination off the safe, throw away your account books and then sit down and "trust" your competitors to do right by you?

"What a crazy idea!" you snort. "Of course I wouldn't. I'd be robbed and cheated right and left, if I treated my business like that!"

Then how would you treat such a business?

You'd organize it, wouldn't you? You'd get a good bookkeeper to estimate your assets and keep track of your profits and losses. You'd buy strong locks. And you'd insist that even your best friends treat your wares carefully.

That's the way you'd act and feel about a business, isn't it?

THEN WHY CAN'T YOU ACT AND FEEL THAT WAY ABOUT YOUR MOST VALUABLE BUSINESS—THE BUSINESS OF YOUR OWN LIFE?

Your life is a much more important business and much more truly YOUR business than any shop or factory. It's your FIRST job; your FIRST duty.

ITS PRESERVATION AND DEVELOPMENT ARE YOUR DUTY AND NOBODY'S ELSE. It's not up to your husband or wife, or dearest friend to protect your interests or supply your happiness. Such responsibilities are up to you, and to you alone.

AND IF YOU WON'T PROTECT YOUR OWN RIGHTS, YOU DON'T DESERVE TO HAVE ANY. Also, this is sure: You WON'T have any—not for long.

People aren't wantonly cruel. Take them as a whole, they're mighty fine. For every mean trait, against which you must guard, there are a thousand lovely traits, by which you profit. And it's both silly and conceited to think that the whole human race is scheming to do you dirt.

But—people are busy, and life's a crowded and hurried affair; so you must face competition in the job of living, just as you would in any other industry—only more so.

If YOUR happiness needs tending, if YOUR personality needs developing, EVERY OTHER HUMAN BEING is up against the same necessity. And if you can't, or won't, take care of yourself in the resultant melee—that's just your bad luck!

Sunrise on the Capitol

By Claude G. Bowers

It required 12 years to rid the nation of the infamous, tyrannical laws written into the statutes by fanaticism and hate during the period of reconstruction; it will be something over 12 years before we are rid of the Eighteenth Amendment.

There were many honest, well-meaning, but misguided, people, responsible for the intolerable legislation aimed at the rights of the South; and many of the same sort who originally sponsored national prohibition.

In the case of reconstruction legislation, the corruptionists, the pensioners on Government, and the politicians, diverted it speedily from the purpose of "protecting the colored people" to one of persecuting the whites for profit; and for some years the national prohibition movement has been in the hands of corruptionists, pensioners, racketeers.

The disgraceful legislation of 1866-1876 finally was wiped out when the sincere but disillusioned discovered their mistake; and national prohibition is on its way out now because the real friends of temperance have discovered theirs.

The scene in the House last week when more than two-thirds of both parties went on record against the Eighteenth Amendment was memorable. It means the beginning of the end of an impossible experiment in constitutional regulation and determination of customs and personal tastes.

Abnormalities Are The Fruits of Wars

Both the savage legislation of reconstruction days and the impossible national prohibition legislation followed in the wake of war. That is when people are abnormal, dominated more by emotions than judgment. Abnormalities are the fruits of wars. Where, in the full sweep of emotion, unwise legislation finds its way into the statutes, it is not so bad, since it is simple enough to repeal the legislation when cold reason resumes its sway.

But during these two periods referred to, the impossible was written not into the statutes, but into the Constitution, where it never should have had a place. When a mistake finds its way into the Constitution the majority of the people cannot order it out. Thus three-fourths of the states must ratify the action of Congress before the fight is won. That means that one-fourth of the states can veto the action; and it means that one-fourth of the states with the smallest population can block it.

It means that even an overwhelming majority of the citizens of this country cannot determine the policy of the nation on a vital matter which has done more now to undermine respect for the Constitution than anything since the savage days when such fanatics and political tricksters as Thad Stevens imposed their despotic will upon a people theoretically free.

That is the reason it is a vicious thing to write into the fundamental law of a whole people any provision that is notoriously obnoxious to whole sections of the country.

Now Rests on The States

The contest to rid the nation of this destructive amendment now shifts to the states. New York is acting instantly, and so will other states; but even in New York the Republican leader in the State Senate obstructed! Seven Republican members of the House from New York voted against repeal, but the overwhelming majority of the Republican rank and file of New York are for it. We should not consider any politician in New York who seeks to stem the tide to be consummate in his art.

There is every reason to believe that three-fourths of the states will ratify, but time will be required, and the repealists cannot take anything for granted. There are still many well-meaning people who are against repeal; and there are many cheap politicians and demagogues, and many professional prohibitionists who have fattened for a decade on snug salaries, coaxed from the pockets of the people, who will put up a fight.

But the group who have lived on prohibition and financially profited on it have a deplenished war chest. It was easy for them to dominate when the tide was with national prohibition and vast sums of money poured into their war chest from great industrialists and financiers. These latter have shut off the flow, convinced at last that the "noble experiment" is ruinous.

Struggle Shifts To the States

But the national prohibitionists will not be without money for the making of the fight in the states. The money will come from bootleggers, from highjackers, from the operators of low dives, from the forces of organized crime which came in with national prohibition. The Al Capones of the country have made millions on the Eighteenth Amendment that should have gone into the federal treasury. The most lucrative business in America today is that of the bootlegger, and he is going to fight for his business; and he is going to finance the fight. An amendment which has subsidized crime is dear to the hearts of these criminals.

Ten years ago, in a Congressional district in Indiana, the Democratic nominee for Congress ran on a repeal platform. There were a few dry counties where he was expected to lose, and two populous counties on which he depended to win. One of these counties was dominated by a city of considerable size; the other was a great mining county with a very large population of foreign miners who demanded beer and wine. This county was dominated by speakeasies of the lowest sort, and by the bootleggers who had turned politicians to "protect their business."

The result: The repeal candidate was defeated by this county which was wringing wet—because of the speakeasies, the bootleggers and the racketeers. It was carried by every other Democrat on the ticket.

Something Can Be Done at Once

This may require a few years—it depends. But something can be done at once. Congress has the power at once to so modify the Volstead act as to make possible the manufacture and legal sale of beer.

The Democrats are pledged to that program. The major part of the people want it.

They want it because it is a step toward the return of reality.

They want it because, just now when the people's backs are bent beneath the load of taxation, they want the hundreds of millions that go into the pockets of the bootleggers to go into the treasury to reduce the burden on legitimate business enterprise.

They want it because it will put hundreds of thousands of jobless men to work.

Why not act on a beer bill, just as they have acted on repeal?

Mr. Hoover will veto the bill? Then let him take the responsibility, and when the extra session convenes with a new Congress and a new President, let the measure be passed again and be put into operation.

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy

Young girls who are anxious to leave home to be what they term "free," should give serious attention to why they so desire to get out from under the parental roof.

Do they wish to be free to work out their careers independently, or is it that they wish to do some things Mother and Dad would think indiscreet?

There are thousands whose homes are in these large centers and they can afford to work for less than girls who must pay for room and board among strangers.

Then going about seeking a job is expensive in a large city, a sum that might meet the few requirements in a village would not pay for very many days in a city while looking for a job.

Due to inexperience many girls have no conception of the difference in expenses due to city environment.

The girls are tired of small town life but they don't know when they are well off—they want to see the bright lights, and many times, to their sorrow.

Girls should not forget that they will never find anyone who loves them in the way that parents do, wishing them wholly good, caring for them when ill, and full of love and sympathty for them when things go wrong.
